Headley Named Bean's Successor In Police Shifts

Named Assistant Superintendent as Blanton Visits D.C. Building.

INSPECTOR A. J. HEADLEY.

Kelly Promoted To Be Inspector

Promotion Means Extra Pension After Retirement August 31.

The District Commissioners yesterday carried out the "gentlemen's agreement" with Representative Thomas L. Blanton, of Texas, to promote Inspector Albert J. Headley to be assistant superintendent of police.

At the same time they promoted Capt. Edward J. Kelly, commander of the Third Precinct, to be inspector; Lieut. A. E. Miller to be captain, Detective Sergeant Floyd Truscott to be lieutenant, and Private Guy Rone to be detective sergeant. Shift of assignments of 2 captains, 13 lieutenants and other police was announced by Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police.

Promotion of Inspector Headley was voted by the Commissioners after Representative Blanton had hurried to the District Building and interrupted a formal meeting of the Board of Commissioners.

Calls Hazen and Allen.

The Texas called Commissioners Melvin C. Hazen and George E. Allen into a private conference room. Lieut. Col. Daniel I. Sultan, Engineer Commissioner, was left in the room where the board meeting was being held.

What Blanton, a member of the House District Appropriations Committee, told Commissioners Hazen and Allen was not disclosed. He said he had invited them to go fishing. The Commissioners refused to say anything. The conference, however, resulted in a reversal of the decision of the Commissioners not to fill the vacancy among the assistant superintendents of police when Inspector Thaddeus R. Bean retires tomorrow night. The Commissioners had agreed among themselves, at a special meeting on Thursday, not to fill the vacancy.

Later Blanton issued the following statement:

"It is my judgment that if I had not been a Congressman and had not been in Washington, the Commissioners, who in my judgment are absolutely just and fair, nevertheless would have given Inspector Headley the appointment.

Next in Line.

"Through seniority with 39 years of faithful, efficient service, he was the man in line next to Inspector Bean entitled to this promotion.

"I believe that the Commissioners took this action:

"1. Because through seniority Inspector Headley was entitled to it.

"2. That they deemed Inspector Headley honest, efficient, faithful and deserving.

"3. That they had such confidence in Supt. Brown's recommendation they were forced to give great weight to it.

"If the Commissioners had seen fit to abolish this position, they would not have heard one word of complaint from me, and if in the future, in their wisdom, they should think this position unnecessary, and should desire to abolish it, they would have 100 per cent co-operation from me.

Extra $250 Yearly.

Inspector Headley becomes eligible for retirement on August 31. His period of active service will not be continued, it was said. His promotion will mean an increase in salary at the rate of $500 a year in the meantime and an extra $250 a year pension when he is retired.

Promotion of the veteran police inspector marks another victory in a long list of efforts by Representative Blanton to have his will in District affairs. His friendship with Inspector Headley dates back several years when Blanton was seeking to force into retirement Maj. Edwin B. Hesse, then superintendent of police. Inspector Headley, testifying under oath before

Armed Pickets BanShipments In Potato War

Virginia Growers Tighten Blockade of Roads to Boost Price.

By the Associated Press.

Painter, Va., June 28.—Potato pickets forced a Chesapeake Bay cargo boat captain to unload a cargo of potatoes at Deep Creek, not far from here, tonight and placed him under a $100 bond to make no further attempts to run the blockade.

By the Associated Press.

Painter, Va., June 28.—Armed potato patrols scoured the roads of Accomac and Northampton counties tonight determined to carry out their threat to "undoubtedly destroy" all trucks attempting to run loads of potatoes through picket lines.

Striking for an increase in the price of potatoes to $2 per barrel, the growers clamped the embargo on shipments after a meeting here Wednesday night.

Last night they shot the tires from a truck driven by a man named Lewis as he attempted to run the blockade near Accomac. After the gunplay pickets warned growers throughout the district that pickets would destroy trucks found trying to clear the State line.

The growers were to meet again tonight to determine future action in their move to boost prices.

A temporary agreement, calling for increases on a sliding scale to reach $2 per barrel by Monday, was in force tonight. From the $1.25 per barrel being paid at the start of the strike the price had reached $1.75 today. Tomorrow it will be $1.90 and Monday $2.

In their demands for higher income—at least sufficient to cover the cost of production—the farmers had the support of the State Department of Agriculture, dealers in their own section, growers in the counties of Norfolk and Princess Anne and three members of the Virginia congressional delegation who are backing a bill to give potatoes the same preferred status as commodity crops backed by the AAA for their potatoes," said J. H. Meek, director of the division of markets, who said the growers were the victims of over-production.

Clews Found To Murderer OfDickinson

Copyright, 1935, by the United Press.

Detroit, June 28.—Solution of one of Detroit's most mysterious murders—that of Howard Carter Dickinson, wealthy New York lawyer—tonight turned toward the finding of a man of many aliases.

He was sought under the name of William Lee Ferris, but police said his real name was William Sweitzer. He also is known to have used the name of James Taylor.

Ferris is the man police believe Dickinson planned to meet when he left the Book-Cadillac Hotel at 9:30 p. m., Wednesday. He is the man who, after living at the Detroiter Hotel for two weeks, suddenly checked out at 1:58 a. m., Thursday, shortly before Dickinson's body was found.

A worthless $3 check was the clew that put police on the trail of Ferris. A taxi driver, Andrew Smygen, came to headquarters and told how, after being picked up by a man as he walked to work Wednesday morning, he had lent the stranger $7 when he put up a hard luck tale. In repayment the man gave him the check and $4 in cash.

Fat Fare Promised.

Smygen said Ferris then asked him to call at the Detroiter that night and he probably would be able to furnish him with a good fare as he knew some show girls who were entertaining a "big shot lawyer from the Book-Cadillac."

The taxi driver called three times and each time Ferris told him that the party was not ready to leave, and the last time told him to call the next day. When he did, Ferris had checked out. Finding the check worthless, Smygen turned it over to police, with his story.

Police have fixed the hour of Dickinson's death at some time between 1 a. m. Thursday and 5:45 a. m. the same day, when his body, with two bullet wounds, was discovered beside a road in Rouge Park.

Carl C. Oglesbee, beer-garden proprietor, and his bartender, Richard Watson, viewed the body today and identified Dickinson as the man who, with two companions, came in for a drink about 1 a. m. Thursday. As far as is known, it was the last time the New Yorker was seen alive.

Companions Described.

Oglesbee said one of the men with Dickinson was extremely large, weighing around 250 pounds, and the other was rather small.

The police description of Ferris says he is about 5 feet 7 inches tall, weighs about 150 pounds and is 33 years old.

His description and license numbers of his automobile were broadcast by the State police radio at Lansing and New York, and Ohio police were asked to cooperate in his apprehension.

Dickinson's two wounds, one through his head, the other in the chest, caused police to believe that his shooting was the result of a deliberately planned murder, motivated by robbery.

The lawyer carried his wallet in a secret pocket inside his vest. His coat and vest were missing when the body was found, but the coat later was found by a roadside about a mile away.

Dickinson's mission in Detroit was in connection with a claim against the estate of the multimillionnaire lumberman, William H. Yawkey, by Mrs. Elizabeth Carmichael Witherspoon. She claims to be Yawkey's daughter.

Dickinson became associated in the case through his cousin, Charles Evans Hughes, jr., son of the Supreme Court Chief Justice. A brief case belonging to Dickinson and containing papers relevant to the case was left by a woman at the checkroom of a hotel yesterday, some 11 hours after the murdered man had been found.

Regents Ask Dr. Pearson To Quit Post

Removal Alternative of Resignation; Consultancy Offered.

The board of regents of the University of Maryland yesterday asked Dr. Raymond A. Pearson, embattled president of the school, to submit his resignation by Monday.

If Dr. Pearson does this, it was reported, he would be invited to remain for a period as consultant in the university's land grant college activities.

Dr. Pearson was told that if he didn't resign he would be suspended as president.

Following its meeting in Baltimore yesterday, the board of regents issued a statement which said in part:

"The board of regents today reached a decision and submitted personally to Dr. Pearson a plan for the solution of the difficulty. Dr. Pearson was given until noon Monday, July 1, to consider the matter at which time the final announcement by the board will be made."

The statement, made public by Dr. W. W. Skinner, secretary of the board, said that "for good and sufficient reasons" it had been decided several weeks ago to have an investigation made.

"The investigation," the statement continued, "was conducted by the entire board of regents in a way we feel has been fair and thorough.

"The sentiment of the deans and faculty members was obtained, their opinions and views being directed to a specific questionnaire. The answer to these questionnaires was followed by a personal interview with the deans.

"With the foregoing, supplemented by the general information the board naturally has of the university, we acquainted Dr. Pearson in detail with the information we had received and particualrly wherein it reflected upon him and his administration as president of the university."

An editorial in the Diamondback, student publication, precipitated the controversy which has now come to a head. The editorial said that Dr. Pearson was to blame for several able faculty members resigning. It

U.S.Building Gold Vaults Far Inland

Rushes Work on One in Center of Kentucky Army Post.

Billions Will Be Taken From Vulnerable Coast Cities.

Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.

Preparing for another major transfer of the Government's huge gold reserve, secret orders were disclosed yesterday for the rush construction of a new, subterranean vault in the center of an Army post 31 miles from Louisville, Ky.

Into it will be transferred a good portion of the billions in gold now held by the Government in New York and Philadelphia.

The structure, officials reluctantly disclosed, will be built in continuation of the policy of moving precious monetary reserves away from vulnerable coast cities to more isolated inland territory.

That policy was instituted months ago, and has resulted in the shipment of nearly $3,000,000,000 worth of gold from San Francisco to Denver.

Mountain Protection.

Completion of the project at Fort Knox, Ky., will mean that the Rocky Mountains, on one side of the continent, and the Appalachians, on the other, separate the Nation's monetary base from any possible enemy attack on either seaboard.

Interestingly, the Army's only completely mechanized cavalry unit is stationed at Fort Knox. It is equipped with speedy armed scout cars and armored cars. Each carries high-powered machine guns, a radio and other modern equipment.

Treasury officials in charge of plans for the new building were asked to have them ready by August 1. No reasons were given for the haste.

Highly Inaccessible.

In preparation, Treasury surveyors already have journeyed to and from Kentucky to look over the ground. The site tentatively selected is not only in the middle of Fort Knox, but is isolated from both railroads and highways.

Plan drafters were given few instructions except that the building should contain an area of 10,000 square feet and cost not more than $450,000. The intention was to put offices atop the gold bullion depositary vault.

From a strategic standpoint, military experts asserted, the new vault will be decidedly inaccessible. An invading army would have to fight its way through the Appalachians—a terrific task. Even airplanes piloted by men new to the country would have trouble, for airline fliers who regularly cross the mountains consider it a treacherous flight. Further, the new general headquarters air force squadron at Langley Field, Va., is not far away in the matter of air miles.

Army Not Guardian.

In addition should an army be interested in reaching the gold, and succeed in forcing its way over the mountains, it would find itself opposed by 1,300—the present complement—or more troops.

The army is not assuming responsibility for protection of the gold. Treasury guards will get that. The army is simply turning the necessary land over to the Treasury.

But troops now there could and would, of course, be used if necessary.

Raid on Peiping May Bring U.S. To Arms Beside Japan in China

Assaults of Rebel Chinese Upon Gates of Old Capital Repulsed; City Now Strives to Keep Powers From Intervening Under Protocol.

Copyright, 1935, by the United Press.

Peiping (Saturday), June 29.—Foreign intervention, involving United States troops, to restore order in north China, appeared as one possibility tonight, following hours of indecisive warfare among Chinese factions at the gates of Peiping.

The Japanese military was prepared to consult with other foreign military commands on united action, as provided in the Boxer protocol.

Chinese insurgents who seized an armored train and sought to burst into the ancient capital through the famed Yungtingmen, a gate south of the Temple of Heaven, were repulsed.

They fled to Fengtai, a station 12 miles from Peiping, where they still held the village. Foreign volunteers at Tientsin, 90 miles away, were ordered to stand by for mobilizaton.

Peiping was under martial law, proclaimed through a "state of alarm" when the rebel contingent approached the gates of the former capital before dawn yesterday.

The military council in Peiping was in constant session, determined to terminate the "incident" and prevent intervention by the foreign powers, which have the right to keep communications open between Peiping and the sea.

Three Chinese regiments were dispatched to surround Fengtai.

Officials feared the insurgents had allies within the old walled capital and believed that shots fired when the armored train approached the Yungtingmen were meant as a signal, but miscarried, warning the loyal garrison.

All city gates were guarded and streets patroled.

The Japanese high command declared if communications were not fully restored between Peiping and Tientsin quickly, they would consult with the other foreign military authorities with a view of taking drastic joint action. If joint action failed they might act alone.

The sole casualty in the initial attack on Peiping by the insurgents was one Chinese coolie—hit by a trench mortar shell.

Chinese insisted order would be restored without foreign intervention, and the international command temporarily withheld action.

The American garrison comprises the Fifteenth United States Infantry, stationed at Tientsin since the Boxer uprising in 1900.

The "Battle of Yungtingmen" broke suddenly when a band of Chinese and Koreans in plain clothes seized an armored train at

A Phonograph Takes the Stand For First Time in Murder Trial

By the United Press.

New York, June 28.—"All I can remember is throwing her in the tub . . ." rasped the scratching phonograph record.

"In the tub . . . throwing her in the water . . . that's all . . . then I went inside . . . I smoked a cigar . . . and listened to the radio."

The droning voice from the talking machine was that of flabby Frank Flynn, on trial for the brutal bathtub murder of 6-year-old "Margie" Parlato, and it was heard today by an incredulous jury in Judge Charles S. Colden's Queens courtroom, by the fat, dozing defendant and by the weeping mother of the slain little girl.

For the first time in criminal jurisprudence, it is believed a phonograph "witness" testified in a murder trial.

Presentation of the record was permitted only after a long legal wrangle before Judge Colden. He finally ruled, however, that Flynn's confession to District Attorney Charles P. Sullivan—recorded by a secret microphone—was legal and competent evidence.

The courtroom doors were locked as the talking machine "went on the stand," propped up beside the jury box, and the whirling disc began its blaring nine-minute recital.

Literally testifying against himself, Flynn hunched down in his chair, his eyes half-closed and apparently without emotion. He heard himself tell, in a voice sometimes colorless, sometimes plaintive, how he drowned the little girl and then flung her body down a dumbwaiter shaft.

The jury stared at the former garage manager in amazement as they listened to the electrical transcription of his sordid confession.

They heard the district attorney ask Flynn if he had molested the child.

"No," droned the recording, "I don't know what I did. I just remember running out and grabbing her and throwing her in the tub."

Power 'Lobby' Assailed By President in Urging Utilities Bill's Passage

Throws Unqualified Support Behind 'Death Sentence' Plan.

Says Propaganda Deceives No One

Huddleston Favors Regulation Instead of 'Destruction.'

By Robert C. Albright.

President Roosevelt yesterday threw unqualified White House support behind the "death sentence" for unnecessary utility holding companies and lashed out at the power lobby as the most dangerous and powerful in history.

His arraignment coincided with House consideration of utility holding company legislation substituting Federal regulation for "death sentence" features of the Senate bill.

The President said a bold power lobby concentrated in Washington is spreading propaganda against the "death sentence" that is frightening some persons. He said it was not deceiving anybody.

General Debate Ends.

The statement came as the House completed general debate on the Wheeler-Rayburn utility holding company bill and opened detailed consideration of the measure. An amendment restoring the "death sentence" section of the Senate bill will be offered next week. A majority of House members are unofficially said to be opposed to it.

Yesterday, just prior to the White House press conference, Representative George Huddleston (Democrat), Alabama, a member of the Interstate Commerce Committee, took the House floor in favor of regulation as opposed to holding company "destruction." He received applause from the floor and galleries.

Huddleston charged that propaganda on the Wheeler-Rayburn measure has not been limited to the power lobby—that influential members of Congress, public officials and the President himself have been avidly active on the other side of the issue.

"Let us have done with this talk of propaganda," he said. "Both sides are guilty. Both have interfered with a fair and just decision upon the part of Congress."

Hits "Public Officials."

The Alabaman said he was criticizing nobody, but was firmly convinced that public officials here in Washington are not guiltless in the matter of propaganda.

"Before we had the first hearing on this bill," he said, "the chairman of our committee mounted the radio and he radioed from one end of the country to the other telling the people how bad the utilities were and how much this kind of legislation was needed.

"I want to say to him that his influence and his word went farther than 10,000,000 letters received from humble constituents who do not know very much about what they are doing anyhow.

"He was not alone in riding this wave. Others have been riding it since. The Chief Executive, through his all-powerful influence, has repeatedly done so."

While informal checks of the House known to have been made by leaders recently indicated there was a majority even among Democratic members opposed to outright elimination of "unnecessary" holding companies, Representative John E. Rankin (Democrat), Mississippi, an ardent advocate of dissolution, yesterday insisted the "death sentence" forces are gaining votes.

Has Margin of 28.

His check-up, he admitted, is incomplete, but of those whose position on the measure is known, there are 28 more members in favor of the proposal than there are opposed to it, he claimed.

"I am confident of an overwhelming victory for the Administration on this proposition when we reach a vote," Rankin said. "The sentiment is rapidly swinging that way."

It was near the close of a day of colorful House debate pro and con

Many More Due to Go With a Change in Policy Under Way.

By Felix Bruner.

The works administration yesterday began to dismantle part of the elaborate machine set up to handle the $4,000,000,000 works program. Lack of response to invitations to submit applications for works funds and the necessity for changes of policy in handling the relief problem has brought about this action.

Forty-five of the 500 employes of the Division of Applications and Information were furloughed and many more are expected to go within a short time. This division was set up to receive applications, which were expected to ask for many times the amount available. After two months, applications, including those of all Federal departments and agencies, have not even approached $4,000,000,000.

A new works policy is expected to be announced within ten days or two weeks. It is expected to involve allotment to the Works Progress Division of a lump sum to be spent on work relief. It is probable that projects under this plan, all of them small, will not be cleared through the division of applications, the allotment board or President Roosevelt, but that they will be handled directly by State works progress directors.

While the Division of Applications and Information is expected to be reduced from its present personnel to a comparative handful of people, most of whom will be employed in the publicity section, the National Emergency Council, of

New Taxation Will Be Held To 4-Ply Plan

Leader of Share-the-Wealth Hearings in House Will Strive for Speed.

Rigid limitation of new tax legislation to the four general proposals outlined in the President's "share-the-wealth" message was sought last night in an effort to expedite hearings and speed action this session by both houses of Congress.

Representative Samuel B. Hill (Democrat), Washington, chairman of the House Ways and Means special tax sub-committee, which will open hearings July 8, declared "the time is too short to rewrite the basic tax law of the country."

"If my opinion prevails," he said, "we will hear no witnesses on the question of nuisance tax repeal or revision. Neither will we materially disturb the income tax law, except as it generally applies to incomes over $1,000,000."

Corporation income taxes, graduated upward probably from 10 to 17½ per cent, inheritance and gift taxes on the larger fortunes, and individual surtax rates ranging upward from $1,000,000, will be the immediate issues before the subcommitteee. A House Judiciary Committee is considering a proposed constitutional amendment removing tax exemptions from all securities.

"If we confine our program to these matters, we can conclude hearings and report our bill in the space of about three weeks," said Hill. "If we expand it, we would be here indefinitely."

The Washington State Representative, who directed the House's tax loophole-plugging study, which was enacted into law last session, said the sub-committee naturally is in-

New Deal Bills All in for '35, Says Roosevelt

Has no More Work in Mind for Congress This Year; President Reveals.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

President Roosevelt yesterday revealed that he has laid before Congress all proposals he wishes enacted into law at this time. Barring unforeseen developments, he said, there will be no further messages from him to this session.

Mr. Roosevelt, in making this statement at his semi-weekly press conference, explained that he was reluctant to discuss future plans for fear of being accused of bad faith, should something new develop in the next few weeks and force him to address Congress. But he has nothing more on his mind at this time, he said.

He indicated he would be satisfied with the present session of Congress when it disposed of the pending "must legislation," including enactment of his share-the-wealth tax proposals and outlawry of suits against the Government under the gold clause in Treasury bonds.

This meant that the President and his advisers have virtually abandoned, if they have had such an intention, of seeking further NRA legislation at this session. Asked specifically about the prospects of further NRA proposals, Mr. Roosevelt said it was very much in the study stage—so much so that he could not discuss the subject.

Earlier in the day William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and George L. Berry, assistant NRA administrator, submitted to President Roosevelt the A. F. of L. plan for maintaining

2 Stranded Americans Saved From Pacific's Cocos Island

Wireless messages, crackling more than 2,000 miles from a gray cruiser on the wind-tossed Pacific, told again yesterday of another saga of the Pacific isles, of men marooned and saved.

Two ships of the United States Navy had saved 15 marooned men—two Americans taken from glamorous treasure-storied Cocos Island and 13 Ecuadorean workmen taken off Hood Island, southernmost of the turtle-swarmed Galapagos Islands.

The Americans saved were Theodore Henry Freeman, master of the schooner Skukum, and P. Henry Freeman, one of the schooner's crew.

They sailed from San Diego on December 19 last, for Balboa, C. Z. Storms blew them off their course. On April 6, they put in at Cocos Island. Then fire suddenly devoured the ship.

Then three weeks ago, English treasure hunters arrived, seeking the fabled golden hoards reported left there by pirates who plundered the churches and cathedrals of the colonies of Spain in the sixteenth century.

They found the Skukum's ragged crew, and they helped its four members. Two of them they sent to San Jose, Costa Rica, on a trip for supplies. And then, Admiral Freeman reported, the U. S. S. Taylor, destroyer, commanded by Lieut. Comdr. George T. Howard, arrived and took off the Freemans.

The 13 Ecuadorean workmen were taken from Hood Island to San Cristobal Island by Admiral Freeman's flagship, the Trenton, at the request of Ecuador's Galapagos governor. They had been on the island 50 days, and 5 days before their supplies had run out. A supply ship had failed to contact them.

Idle Bank Cash Jumps to New All-Time High

Treasury Gold Also Rises to Record; Banking Bill Advances.

By the Associated Press.

Idle bank funds touched a towering all-time peak last night, surrounded by a bitter dispute over methods of preventing their possible transition into a runaway credit boom.

Closely allied, the Treasury's vast gold hoard climbed again to a new high, due, some economists thought, to the receipt of the last shipments of that metal acquired in the Government's recent sally to the defense of the franc.

Capital for which the member banks of the Federal Reserve System could find no acceptable borrowers stood at a point officially estimated at a little more than $2,500,000,000. All reserves on deposit at the Reserve banks totaled $5,029,000,000. The gold stocks aggregated $9,109,000,000. Both figures showed big increases for the past week.

Bank Bill Advances.

Meanwhile the omnibus banking bill, by which the Administration hopes to provide a strongly centralized control over the process of turning the $2,500,000,000 excess reserves into bank loans, finally was approved by a Senate banking subcommittee and neared a parliamentary battle royal on the Senate floor. Its provisions were kept secret.

At the same time the President signed the resolution extending the temporary bank deposit insurance system two months.

Of the $5,029,000,000 reserve deposits, approximately one-half can not be touched by the member banks. They are required by law to keep a percentage of their own deposits on deposit with the Reserve banks. The other half—the excess above such reserve requirements—they may tap at any time.

Most economists agree that, once the snowball of a credit boom starts rolling, the excess $2,500,000,000 would be multiplied by ten in credit. On this basis, the excess reserves would furnish the source of $25,000,000,000 in credit or some $2,500,000,000 more than all the combined loans and investments of the members banks during the heydey of the 1929 boom.

Reason for Secrecy.

Senator Glass (Democrat), Virginia, announced his committee pledged secrecy as to its form because publicity would precipitate demands for changes.

Highly critical of the measure as it came from the House, Glass said it now was "more satisfactory than before." The Virginian has voiced opposition to the measure's provisions broadening powers of the Federal Reserve Board over money control.

"I am satisfied with it—if we are going to have any legislation at all," Glass told reporters as his committee concluded two months of study.

Explaining the secrecy about the bill, Glass said in his 34 years of experience with banking legislation he "found that whenever the action of the committee was revealed we had unending trouble."

"Everybody affected by any provision wanted this or that alteration made," he said. "Therefore it is the part of wisdom not to disclose what has been done until the bill is reported to the Senate."

Glass Denies Leaks.

After the full committee reports, members said, the secrecy agreement ends. Glass denied there had been any "leaks" in the committee or that members had been in communication with Winthrop W. Aldrich, president of the Chase National Bank in New York.

Immediately after the President signed the deposit extension, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation began returning checks to 8,000 of the 14,278 members, who would have been compelled to subscribe to Class A capital stock equal to a fourth of 1 per cent of their total deposits. Had the old law gone into effect, the banks would have had to pay in $100,000,000, to give 100 per cent insurance on deposits up to $10,000, 75 per cent on those from $10,000 to $50,000, and 50 per cent on those above.

The omnibus bill, however, places a flat annual assessment of an eighth of 1 per cent on their total deposits, and guarantees deposits up to $5,000.

Tax Plan Seeks to Decentralize Industry; Big Chief Hopkins; Senate Innovation.

By Raymond Clapper

Only a few have yet awakened to the fact that Mr. Roosevelt's new tax proposals not only aim to decentralize wealth but to decentralize industry as well. Decentralization of industry is behind the proposal for replacing the present flat tax on corporation income with a sharply graduated tax on size.

This proposal, obscured under the more glamorous attack on large inheritances and millionaire incomes, would have the most extensive effects on the reorganization of industry and is worth far more attention than has been given to it in public discussion thus far.

The graduated tax proposal starts by knocking out the present flat 13¾ per cent tax on all corporation net income regardless of size. It substitutes a sliding scale begininng with a 10 per cent tax on corporation income between $2,000 and $5,000. Corporations earning $300,000 to $1,000,000 would be taxed 16 per cent. Income from $1,000,000 to $20,000,000 would be taxed at 17 per cent, and all above that at 17½ per cent.

This proposal will be defended on the ground that the maximum tax would hit only a handful of companies such as American Telephone & Telegraph, General Motors, Du Pont, and American Tobacco, and that since their earnings are large they can stand it.

Corporations earning between $100,000 and $300,000 a year, which might be regarded as medium-sized companies, would pay a 15 per cent tax, compared with a 10 per cent tax paid by their smaller competitors. That is a 50 per cent heavier tax load.

It probably will be argued that they also can stand it.

But as to the real effects of such a penalty on size, incidental testimony comes from one of the intellectuals who sat at the famous dinner table and frightened Dr. William Wirt so badly about a year ago that he ran out declaring a revolution was afoot and that Mr. Roosevelt was being used as an innocent Kerensky to pave the way for the real Lenin.

One of these disquieting dinner companions of Dr. Wirt's was David Cushman Coyle, who describes himself as a consulting engineer and a specialist in "wind resistance" and who became attached to PWA. He was among the most advanced of the miscellaneous people who clustered on the fringes of the Brain Trust. He has been among the boldest in stating the Administration objectives and the methods by which they were to be achieved. The result is that a number of his articles have forecast subsequent developments of policy.

Dr. Coyle is out with the leading article in the Virginia Quarterly Review for July which was in print before the Roosevelt tax proposals went to Congress. His article is entitled "Decentralize Industry."

In a previous article he had developed the idea that the Nation's industrial problem could be solved only by adopting either public ownership or by decentralizing industry. In the present article, after pointing out the advantages of breaking up large business units and encouraging small local industries, he declares that the major offensive against overcentralization is part of the general war of the people against high finance and that we already are engaged in the "early stages" of it. The present lines of attack, he says, include the securities act, holding company legislation, social security and the Eccles banking bill.

He says, writing some weeks ago, that another line of attack will be "heavy income and inheritance taxation, to destroy the financial group itself." Then he goes on to say that "some help may also be found in taxation of undivided corporation surplus and in graduated taxation of corporations according to size."

Dr. Coyle continues: "Progress is slow, with the conservatives fighting bitterly against reform. The New Deal may be too slow, and popular impatience may burst out in a drastic capital levy. Or the conservatives may win a fatal victory, and the country be forced to pass through fascism to violent revolution. But, however it is done, there will be no peace till high finance is destroyed."

New Deal Parade: President Roosevelt has no new legislative recommendations in mind now but he may decide to send up another NRA bill. NRA and the Federal Trade Commission are finding it almost impossible to work out formulae for approving voluntary codes that will be insured against anti-trust statutes. A licensing system for interstate industry is being looked over. . . . Some say that another reason for the sudden halt in the new tax proposals is that the experts found they would raise only about $50,000,000 instead of $340,000,000 and everyone wanted to hush up the matter temporarily. Now leaders are emphasizing that the purpose was not to raise any fixed amount of revenue. . . . Is it constitutional for Congress to levy a tax except for revenue purposes? In one child-labor case the Supreme Court said no. Mr. Roosevelt says his tax plan is for two purposes, one to raise revenue and the other to improve the social order . . . Congress is doing right well in levying taxes. It has approved $500,000,000 in nuisance taxes and $500,000,000 in AAA processing taxes. By 1937 the social security law will be raising about $770,000,000 a year in taxes. Some more taxes are envisaged in the half-finished Guffey coal bill.

Minneapolis has sent an "ambassador" to Washington to join the new domestic diplomatic row. Massachusetts, Arizona and Buffalo have seniority over the newest envoy. . . . Frank C. Walker has been offered the Postmaster Generalship but turned it down. He is much upset over the overhauling of the work set-up now going on in deepest secrecy. As forecast long ago, Harry Hopkins is coming out as the big chief. The elaborate stage dressing of the NEC, the applications division and the allotment board is being stripped down. . . . Senator Borah's recent interest in the "share-our-burden" taxes is helping in Idaho, where he is up for reelection next year. Gov. Ben Ross, Democrat, is not so anxious to run against Borah as he was and somebody else may take the fall. . . . Representative Lemke, of North Dakota, who is pushing his $3,000,000,000 printing press money bill is one Republican who is leaning toward Huey Long for President.

Six Government press agents were worried because they thought the paragraph here about the one who was being released because he didn't have anything to do applied to them.

As a result of his long experience in the House, first as Democratic leader and then as Speaker, Vice President Garner has introduced an innovation into the Senate. It is that after a bill is passed a motion to reconsider be made and tabled. That prevents anyone from reopening the matter.

Senator Pat Harrison was so excited when he put through his nuisance tax extension without opposition a few days ago that he forgot about the reconsideration clincher and was so deep in conversation with a colleague that he missed his cue when Majority Leader Robinson made the formal motion to reconsider.

Pat's cue was to jump up and move to lay the motion on the table, but Robinson had to call out twice before he could get Harrison's attention.

There was so much confusion that Vandenberg, of Michigan, asked if the tax resolution had passed.

"It is passed," replied Garner, "and beyond hope."

Clark Radio Talk Urges Neutrality

By the Associated Press.

Warning that "the prospect for war abroad is far more ominous and imminent than it appeared at this season in 1914," Senator Clark (Democrat), Missouri, appealed yesterday in a radio address for public support of the three neutrality resolutions introduced in the Senate.

Clark, a member of the Senate Munitions Investigating Committee, declared enactment immediately should be had because if delayed until after war starts, "it will be too late."

He outlined provisions of the resolutions as:

A complete embargo (in event of foreign war) on the shipment of all arms, ammunition and other war material.

A similar automatic embargo on all loans and credits to belligerents for the purchase of war materials.

A law forbidding the granting of passports to American cities traveling in war zones or on belligerent ships.

A law requiring that exportation of any article declared to be contraband by any belligerant country shall do so at the exporter's own risk or at the risk of the foreign government or foreign purchaser.

Still Have Nothing, LaGuardias Find

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 28.—Mayor LaGuardia and his wife, Marie, held a public conference today on their financial status, and to hear them tell it there isn't much to talk about.

"Marie," queried the mayor good humoredly, "what did we have when I took this job?"

"Nothing," answered Mrs. LaGuardia, with a smile.

"Well, what have we got now?" said the mayor, leading her on.

"Nothing," she replied.

The subject came up when the mayor was asked about a suit to stop his pay.

"Who cares?" was his genial comment.

Spark, Fireworks, $2,000.

Kansas City, June 28 (AP).—A spark from a cap pistol set off $2,000 worth of fireworks in a downtown drug store here today. Sparklers hissed, color lights flared, caps banged, customers ducked, girl clerks screamed, but no one was hurt. It took a flock of fire trucks to stop it.

Roosevelt Acts Again to Avert Coal Walkout

Wants Truce That Ends Tomorrow Extended; Miners Object.

By the Associated Press.

For the third time this year President Roosevelt yesterday moved to avert a strike in the soft-coal industry.

The Chief Executive expressed hope the miners and operators would continue their truce on hours and pay beyond tomorrow night to await passage of the Guffey coal bill pending in Congress.

Making known that he was keeping in touch with the situation, the President said he expected to receive a report on it last night or today. The House committee considering the Guffy bill, he said, was acting in good faith and in all probability would report the measure soon.

Want 30-Hour Week.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, declined to comment on the President's move for a third extension of the agreement that expired April 1. Operators are willing to renew the agreement, but the miners want a 30-hour week and a 10 per cent average pay increase.

A committee of two miners and two operators worked throughout the day, but reported little progress in efforts to reach an agreement.

The wage and hour negotiations were closely linked with the Guffey bill to set up a "little NRA" for the bituminous industry. A Ways and Means sub-committee completed hearings on the measure late today after a three-hour plea from Lewis for its enactment on humanitarian grounds.

Senate Delays Action.

A Senate committee has approved the bill, but because of its tax features Senate action is being delayed until the House acts.

Representative Sam Hill (Democrat), of Washington, chairman of the Ways and Means sub-committee, said the bill would be put ahead of the Administration tax measure. He indicated it would be reported early next week.

Producers are divided on the bill. In his testimony Lewis denounced the railroads for their coal policy. Many of the industry's troubles, he said, were due to railroads beating down the prices of coal, with the producers at their mercy.

Barcelona Placed Under Army Rule

Martial Law Declared to End Labor Disorders.

By the United Press.

Madrid, June 28.—Martial law officially was declared by the government tonight in Barcelona city and province, in a drastic move to check rising labor unrest and sabotage.

Prime Minister Alejandro Lerroux, asking the declaration of martial law by President Niceto Alcala Zamora, said:

"In view of the situation of public order in Catalonia (the Barcelona district), with repeated assaults, sabotage and terrorism, the government met briefly in chamber and decided to declare martial law in Barcelona city and province, in order to end this situation as soon as possible.

"The minister of war and minister of interior will fly to Barcelona tomorrow to confer with the commander-general of the Barcelona division."

South African Banking Chief On Way Here

Postmus to Discuss Plan for Ending Currency Wars of World.

By the Associated Press.

Liverpool, England, June 28.—Johannes Postmus, governor of the South African Reserve Bank, slipped away from Liverpool quietly today to talk over the possibility of ending world currency wars with United States and Canadian bankers.

His departure for Montreal at 4:30 p. m. was every bit as unostentatious as those of Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, who frequently makes mysterious trips to America.

It was understood Postmus, who reputedly buys $1,000,000,000 worth of gold annually, hoped to see President Roosevelt and Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau at Washington.

Reports from South Africa regarding probable Socialist legislation and the effects of heavy taxation on gold were said in financial circles to have influenced the several lengthy, important talks Postmus had here with Norman—talks so secret that the British press apparently failed to learn even of the South African's presence here.

He is expected to present both his own and Norman's views on currency stabilization to Americans, and it is understood the two are chiefly interested in getting more information concerning recent statements by Secretaries Hull and Morgenthau as to the prospects for stabilization.

Postmus left South Africa April 12. Since then he has conferred with government and financial leaders in Paris, Amsterdam and other European centers. He will reach Montreal aboard the Duchess of Richmond July 5 and spend nine days in Montreal, Ottawa, New York and Washington.

Moffett Studying China Silver Status

By the Associated Press.

Well-informed official sources yesterday disclosed that James A. Moffett, head of the Federal Housing Corporation, is making a study for President Roosevelt of the effect upon China of the United States silver-buying policy.

White House officials have denied Moffett was delegated officially to make a formal study. The manner in which the assignment came about was outlined in one quarter as substantially this:

Moffett went to President Roosevelt with his plans for a vacation cruise to China. The President suggested while he was there, Moffett observe conditions and report to him after his vacation ends.

Moffett, not being a silver expert, but being regarded as a keen business man with a knowledge of Chinese conditions, was said to be likely to furnish Mr. Roosevelt with some off-hand, unbiased observations which might, or might not, tally with the opinion of experts who already have reported.

99 Years in Prison Is Slayer's Sentence

Kankakee, Ill., June 28 (AP).—Harry Roley, Decatur, Ill., today was convicted of murder and speedily sentenced to 99 years for the slaying of Joseph Gliatta, drug store supervisor, during a robbery. He made no defense. Another man already is serving a similar term for the crime.

Roley was captured in a raid at Bloomington, Ill., in which Deputy Sheriff A. L. Vonsar, one-time secret service operative, who had guarded several Presidents, was slain by Roley's companion.

Borah Battles Into 71st Year; No Birthday Talk to Reporters

Idaho's Militant Defender of Constitution Spends Day at Office.

By the Associated Press.

Senator Borah, militant Idaho Republican ended his 70th year yesyesterday by working at his office and brushing aside reporters who sought to ask him what he planned during his 71st year.

Appearing healthier by far than in the past several years, Borah has been right "in his element" this session in telling the Senate what the Constitution says—a voice strongly heeded since the Supreme Court lent it additional weight.

He led a battle in the past week for immediate action on the President's tax program and prepared to begin next week a fight against Secretary Wallace's AAA amendments.

Long recognized as an authority on constitutional law and foreign affairs, Borah has served 28 years as a Senator from Idaho.

A Republican independent and a stanch defender of bi-party government, the gray-haired Idahoan came into national prominence when he refused to bolt the Republican Party to support Theodore Roosevelt's Bull Moose campaign.

He already was widely known, however, as a special prosecutor of William D. "Big Bill" Haywood and others charged with the murder of Gov. Steunenberg of Idaho. The Governor was killed during a mine strike.

His record in the Senate is a long one. Here are some of its high lights:

Delivered a now famous speech in 1919 opposing America's entry in the League of Nations, campaigned for release of political prisoners, declined Republican leadership in the Senate during Harding administration, declined nomination for Vice Presidency with Coolidge, urged recognition of Russia, opposed the national recovery act and applauded the Supreme Court's decision, successfully opposed President Roosevelt's proposal for American entrance into the World Court, supported payment of the bonus and hailed Roosevelt's tax-the-wealthy plan as a laudable share-the-burden-of-Government plan.

Congress Goes 'Broke' But Nobody Worries

By the Associated Press.

Congress will be flat broke tomorrow night.

The Senate recessed Thursday until Monday and left dangling in the air two appropriation bills, the $356,665,000 deficiency bill and the legislative appropriation bill for $20,000,000.

Congress, the Vice President and all the hired help will come to work Monday without any appropriation on hand to pay their salaries or expenses for the fiscal year beginning at midnight Sunday.

But they displayed no signs of alarm, for passage of the legislative appropriation bill before next pay day is an easy procedure.

Man, 61, Confesses Killing Sweetheart

'I Kissed Her, I Loved Her, I Shot Her,' He Says.

By the Associated Press.

Hollywood, June 28.—Police said tonight they had the confession of Daniel W. Nields, 61-year-old gardener, that he shot and killed his sweetheart, Frances Conklin, 42, Hollywood stenographer whose body was found last night in a ravine in Griffith Park.

"I kissed her, I loved her and I shot her," Capt. Bert Wallis of the police homicide detail said the confession related.

As made public by Capt. Wallis, the confession said:

"I shot her because she said something about the love I had for my sister (Mrs. Val Paul, wife of a movie scenario writer). She said I loved my sister too much. I said: 'Please, darling, don't say that.' She did that to tease me."

"How many times did you shoot Frances?" officers asked.

"I guess I shot five, but I only intended to shoot four. I wanted to save the last shot for myself and die with her."

Carpetbag Senator Dies.

Utility 'Lobby' Is Arraigned By President

on the question of holding company elimination that the President came to the defense of the Senate measure as an emancipation proclamation for stockholders.

A newspaperman started the discussion. He asked the President if he was indifferent to the fate of the utility holding company bill. The President slowly lighted a cigarette, took one puff, and replied at length.

He said he was very keen for the bill, and he meant the Senate bill. He said he was more strongly for it now than at any other time, if that were possible.

Says Stockholders Aided.

He had heard a lot of talk of late about the "death sentence" feature, as applied to holding companies, he told reporters. But it was his opinion, he said, that stockholders of the big holding companies are and nave been for some time under a death sentence. The Senate bill, he said, would give these stockholders the right to live.

At the present time there are too many parasite companies between the stockholders and the operating companies, he said. The Senate bill, he contended, would give to separate localities some right to control the utilities in their domain.

At the same time, he said, it would take away some of the power exercised by certain groups over legislators in the past—lobbies that he said were resorting to deliberate falsifications in their fight on the death sentence, but were not deceiving anyone. He used strong language.

He said it was the most powerful and dangerous lobby that has ever been created by any organization. Compared with it, he said, the labor lobby was a child and the veterans' lobby a mere infant.

The President said there were nine or ten spread-eagle utility companies engaged in interstate commerce and operating out of New York. He said the Senate bill would take away control from the Insulls and others and restore it to the people.

Earlier, addressing the House for almost an hour, Representative Huddleston had drawn an ovation from members when he reminded them the Democratic platform of 1932 called for "regulation" of holding companies.

"Upon that plank I stand," he said. "Remember, it says regulate, not destroy. Those who advocate destruction can not quarrel with me for my democracy."

Representative Huddleston said he was "amazed" when Chairman Sam Rayburn, of the House Interstate Commerce Committee, failed to say he favored the House bill his committee reported, which eliminated the Senate "death sentence" provision.

"But, unworthy as this orphan is, this abandoned child of my friend from Texas, out of a spirit of chivalry I am compelled to come to this orphan's aid and take it into my slender bosom. I support the bill in toto."

But nevertheless he insisted the bill was a "mystic maze," particularly in the original form in which it was submitted by Benjamin Cohen and Thomas Cochran, "two bright young men" who he said had been "brought down from New York to teach Congress how to shoot."

Made Many Changes.

"I pay them a tribute for the remarkable skill which they have shown in weaving in and out, piling words upon words, phrase upon phrase, clause upon clause, until a Philadelphia lawyer would get down on his knees and pray to be delivered from the task of interpretation."

He said he hoped he "misunderstood" Representative Rayburn as saying he favored the bill in its original form.

"We made perhaps three or four dozen changes in the bill. Every one was an improvement upon the original."

He said it was hard for him to determine where the propaganda started, but it was on both sides of the question, and the Federal Trade Commission was responsible for much of it through their publicity accompanying the Federal power investigation.

"They whipped the country into a rage," he said. "They formed public opinion, especially among those who had the least information; they caused this public opinion to reach fever heat. Demagogues saw their opportunity and agitators saw the time was ripe for them. So, like eagles riding the storm, they mounted upon this wave of ill will and public opinion against the utilities. They are riding it right down to this time. This is the finest demagogue bait that was ever spread."

In support of the so-called "death sentence," Representative Edward C. Eicher (Democrat), Iowa, took the floor, defended the Constitutionality of the provision, and asserted that effective Federal regulation of the utility industry cannot begin until there has first been exercised a compulsory simplification of the complex and intricate holding company structure."

Valid Exercise.

Both the House and Senate bills, he said, "are a valid exercise of Federal power."

He said:

"Without depriving investors of the real value of their investments and at the same time improving the condition of the industry for investors and consumers, eliminating as it does and changing merely the form of corporate organization, certainly, in view of the evils caused by the holding company, the present bill can not be held arbitrary, capricious or unreasonable."

Representative Samuel B. Pettengill (Democrat), Indiana, replied by quoting a letter received from Attorney General Cummings in May saying that department had made no study of the measure's constitutionality, and expressed no opinion on it.

Pettengill said "it has been told in the cloak room that no one can speak against the drastic provisions in the Senate bill and retain his seat in Congress."

"If that be true it makes little difference to me," he said. "If what I say terminates my public life I shall walk out of here a man, not a coward."

U.S. Bond Sales Inflation Peril, Banker Warns

Says Same Finance Steps Led Europeans to Disaster.

By the Associated Press.

New Brunswick, N. J., June 28.—Col. Leonard P. Ayres, vice president of the Cleveland Trust Co., and well known economist, warned bankers today that inflation as an ultimate development seems to be a very real danger.

"We have so enormously increased the capacity of our banking system for credit expansion that it is difficult to see how we could have a vigorous business revival without having it develop into a credit inflation," he said.

Col. Ayres spoke before the Graduate School of Banking operated by the American Institute of Banking section of the American Bankers Association and Rutgers University as an advanced training course for bank officers.

He explained that if inflation does come it will be a slow process, and it was pointed out that in Germany, France, Belgium and Italy the processes of inflation took about five years to develop.

"If we are to go through such a period here it would seem likely that it might last rather longer than the corresponding periods abroad," Col. Ayres stated.

"Its beginning would date from the spring of 1933, when we left the old gold basis for our money and entered upon the policy of financing large governmental deficits by the sale of Federal securities mainly to banks rather than to private investors.

"The method that we are following is the one that proved disastrous in Europe, for in all those couneries, including Germany, the increasing issues of money that caused the inflations were not mere printing-press issues of fiat currency, but were secured by Government bonds and notes discounted at the banks."

The banker stated that when and if inflation develops it will be ushered in by a business recovery that will be welcomed by all, and he added:

"It may well be doubted whether any National Administration or any Federal Reserve Board would have the fortitude to check and restrict such a recovery in order to avoid an overexpansion of credit."

Storm Threatens Endurance Fliers

Key Brothers Prepare for Emergency Landing.

By the Associated Press.

Meridian, Miss., June 28.—A severe rain and thunder storm broke over Fred and Al Key's endurance plane late today and when stabilizer trouble developed the brothers circled close over the airfield, prepared for an emergency landing.

The fliers, who yesterday established a new world's endurance flying record, kept in constant touch with an anxious ground crew. The weather was so bad the Keys at first radioed they did not think it would be possible to make the regular refueling contact, but later instructed the ground plane to go up.

At 10:20 (Eastern standard time) the brothers had been in sustained flight 585 hours, surpassing the old official record of 553 hours, 41 minutes, 30 seconds, held by John and Kenneth Hunter, of Chicago, by 26 hours, 18 minutes and 30 seconds.

Award for Human Flight.

Rome, June 28 (AP).—The Royal Aeronautical Club today decided to reward with 100,000 lire (about $8,280) the first person to solve the problem of human flight. A technical commission was named to draw up regulations.

If you are looking for an inexpensive car that has plenty of unused mileage under its hood, see The Hupmobile advertised in the classified section today for only $225.

Missing Child Is Found Slain After Attack

Body of 'Perfect Pupil' Discovered in New York Swamp.

By the Associated Press.

Greenville, N. Y., June 28.—The body of Greenville's "perfect schoolgirl" 9-year-old Helen Glenn—was found today in a nearby marsh, where it had been thrown after the girl had been attacked and slain.

Two of the hundreds of townspeople who had searched for the child since she disappeared Wednesday night came across the body. It was turned over to Coroner M. E. Atkinson, who confirmed tonight the worst fears of the girl's father, the Rev. Ernest Glenn.

"Somebody near Greenville is suspected of attacking and killing my child," he said late today.

Situation is Tense.

Subdued excitement pervaded the town. Few residents ventured into the streets, and troopers in civilian clothes sat in tense circles in a downtown store, as if their quarry were nearby. But they wouldn't admit it in the face of mutterings heard among the searchers earlier in the day. One man was questioned and released.

Coroner Atkinson's verdict was that the child came to her death from a stab wound through the aorta, a main body blood vessel, and the liver. The single thrust caused death by internal hemorrhage. Dr. Atkinson said the child was previously attacked.

The little brown-haired girl was last seen alive walking proudly to commencement exercises at grammar school, where she had won a prize for perfect attendance during the winter term.

A young man resident of the town told New York State's "Scotland Yard" he had seen her going down North street about 7:45 p. m. Just before that she had stopped at two stores looking for her brothers.

Hundreds Join Searchers.

Nothing more was seen of her until today. Under the impression the child was staying with friends, Mrs. Glenn did not report the absence of her daughter to police until yesterday morning. Their search fruitless, the police called in the State police, and welcomed townspeople in the hunt.

This morning hundreds of men and Boy Scouts joined in the search. Just after noon John Zivelli and Roy Lawyer found the body near a junk pile at the end of a lane near Basic Creek. The clothing was torn almost off.

The men called troopers, who sent the body to Dr. Atkinson at Catskill.

"This is a horrible case," he said after the autopsy. "I have information indicating that a suspect is under surveillance, but I do not think anything definite will develop until late tonight or early tomorrow."

Mrs. Glenn collapsed late today, and tonight a physician was called to the home. Her condition is serious.

Fear of Blight Boosts Wheat

Prices Jump Five Cents With Chicago Traders on Buying Spree.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, June 28.—Reported appearance of black rust, scourge of wheat fields, electrified American grain markets today and wheat prices jumped five cents a bushel, the maximum gain permitted for one day.

Fears that United States wheat had been attacked unusually early by the rust because of damp weather, and that widespread destruction might result, gripped traders as buying orders deluged the pits.

Chicago wheat futures prices soared to 88 cents a bushel for December and 85⅞ cents for September just before the close. July wheat at Minneapolis jumped to 96⅝ cents and the Kansas City market also registered a five-cent advance.

Evidence that the dread rust had spread throughout a considerable area of winter wheat in Nebraska and in spring wheat at various points in the Red River valley was contained in trade advices received just before the close.

Today's price jump marked the first pronounced interruption in the recent steady decline of wheat values from dollar levels that prevailed earlier in the year. Dropping prices have accompanied the breaking of widespread drought over the grain belt. Recently, however, the abundance of rainfall has given rise to fears of harvest delays in Southwestern winter wheat territory.

Speculators immediately poured buying orders into the wheat pit and the volume of trading swelled to proportions that taxed market facilities. Other grains rose with wheat.

Veteran Admits Threat to Prober

Bernard Lawler, a disabled World War veteran, entered a plea of guilty in Police Court yesterday on a charge of threatening bodily harm to M. P. McInerny, a special investigator of the Veterans' Administration. The case was taken under advisement by Judge John P. McMahon.

McInerny told the court that Lawler was one of many who habitually write letters to the Veterans' Administration. Several hundred letters which had been written by the defendant were presented in evidence. The first letter, it was said, was written when Lawler's compensation was cut from $100 to $50 per month.

It was testified that Lawler had embarrassed McInerny by threatening him while on the street in the downtown section.

Pig Crop Down 20%, Shortage Will Continue

7,405,000 Head Drop Is 40% Under '33 Figure, U. S. Reports.

By the Associated Press.

A decrease of 20 per cent in the 1935 spring pig crop, as compared with the small 1934 spring crop, was reported yesterday by the Department of Agriculture.

Officials said "this means very definitely that the pork shortage will continue until the spring and summer of 1936."

The department's pig crop report, as of June 1, estimated the number of pigs saved in the spring season of 1935—December 1, 1934, to June 1, 1935—at 30,402,000 head for the United States, a decrease of 7,405,000, or 19.6 per cent from the number saved in the spring of 1934.

This estimate, the report said, is a decrease of 40 per cent, or 20,814,000 head, from the average number saved in the spring of 1932 and 1933.

22 Per cent Drop in Corn Belt.

In the corn belt, the department said, the number of spring pigs saved this year is estimated at 23,703,000 head, a decrease of 22.3 per cent from 1934 and 42 per cent from the 1932-33 average.

Blaming the short 1934 corn crop for the decrease in the 1935 pig crop, officials declined to comment upon the possible effect of the pork situation upon the price of meat.

Noting that in the principal hog States production in 1935 will be below the maximum allowed under the corn-hog adjustment program, Gerald B. Thorne, director of the division of live stock and feed grains, said that the AAA is attempting to increase the hog crop to normal.

1935 Quotas Increased.

Thorne said that whereas the 1934 hog contracts provided that farmers might not produce more than 75 per cent of the 1932-33 average, the 1935 contracts allowed 90 per cent of the 1932-33 average. This allowance, he said, is more than the farmers can produce, but the 10 per cent limitation was included to present over-expansion in corn acreage next year.

The bulk of the 1935 contracts have been signed, Thorne said, but no decision concerning a program for 1936 will be reached until fall.

The number of sows to farrow in the fall season of 1935—June 1 to December 1—was estimated by the department at 3,175,000 head, an increase of 19.5 per cent over the number farrowed in the fall of 1934, but 37 per cent below the 1932-33 average.

Buelah Ingalls Estate Valued at $254,279

New York, June 28 (AP).—A net estate of $254,279 was left by Beulah S. Ingalls, who died January 1, a tax appraisal showed today.

Six persons will receive equal shares in the residue, among them Albert S. Ingalls, of Cleveland, Ohio; Fay Ingalls, of Hot Springs, Va.; Melville E. Ingalls 3d, of Indianapolis, Ind., and Katherine I. Sloan, of Warrenton, Va.

Regents Ask Dr. Pearson To Quit Post

further charged that the school was deteriorating under his policies.

Editorial Started Quiz.

Shortly after the appearance of the editorial, the board of regents began an investigation. A month ago the board sent a questionnaire to the deans and heads of the departments, asking their views on the Pearson administration.

Yesterday the board met in Baltimore to take final action in the light of the information it had gathered.

Gov. Harry W. Nice of Maryland was expected to sit in with the board at its meeting yesterday. However, he failed to appear.

While the regents were in session, Dr. Frederic Lee, formerly dean of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences of the University of Maryland, arrived on the scene. He sent in a note, but was not invited to testify.

Difficulties With Lee.

Dr. Lee resigned from the University of Maryland after difficulties with Dr. Pearson. He said he was summoned yesterday by Dr. Pearson to testify on the latter's behalf.

It was generally understood yesterday that no successor will be appointed to Dr. Pearson in the near future. Until one is appointed, H. C. (Curley) Byrd, vice president of the school, will take over the duties of president.

Dr. Pearson came to the University of Maryland nine years ago from Iowa State College, where he was president. He was widely known as a specialist in dairy farming and as a leader in various agricultural projects.

He was Assistant Secretary of Agriculture under President Wilson in the World War period.

Reached at his home in Hyattsville last night, Dr. Pearson said he would have no comment to make on the day's proceedings other than to say that the board had "handed him a statement in confidence."

Armed Pickets Enforce Ban On Virginia Potato Haulings

per, said diggin had been halted in Norfolk and Princess Anne counties and that no more potatoes would be dug until Tuesday.

Representatives Flannagan, of Bristol; Bland of Newport News, and Darden, of Norfolk, announced they were putting their support behind the bill now in the Agriculture Committee to give preferred status to potatoes.

Farmers throughout the shore section said they had lost heavily on their potato crops for several years and that they face virtual bankruptcy if they lose money again.

State Troops Asked In Potato War

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., June 28.—State police headquarters here said tonight that authorities in the Eastern Shore potato war area had appealed for State troopers, but that no men had been sent yet.

Headquarters said State troopers could only be ordered into action on the word of the Governor and that any appeal for their aid to keep order would have to go first to the Governor's office for approval.

Headquarters said they had not been informed of a reported march by a party of potato pickets to Deep Creek, near Norfolk, with the avowed intention of dumping potatoes reported being loaded aboard a ship there.

By the Associated Press.

Impelled by reports of a potato shippers strike on the eastern shore of Virginia, the House Agriculture Committee yesterday took up a bill to place that commodity under the Agriculture Adjustment Administration. The committee decided, however, to put off action until its next meeting Monday.

Virginia farmers were said to be considering asking growers in Maryland and North Carolina to join them in the strike.

The administration said the potato market is usually unsettled until after July 4, and it so happened the eastern shore crop is ready for market now. Quotations available to the administration indicated potato prices now are low in all sections where they are grown. This was attributed largely to last year's big crop.

The potato bill, introduced by Representative Warren (Democrat), of North Carolina, early in the session, has been before the committee several months. It provides that the Secretary of Agriculture shall determine the quantity of potatoes that should be produced to maintain a balance between the production, sale and consumption such as would tend to establish prices to potato producers at a level that would "give potatoes a purchasing power, with respect to articles farmers buy, equivalent to the purchasing power of potatoes in the period August 1919-1929."

The bill provides for taxing all potatoes produced in excess of the specified allotments. The tax would be imposed on the first sale of the potatoes.

Police Seek 'Major' In $40 Job Swindle

Man Bilked Being Hired as Butler-Chauffeur.

Police consider the man who swindles another by offering him a job the meanest type of crook. Yesterday they were searching for a "Major Foeno" on such charges.

Philip Keyes, of 1731 Willard street, said the Major, whom he met in front of a downtown hotel, offered him a job as a butler-chauffeur.

A uniform was necessary, Keyes said the Major told him, so they went to an F street clothing store. While Keyes was being fitted, his prospective employer disappeared with $40, which Keyes had given him to pay for the clothes.

The swindler was described as about 50 years old, 160 pounds, with one upper gold tooth and as wearing a brown suit, brown shoes and a light hat.

Thief Trap Kills Child.

San Bernardino, Calif., June 28 (AP).—In childish curiosity, Robert Sutt, 4, climbed a fence today to investigate a wire his father, an electrical expert, had rigged around the back yard enclosure to protect chickens and rabbits from thieves. Playmates ran away screaming. The bay was electrocuted.

Hart, Oil Magnate, Weds After Divorce

Reno, Nev., June 28 (AP).—Frank C. Hart, wealthy New York & Connecticut Oil Co. president, and his bride, the former Muriel Constance Woodworth, of New York, flew to a Pebble Beach, Calif., honeymoon tonight following Hart's divorce and remarriage in Nevada.

The two were married at the Washoe Pines Ranch, 25 miles south of Reno, a few hours after the bridegroom had won a private trial default divorce decree from the former Marion Alexander, of Orange, N. J., whom he married April 29, 1929.

General Mills Starts Court Fight on AAA

Minneapolis, June 28 (U.P.).—General Mills, Inc., world's largest milling organization, tonight challenged the New Deal's AAA program with announcement of a series of injunction suits to stop collection of processing taxes. Decision to contest the validity of the processing tax was announced by B. D. Davis, president of the company, which has outlets in every State of the Union.

He said the first action was filed in Buffalo, N. Y., today. It will be followed Monday by proceedings in St. Paul and practically every major city in the country, Davis said. Davis served notice on the Federal Administration, of the pending action, in a telegram to Henry A. Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture.

Hartney Named to Aid Probe of Cutting Fatality

Harold Evans Hartney, commander of the First Pursuit Group of the A. E. F., will serve as technical expert and aid to the members of the Senate committee investigating the airplane crash that took the life of Senator Bronson Cutting and four others.

Announcement of the appointment was made yesterday by the Senate Commerce Committee. Almost immediately the war-time flier and aviation engineer started a study of the 981 pages of testimony and reports made by inspectors of the Bureau of Air Commerce into the crash in May at Macon, Mo.

No date has been set for the start of the hearings. Hartney served in France with Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, Quentin Roosevelt and other prominent war-time American aviators.

Goes to Jail After Seance.

Army Officers' Bill Is Sent to House

A bill to insure speedier promotion for young Army officers, passed by the Senate, now rests with the House.

Under the bill, first and second lieutenants would be raised to higher grades at the expiration of a fixed number of years instead of being obliged to wait for the whole promotion list to move ahead. The bill permits a greater number of captains, majors, lieutenant colonels and colonels.

Second lieutenants would be promoted to first lieutenants after three years' service, and first lieutenants would become captains after 10 years' service.

Secretary of the Navy Swanson yesterday ordered enlistments resumed on July 1 at the rate of 1,500 monthly. Swanson's move will bring the enlisted strength of the Navy up to 93,000, the figure authorized by the $460,000,000 appropriation bill for next year. The Navy's present strength is 82,500.

Damage Is Heavy In Hawaii Quake

By the Associated Press.

Hilo, Hawaii, June 28.—Damage estimated by officials at several thousand dollars was done here today by an earthquake, the severest in many years.

The quake at 9 a. m. (2:30 p. m. Eastern standard time) exacted a heavy toll in damage to Government and private buildings and to dwellings.

No injuries were reported. Effort to contact officials at the Kilauea Volcano Observatory were unsuccessful, as it was reported all members of the staff were at the fire pit, but it was said that two tremendous slides accompanied the shocks, foreshadowing volcanic activity.

Aid Fund Asked By Coast Guard To Build Fleet

Wants $27,013,000 to Get 183 Boats for War on Smugglers.

By the Associated Press.

The Coast Guard set out yesterday to obtain fast boats and modern equipment to deal with the smugglers that have sprung up to succeed the rum runners of prohibition days.

It asked the Works Administration for $27,013,000 with which to build or buy 183 boats, ranging from 26-foot motor boats to full-sized cutters, practice ships and patrol boats.

The new equipment is wanted by the Coast Guard to enforce the projected legislation giving the President authority to establish anti-smuggling zones fifty miles off the coast, to combat a growing rum row and dope smugglers.

Pending in Senate.

Legislation providing for the big zones has already passed the House and is pending in the Senate. It is high on the calendar as Administration legislation.

Meantime, the division of applications of the works program disclosed that the Coast Guard asked for an additional $2,280,745 for reconstructing and reconditioning Coast Guard stations. A good share of this was to go for building or repairing telephone and cable lines to speed the information gathering facilities of the service.

Make-Up of Fleet.

While a complete assignment chart for the new craft will not be drawn up until they are bought, a general plan for using the money, if it is approved by President Roosevelt, was outlined. It includes:

Six fast 25-knot patrol boats for anti-smuggling, $6,708,000.

Nine habor cutters for ice breaking and assistance, $1,689,000.

Thirty 80-foot speed patrol boats, $1,500,000.

Ten 85-foot harbor craft, $1,041,000.

Sixty 38-foot cabin picket boats for chasing smugglers into the shallow streams that abound along the coasts, particularly along the Louisiana and Mississippi bayou regions, $526,000.

Ten high-speed 65-foot patrol boats, $261,000.

Bardo Wires Roosevelt To Veto Wagner Bill

Cleveland, June 28 (AP).—C. L. Bardo, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, telegraphed President Roosevelt late today asking him to veto the Wagner-Connery labor dispute bill.

Bardo, here on business, wired the President that the legislation is unconstitutional and unwise in policy.

"The unfair practices of the bill are so ambiguously defined as to defy interpretation and excited continuing disputes and litigation rather than bring understanding and harmony," Bardo's telegram added.

Cuba to Pay 4 Million On Her Foreign Debt

Havana, June 28 (AP).—Cuba today decided to resume payments on part, at least, of her foreign debt. A budget for 1935-1936 totaling $65,125,000, which was approved by the cabinet, provided $4,000,000 for part amortization of the Speyer and Morgan loans on which service was suspended by decree in April, 1934.

The moratorium then declared was to continue "until the government's income reaches $60,000,000 annually," which it did this year. Other foreign obligations in default were not mentioned in the budget.

Britain to Send Expert To China Money Parley

London, June 28 (AP).—Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, British government financial expert, will leave for China August 10 to discuss financial and economic problems with the Nanking government.

While his plans are still incomplete, it has been suggested Sir Frederick may go by way of Washington in order to discuss Chinese financial problems with American officials.

Fire Again Flares On Morro Castle

Baltimore, Md., June 28 (U.P.).—Fire again broke out today on the ill-fated Ward liner Morro Castle, which burned off the New Jersey coast last fall with a loss of more than 100 lives. No one was hurt.

Bilge oil in the hull of the ship, which is being cut up in the Fairfield docks here, caught fire and dense black clouds attracted thousands to the wreckers' yards. Two fireboats confined the flames to the dismantled hull.

Betty Donnelly Freed On Narcotics Charge

New York, June 28 (AP).—Federal Judge William Bondy today dismissed the indictment charging Betty Donnelly, 23-year-old former "Vanities" girl, with conspiracy to violate the narcotic laws.

The trial of Nathan Cosman and I. Rosenberg, who were charged jointly with Miss Donnelly, was continued. Miss Donnelly said she was a former resident of Washington, D. C., and of Baltimore.

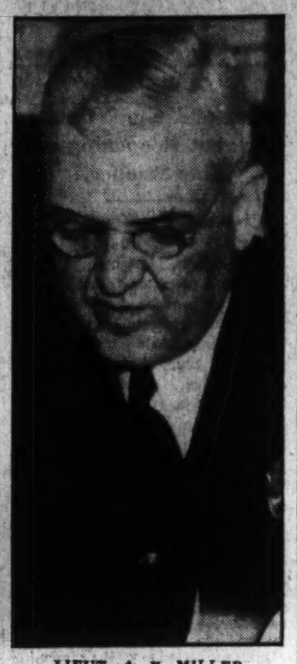
LaGuardia Loses Vote On Power Yardstick

New York, June 28 (AP).—The City Board of Estimate today defeated Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia's plan to construct a $45,000,000 municipal light and power plant to be used "as a yardstick" to force down electric rates.

LaGuardia immediately announced that he would move toward the passage of a local law putting the question to the voters in a referendum.

Given Promotions on Police Force

CAPT. EDWARD J. KELLY.



LIEUT. A. E. MILLER.

Headley Given Bean's Position On Police Force

Named Assistant Superintendent as Blanton Visits Commissioners.

the Blanton-instigated House committee, said he had known Maj. Hesse to take a drink of liquor while on duty.

Inspector Headley subsequently was reduced to captain. Backed by Blanton he later was promoted once more to be an inspector.

Retirement of Inspector Bean has been regarded as imminent for some time. When it first was rumored, Blanton won from Maj. Brown a promise to promote Inspector Headley, who was senior in service among the inspectors, to be assistant superintendent. During the recent hearings before the House District Crime Committee, correspondence was introduced. One letter written by Maj. Brown to Blanton, then in Texas, said he would carry out the agreement to promote Headley. The agreement, Maj. Brown wrote, had been approved by Commissioner Hazen. The Commissioner told the committee he had not made any agreement.

Immediately after they had reversed their decision in the Headley matter yesterday, both Commissioner Hazen and Allen left the District Building. Hazen went fishing, but not with Representative Blanton. Allen went to New York to attend a regional conference on the new Federal works program. Neither would say anything beyond formal announcement of the board action. Nor would Col. Sultan.

Leaves It to People.

Chairman Mary T. Norton, of the House District Committee, when asked to comment on Headley's appointment, said:

"I leave it to the people of the District to decide on the justice or injustice of the appointment. If they can take it, I can."

Kelly's promotion had been expected. He has been a captain in command of the Third Precinct. Prior to that he was one of the outstanding men in the Detective Bureau.

He will begin his duties as inspector Monday, taking over supervision of the first inspection district. Inspector Edwards will continue to have supervision of the second inspection district, while Assistant Superintendent Headley will exercise general supervision over both districts.

Under a new policy adopted yesterday, Kelly and Beckett will alternate every six months, each taking over the other's district.

Capt. Miller, 41 years of age, will be the youngest captain on the force. He has been acting as assistant to Inspector L. I. H. Edwards, assistant superintendent of police. Capt. Miller has had charge of the statistical bureau of the department. He will take command of the Third Precinct. Lieut. Truscott will be assigned as night inspector. Lieut. Lawrence R. Beall, now in the Traffic Bureau, will become aid to Inspector Edwards. Capt. Sidney Marks will go from command of the Eleventh Precinct, where he has been for several years, to the Twelfth Precinct. Capt. Hugh H. Groves will go from the Twelfth to the Eleventh Precinct.

Entire Force Helped.

The wholesale shift of police officers was made, according to Maj. Brown, because it was believed it would be "beneficial to the entire force and do the department the greatest amount of good."

Lieutenants who get new assignments were:

D. J. Cullinane, from Twelfth to Fifth Precinct; H. G. Callahan, from the police school to the First Precinct; W. H. Thomas, from the First Precinct to the police school; L. E. Kelly, from Fifth to Eleventh Precinct; J. R. Jefferies, from Eleventh to Ninth Precinct; A. I. Bullock, from Traffic Bureau to Third; F. A. Varney, from Ninth to Traffic Bureau; J. W. McGinnes, from Third to Twelfth; J. J. Bourke, from Tenth to Seventh Precinct, and L. D. Redman, from Seventh to Tenth.

Sergeants changed were R. C. Pearce, from First to Second; H. C. Blackman, from Tenth to First; J. J. Knight, from Third to Tenth.

Private O. K. Stanton, from Seventh to Sixth.

Also announced was the promotion of Private J. O. Curtis to the rank of Precinct Detective. Curtis, who has made an exceptional record in spotting stolen cars with the Traffic Bureau, will remain there, being a precinct detective without a precinct.

Alaskan Colony Calmed by Cut In Food Prices

Officials Silent on Plans to 'Deport' Agitators at U. S. Settlement.

By the Associated Press.

Palmer, Alaska, June 28. — A speedy settlement of the controversy involving the Government's Matanuska Valley colony was presaged by developments tonight.

Six families who signed up to leave the colony because of their dissatisfaction began selling their household goods preparatory to returning to the States.

Project officials remained silent on reports that discontented heads of other families might be "deported" as "agitators."

A reduction in prices at the colony commissary and an investigation of its management helped to soothe the feelings of settlers who had insisted prices were higher than justified.

Buildings Speeded.

Skilled workmen, 225 of them, were being moved in to rush the building of houses to shelter the more than 900 colonists before the closing in of the long sub-Arctic winter.

Eugene Carr, "trouble shooter" for the Federal Emergency Relief Administration, was due to arrive here tonight or tomorrow to review the situation and make any changes held necessary.

At the same time Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins in Washington announced he was sending S. R. Fuller, jr., of New York, to the Matanuska Valley to see that home construction is rushed.

Bills Stir Complaints.

The six families which signed up to leave the colony complained vigorously when informed they would have to pay their commissary bills before departing. They argued they would have nothing left after paying their account.

A shortage of reading matter and a rabid dog scare developed yesterday. One woman reported she walked 15 miles for an armful of reading matter after tiring of a pile of old newspapers.

Project Manager Don Irwin ordered all dogs tied up or held on leash because several canines killed recently were believed to have been rabid. Apparently no person had been bitten, however.

Most of the 200 families quietly continued their job of carving out homes in the wooded valley.

San Francisco Forms League Replacing NRA

Sponsors Expect to Sell Fair-Play Pledge to 7,000 Merchants.

By the Associated Press.

San Francisco, June 28.—A voluntary "fair play league," built in San Francisco on the ashes of the late Blue Eagle, was offered by its sponsors today as a potential Nation-wide instrument for maintaining the wages, working conditions and trade practices of the old NRA.

Members of the league pledge themselves to maintain the wages, working conditions and business practices prevailing in the first part of 1935.

Twenty trade associations indorsed the plan as it came into existence yesterday and its sponsors set out immediately expecting to sign up 7,000 San Francisco merchants, affecting 40,000 employes, in the retail section of industry, with the idea of making the league a community-wide affair.

Plan Attracts Attention.

Will Merryman, managing director of the league, announced the plan had attracted the attention of other cities—among them Milwaukee, Wis., and Oakland, Calif.

Almost simultaneously, 11,000 retail grocers and 100 wholesalers at Los Angeles agreed to adopt a new code against price-fixing, false advertising and unfair trade practices, effective also next Monday. The Los Angeles Movement is not connected with the San Francisco plan, however.

Carefully avoiding any mention of the Blue Eagle or the NRA, the pledge requires each signer:

1. Not to reduce wages from those prevailing the first part of this year.

2. Not to work employes longer than they were working early in 1935.

Pledge for Employes.

3. To acept the early 1935 rules regarding child labor and employe rights.

5. Not to sell as a "loss leader" merchandise below cost, except to meet a price set by a competitor.

Merryman said the league had encountered but "one or two" holdouts thus far among the merchants.

The league has no disciplinary power other than to cancel memberships. Its emblem is copyrighted.

W. H. Loughry, who was secretary of the grocery code authority at Los Angeles under the NRA, said the agreement there would stop sub-cost selling of "leaders.' The code provides for a retail price of not less than wholesale cost, plus 6 per cent.

Lutherans to Place 300 New Ministers

Cleveland, June 28 (AP).—The thirty-sixth triennial convention of the Missouri Synod, Evangelical Lutheran Church, adopted today a plan for placing approximately 300 recently ordained ministers.

The delegates, at their concluding session, empowered the 30 district presidents of the synod to carry out the program.

It provides for congregations to increase mission-fund contributions, placing the 300 as assistant pastors, and appealing for special financial aid from church societies and individuals.

Crippled Pickets Freed.

New York, June 28 (AP).—Suspended sentences were given seven cripples and one tubercular man today after their conviction as disorderly pickets. Three others were sentenced to serve five days in jail or pay $25 fines. Their attorneys said that the men would have to serve the jail terms. All were arrested June 6 following upon a "hunger strike" demonstration in front of emergency relief headquarters.

Bride, 27, Ready to Aid Poet In Destroying 'Phobic Prison'

After Her Wedding Today She'll Try to Lower 'Invisible Walls.'

By the Associated Press.

Madison, Wis., June 28.—A prospective bride stood on the threshold of the "phobic prison" tonight ready to help beat down the invisible walls which for years have confined Prof. William Ellery Leonard, of the University of Wisconsin.

Pretty 27-year-old Grace Golden, a university graduate student, was the second woman who chose to share the "mental prison" with the white-haired scholarly poet. Their marriage is scheduled for tomorrow.

"It will not be a prison for me," confidently commented Miss Golden.

The 59-year-old professor said "she's not only a poet—she can cook, too."

After a private ceremony, the wife's duty, it was said, will be to remain at home so Leonard never will find it empty, or experience the strange fears and terrors of a "distance phobia," which has held him within an area of six square blocks from his home more than 20 years.

Last autumn, however, he extended "his beat" by venturing into the heart of downtown Madison. Since then the barriers have been receding gradually. The poet recently said his condition was improved, but added that by no means was he fully recovered.

In his book, "The Locomotive God," Leonard attributed his condition to reaction of a scare as a child, aggravated by incidents in his life. He said the fright grew on him after the suicide of his first wife in 1911. His second wife, first mate to live with him after the peculiar psychosis, won a default divorce, describing the effect of his phobia as "cruel and inhuman treatment."

Divorce in Stabbing.

Los Angeles, June 28 (AP).—Maurice Russell, motion picture dance director, was awarded a divorce today from Jayne Manners Russell, actress. He testified she stabbed him when he remonstrated with her for associating with other men.

2 of Quintuplets Walk, But 3 Sisters Tumble

Callander, Ontario, June 28 (AP).—Yvonne and Cecile Dionne entered their fourteenth month today with their feet on the ground, literally. The first of the quintuplets to stand up, they were the envy of sisters Annette, Emilie and Marie who, after a vain struggle to emulate them, tumbled back into their play pen.

Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, the country physician who has attended them since birth, May 28, 1934, ventured no prediction as to when the five sisters will walk. They will soon be able to play in the yard outdoors, where Yvonne and Cecile, his choice of "bright ones," may offer a surprise.

John T. Davis Is Dead at 60 In W. Virginia

Uncle of Former Senator Davis Elkins; Rites Here Tomorrow.

John T. Davis, son of a United States Senator and relative of two other Senators, died of heart disease in Elkins, W. Va., Thursday night, according to word received here yesterday.

Davis carried on a coal mining business in West Virginia. He was 60 years old.

A former Princeton athlete, Davis was well known to Washington society. Among others, he was a member of the Metropolitan Club and the Racquet Club here.

His father was the late Senator Henry G. Davis, of West Virginia, who ran for vice-president on the Democratic ticket with Alton B. Parker in 1904. His sister was the wife of the late Senator Stephen B. Elkins, and his nephew is former Senator Davis Elkins, both of West Virginia. Davis Elkins now lives at 2029 Connecticut avenue northwest.

Surviving John T. Davis are his wife, Mrs. B. Almstead Davis, of New York, from whom he was separated some years ago; two daughters, Mrs. Martin Hutchinson, of Ontario, Canada, and Miss Hallie Davis, who made her debut here in 1918; and a son, Henry G. Davis 3d, of New York and Newport, son-in-law of Commodore and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt.

Funeral services will be held here at 3 p. m. tomorrow.

D. C. Helps Family Ejected by House

Ragged Tennesseeans Show an Humble Dignity.

By the Associated Press.

Ragged and forlorn, but with an air of quiet and humble dignity, the Tennessee farm family who trudged out of the House gallery Thursday, when the doorkeeper objected to the mother nursing her youngest child there, were in the care of transient relief officals yesterday.

Everett Parker, the 44-year-old husband and father, who said he brought his wife and four children to the Capital in the hope of getting some shoes for his brood, wanted to find a job, but that became a problem when it was learned he was illiterate and that he also has a disability which prevents him from doing heavy labor.

"I guess we did look kind of droll," Parker said yesterday, in recalling Thursday's incident.

Bolt Kills Livestock, Destroys Farm Barn

Crisfield, Md., June 28.—Lightning struck a barn on the farm of Edward Long, near Marion, about eight miles from here, killed two cows, more than 300 chickens and set the barn afire. It was destroyed. Sparks set fire to the dwelling, but it was saved.

Farmers formed a bucket brigade and fought the blaze. The Marion and Crisfield fire departments responded, but were handicapped by lack of water.

Church Gets Image In Chimney 'Miracle'

By the Associated Press.

Uniontown, Pa., June 28.—A tile chimney that attracted thousands of persons to a miner's home because of shadings on it that resemble the picture of a holy figure has been removed to a community hall in nearby Fairchance for exhibition.

Father Thomas B. Harnyak, pastor of the Fairchance Catholic Church, said the chimney was removed because of threats to bomb the Sterle house and steal the "image."

Neighbors said the shadings appeared gradually on the chimney and some called it miraculous. Father Harnyak said he regards the phenomenon an "act of nature," likening it to coloring that covers an old smoker's pipe.

Shadyside Man Dies Of Wreck Injuries

Winchester, Va., June 28.—W. B. Faulkner, 26, of Shadyside, Md., died in Memorial Hospital today of injuries incurred Monday when his automobile and a West Virginia coal truck collided north of this city. The truck was driven by Claude McDonald, of Romney, W. Va.

Faulkner was a son of the late Rev. B. W. Faulkner, of Marysville, Ga. The body will be taken there tomorrow for burial. His mother and sister, Mrs. Y. W. Jones, of Clarmont, Ga., arrived yesterday. Other survivors include a sister, Mrs. J. T. Headon, of Wheeling, W. Va., and three brothers, Jack, of San Diego, Calif.; John and Clifford, both of Marysville. James Case, a passenger in Faulkner's car, is reported improving.

Fr. Albert Brown Dies at Georgetown

Was Formerly Rector of College in Philadelphia.

The Rev. Albert Brown, S. J., formerly rector of St. Joseph's College, Philadelphia, died of a heart attack yesterday at Georgetown University, where he had been in retirement for several years. He was 66 years old.

Father Brown was born in Baltimore and entered the Jesuit order in 1887. He had served as pastor of churches in Baltimore and Philadelphia, and had taught also in a number of schools. He came to Georgetown about four years ago, after having served a term as head of St. Joseph's College. Ill-health was the cause of his retirement.

He is survived by a sister and three brothers, Mrs. Henry Ford, Dr. Frank Brown and George M. Brown, all of Baltimore, and Charles Brown, of Detroit. A niece, Mrs. T. Baxter Milne, resides in Washington.

Services will be held Monday at 9 a. m. in Dahlgren Chapel, at Georgetown, followed by burial in the faculty cemetery.

Christian Science Theme of Lesson

Text of Discourse Tomorrow Is From Revelation.

"Christian Science" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all the Churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow. The Golden Text is from Revelation 12:10: "Now is come salvation, and strength, and the kingdom of our God, and the power of his Christ."

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "O Timothy, keep that which is committed to thy trust, avoiding profane and vain babblings, and oppositions of science falsely so called." (I Timothy 6:20). The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "We need to understand the affirmations of divine Science, dismiss superstition, and demonstrate truth according to Christ." (page 149).

The Rev. William L. DeVries, Ph.D., D.D., canon of the cathedral staff, will make the awards at the service of the holy communion at 11 a. m. in Bethlehem Chapel. The sermon will be preached by Canon Raymond L. Woven, chaplain to the Bishop of Washington.

Canon Anson Phelps Stokes will be preacher at the people's evensong service at 4 o'clock before the Peace Cross on Mount Saint Alban. The Cathedral Choir of men and boys will sing at both services.

Religious services at the cathedral are being held in Bethlehem Chapel and at the Peace Cross during the summer while the Great Choir is closed.

St. Luke's Episcopal Church. The Rev. J. E. Elliott, rector. Special efforts to raise funds for the church will be brought to a close at ceremonies at 11 a. m. services tomorrow. The Rev. Elliott will preach and conduct the prayer service.

The large choir, directed by Louis N. Brown, will sing for the last time before disbanding for the summer.

St. Andrew's Episcopal Church. The Rev. A. J. Wilder, pastor. Holy Communion will be celebrated at 8 a. m. The rector will preach at morning services scheduled for 11 o'clock.

All Saints Episcopal Church. The Rev. Henry Teller Cocke, rector. The Rev. Cocke will preach at 11 a. m. tomorrow on "Religion Reconsidered." The sermon will be his last before leaving on a month's vacation at Avon-by-the-Sea, N. J.

All Saints Church will be host to other congregations at Union Protestant Vesper services at 7 p. m. The Rev. J. Luther Neff, pastor of Wesley M. E. Church, will preach.

Rabbi Gerstenfeld Relieves Dr. Simon

Leads Services at Hebrew Congregation.

Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld, of New York, took charge of summer services at Washington Hebrew Congregation by officiating at services last night. He will take the place of Dr. Abram Simon, regular rabbi, who will spend the summer in Atlantic City, N. J.

After divine services members of the sisterhood and brotherhood gave Rabbi Gerstenfeld a reception in the vestry rooms of the temple at 816 Eighth street northwest.

Upon Dr. Simon's return, Rabbi Gerstenfeld will serve as assistant through the fall holy days.

Editor Will Address Men of Lincoln Temple

Col. West A. Hamilton, editor and publisher of the Washington Sentinel, will address members of the Men's Brotherhood at Lincoln Congregational Temple, colored, tomorrow morning. The group will meet at 10 a. m. At church services at 11 a. m. the pastor, Dr. R. W. Brooks, will preach on "The Heroic Doubter."

'Radiant Christ' Will Continue On Exhibit Here

Painting at Epiphany Church Shows Jesus' Feeling for Children.

The exhibit of "The Radiant Christ," a large painting depicting the happy relationship that existed between Jesus and little children, will be extended through next week at the Church of the Epiphany.

Scores of requests to keep the picture on public view have come from those who have seen it in the last two weeks, W. J. Moore, who is managing the exhibit, explained yesterday.

The oil painting, 6 feet wide and 9 feet tall, is the work of an artist whose conception of the Christ is different from that of a "Man of Sorrows." Moore said he gave the artist, whose name is not disclosed, the idea for this "Radiant Christ" after a vision which came over him several years ago, while working as a lay reader in Kentucky.

Several Washington clergymen have viewed "The Radiant Christ," declaring it "a noble work," and an "inspiration."

On the canvas Christ is pictured walking through a field of roses of Sharon. He is carrying a small child in one arm, and leading a second with the other. All are smiling.

"The primary object in giving this picture to our people is to arouse them from their religious indifference, apathy, lukewarmness and supineness," Moore said.

Exhibition hours are from 9 a. m. until 1 p. m. and from 2 until 5 p. m. Recognizing the appeal of the art piece to children, Moore has set aside Tuesday as children's day.

Women Renew Fight to Force Probe of Long

Letter to Garner Challenges Senate Committee to Deny Charges.

By the Associated Press.

A letter renewing the attack of the women's committee of Louisiana upon Senator Long (Democrat), Louisiana, was sent to Vice President Garner yesterday by Mrs. Hilda Phelps Hammond, for the committee.

The Vice President had no comment on the letter.

It said:

"Press reports quote Senator George as saying that he examined the petition of the women's committee of Louisiana, on your request, and found it 'contained nothing new, was scurrilous, and not of a character that it should be received by the Senate.'

"You know, Mr. Garner, and we know, that by only one acid test can it be decided whether the subject matter in this petition is scurrilous or not, namely—are the facts in this petition true?

"Is it true, Mr. Garner, that not one member of the Senate committee, after Senator Howell's death, would look at one word of evidence in the files nor permit the investigator to investigate for even one day?

"Is it true, Mr. Garner, that the Connally committee in spite of its whitewashing attempts was forced to report to the Senate that the methods employed by Mr. Long to elect Mr. Overton were 'damnable, vicious and abhorrent,' and 'a fraud on the rights of any free people?'

"Is it true, Mr. Garner, that the United States Senate has never acted on the Connally report?

"Is it true, Mr. Garner, that Senator George's committee has never heard a single one of our witnesses nor examined a single piece of evidence in support of the charges of the women's committee of Louisiana?

"In short, Mr. Garner, is the hideous story laid bare in this petition buttressed by truth? That is the acid test, for what is true and is uttered for the public good cannot be scurrilous.

"We challenge Mr. George's committee or any other Senate committee to defend the statements made in this petition in public hearings."

Harrisburg, Pa., June 28 (AP).—Senator Huey P. Long (Democrat), Louisiana, visited the Gettysburg Battlefield today and said afterwards:

"If I had been there I could have told Gen. Lee how to whip those fellows."

Friends said he was on a week-end pleasure trip.

King George Votes School Levy of $1

Plan to Cut Appropriation Defeated Decisively.

By the Associated Press.

Fredericksburg, Va., June 28.—King George County voters registered themselves today as decidedly in favor of maintaining school appropriations at the present level instead of reducing them as ordered by the board of supervisors.

The board had cut the school levy from $1 to 90 cents without corresponding reduction in the total county tax.

A special election held today for the citizens to act on the subject showed the vote at three precincts was 161 for the $1 levy and 67 against it. One remaining precinct was not available tonight, but was not expected to materially alter the margin of victory for the school advocates, all three of those reporting being largely in favor of the higher tax.

Staunton Buries Its City Manager

By the Associated Press.

Staunton, Va., June 28.—Funeral services were held in the First Baptist Church here today for James Clay Ruff, city manager of Staunton, who was fatally injured in a baseball accident Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Ruff died almost instantly after being struck over the heart by a bat which slipped from the hands of another player.

Services were conducted by the Rev. Dr. John J. Gravatt, rector of Trinity Episcopal Church, and the Rev. I. T. Jacobs, pastor of the First Baptist Church.

City officials, including the mayors, councilmen, police chiefs and other officials of Staunton and nearby Waynesboro as well as fellow Rotary Club members and friends and relatives attended the services. Mr. Ruff was buried in Thornrose Cemetery. Stores closed during the services, and city hall activities were suspended.

La Follette Defeated On State Works Plan

Madison, Wis., June 28 (U.P.).—Gov. Philip F. La Follette's plan to obtain $100,000,000 from the $4,000,000,000 Federal Work Relief fund for use in Wisconsin under State rather than Federal administration was killed late today by the State Senate.

It was the second defeat for the program by which the Governor hoped to accomplish a works program totaling $209,000,000 with the Government's $100,000,000 started and eventually to return $30,000,000 to the Federal Government.

Relief Camp Strikers May Be Starved Out

Regina, Saskatchewan, June 28 (U.P.).—A virtual siege was ordered tonight in an effort to "starve out" 2,000 relief camp strikers who have been here for the past fortnight following orders by the Royal Canadian mounted police prohibiting them from continuing their "On to Ottawa" march from Vancouver.

Federal officials instructed Regina residents and farmers not to feed the strikers, on threat of prosecution.

Hopkins Greets Gen. Johnson Here

which the division is a part, is expected to continue.

Frank C. Walker, head of the NEC, is expected to remain in his present capacity for the time being, although it was reliably stated yesterday that he has been offered appointment as Postmaster General when James A. Farley resigns to take charge of the forthcoming Democratic campaign. It was said Walker may not accept the appointment.

When the works program was set up it was expected that a deluge of applications would be received. Arrangement was made for elaborate filing systems and for handling a tremendous amount of correspondence. Everybody was ready to be swamped with work. Comparatively little happened.

There are several reasons for this situation. The three principal works divisions—applications, PWA and works progress—have representatives in each State. Much of the business was handled through State offices rather than in Washington. Then the President insisted that the cost of projects must average not more than $1,143 per man per year. Persons with ideas for spending the money are still figuring out how they can come within this limitation. Added to this, cities were told that the Government would gladly give them 45 per cent of the cost of their more elaborate projects, but that they would have to borrow the remaining 55 per cent. This immediately had a dampening effect on the whole program.

A total of 2,257 applications for $2,009,719,658 has been filed; 319, asking for $600,416,066, have been withdrawn; 400, for $234,692,148, have been approved.

In addition, the following sums have been set aside, although in many instances no specific projects have been undertaken under the allotments:

Forestry service, $500,000.
Public roads, $400,000,000.
Lower Colorado River flood control, $20,000,000.
Statutory roads (allotment mandatory under the act), $100,000,000.
Rural resettlement, $7,000,000.
Direct relief, $545,000,000.
CCC, $222,084,000.
Rural resettlement (administrative expenses), $250,000.
Rural electrification (administrative expenses), $75,000.

This makes a grand total of $1,529,601,148 actualy alloted, of which more than one-third is for direct relief.

Of the 2,257 applications received, a majority are from Federal departments. They include hundreds of items requested by the Army, the Navy, the Department of Agriculture and other agencies. The approvals include funds for administrative expense allotted to the Treasury Department, the General Accounting Office and other Government agencies handling works program details. The applications include 67 housing projects totaling $249,000,000 sent to the Division of Applications and Information by Secretary Ickes. Twenty-four of these applications have been shunted to Comptroller General McCarl for approval.

Two of the first organizations set up are rural resettlement, headed by Undersecretay Tugwell, and rural electrification. Neither has made much definite progress in getting started. No projects have been submitted by the rural electrification division and no money other than that for administrative expenses has been allotted.

Under the original works plan, all applications, including those from PWA, were to go to the Division of Applications and Information. After they were passed on they were to be considered by the Works Progress Division to determine whether workers on relief were available in localities in which the projects were to be constructed. Then they were to go to the allotment board, headed by Secretary Ickes, and consisting of representatives of various departments and agencies, with a number of members from outside the Government. After the allotment board made recommendations, the expenditures were to be passed on by the President.

Thus far the machinery has functioned in this manner, but up to date only about $22,000,000 in local PWA projects has been approved. These are on the 45 per cent basis. Nearly all the rest have been Federal projects.

Under the proposal that a great many small projects be handled by Hopkins directly, as was done in connection with the CWA, much of the work of the DAI and the allotment board would be eliminated.

One of the principal reasons for the present delay in the entire program is said to be inability to decide on this new policy. President Roosevelt had an hour-and-a-half conference with Hopkins, Ickes and Walker Thursday. Hopkins again conferred with him yesterday.

While there have been protestations by both Hopkins and Ickes that there is no misunderstanding between them, it is reported that differences of opinion between the two on this subject have delayed a policy announcement.

The new plan would involve transfer of many thousands of workers now on FERA work relief to the new program. The jobs, as well as the workers, would be transferred in this "bookkeeping" transaction. However, a direct allotment of money would be necessary for this purpose. This allotment would be made without examination in detail into the thousands of FERA projects now under way.

New Taxation To Be Limited To 4-Ply Plan

"What the tax yield will be, of course, must depend on carefully worked out estimates, based on schedules finally agreed upon," he said. "Our experts are working day and night on schedules that will serve as a guide to the sub-committee. We hope they will be ready by July 8."

Reports were circulated in informed quarters yesterday that the $340,000,000 supposed yield from tentative schedules submitted early this week to the Senate Finance Committee, was a high overestimate.

Hill disclaimed knowledge of reports that the tentative schedules actually would yield only about $50,000,000, and that this was the primary reason for the week's postponement of hearings.

He insisted the question of yield was not discussed at recent conferences with Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, Herman Oliphant, Treasury counsel, and Guy T. Helvering, Internal Revenue Commissioner.

"It will be time to talk about yield when we decide on a specific nature of the taxes and determine a fair schedule of rates," he said.

Despite efforts of leaders to confine the program to the President's wealth-sharing program, however, numerous moves are underway in the House both for expansion and restriction of the program. A bonus rider, it was said in one quarter, is almost certain to be offered. Representative Fred Vinson (Democrat), of Kentucky, a member of the tax sub-committee, is considering one.

One method of avoiding innumerable tax riders—through a rock-ribbed gag rule prohibiting amendments—has yet to be considered by the sub-committee.

Speaker Byrns, however, said he has no intention of initiating such a rule. Even if one were imposed, the bill still would be wide open to floor amendments in the Senate, it was said.

Frank—Meet me for lunch today—there's a car advertised in the classified section that's a peach. '35 Oldsmobile—it has a radio, a trunk and almost everything that you can think of for only $595.

Raid on Peiping May Bring U. S. Troops to Arms

Intervention of Powers Reported as Possible Result of Fight.

Fengtai and advanced on the capital.

The mutineers, repulsed, returned again and again to the futile attack on the battle-scarred old walls of Peiping.

It was a noisy fight which lasted desultorily for hours, but was largely ineffective, although rifles, machine guns, trench mortars and a small field piece on the armored train were brought into action.

The armored train was one which belonged to Gen. Yu Hsueh-Chung, deposed as military governor of Hopei Province at the insistence of the Japanese. It had been turned over to Gen. Wan Fu-Lin, fifty-third army commander.

A group of 60 Chinese and Koreans in civilian clothes under Gen. Pai Chien-Wu, former chief of staff to Marshal Wu Pei-Fu, retired north China poet-war lord, were understood to have arrived at Fengtai from Teintsin and persuaded the armored train troops to attack Peiping.

Shots Defeat Besiegers.

They fired a few warning shots on approaching the Yungtingmen. The Peiping guards hastily slammed the great gate and destroyed a few rails outside it, so the train could not enter.

The Peiping defenders opened a heavy fire on the train at close range from the wall and it retreated slowly toward Fengtai. It moved up again at 1:30 a. m. yesterday, amid a burst of ineffective rifle fire.

The United Press correspondent heard the shooting and ran to the wall and saw 200 troops of the Peiping garrison arriving with trench mortars and machine guns. They scrambled to the top of the wall while men in the army labor corps began piling sandbags about the gate.

The train again retired in the face of these determined preparations for defense and for several hours there was a calm. A new atteack came at dawn. Soldiers hurriedly placed their mortars and machine guns. The engagement lasted about 15 minutes and insurgents then withdrew once more.

Shots Imperil Temple.

About 600 yards down the tracks, the train halted and fired several rounds from a 3-inch gun. The shrapnel burst high in the air toward the Temple of Heaven.

The Peiping defenders kept up a desultory fire and the train again withdrew in the distance. It returned once more and again opened fire at 7:40 a. m., concentrating on the gate. Bullets whistled over the soldiers and this correspondent as the fighting waxed hottest, and then the insurgents withdrew.

They last were seen from the Peiping wall at 11 a. m., steaming back to Fengtai.

Johnson's Plans Snared By Labor Disputes

By the Associated Press.

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson's plans for administering work relief in New York City yesterday became entangled with labor disputes in Ohio.

Johnson said he expected Edward F. McGrady, Assistant Secretary of Labor and an old friend from NRA days, to go with him to New York Monday. However, McGrady, whom Johnson wants as an assistant, will continue from there to Toledo to prepare a formula for settling labor disputes.

Both President Roosevelt and Johnson explained yesterday that McGrady would devote as much time as possible to the New York works progress administration, but it was said at the Labor Department his services would be required in Toledo three weeks. Disclosing he wanted another NRA associate, Alvin Brown, as an assistant, Johnson said that also was "up in the air."

working standards through a system of licensing industry.

The President was reported to have said he would consider the plan, but at his subsequent press conference he indicated he had not yet been impressed by any of the many plans for effectuating the former NRA objectives that have been submitted.

Free to Wind Up Program.

Mr. Roosevelt's word that he had nothing further at this time to propose to Congress left congressional leaders free to map out a course of action for winding up pending legislation as quickly as possible, with the exception of the President's tax program.

House leaders estimated they would be able to clear their "must calendar" again, with the exception of the tax bill, about July 13. In reaching this conclusion they believed they could pass the utility holding company bill Tuesday or Wednesday. A recess was planned for Thursday, the Fourth of July. Friday will be devoted to consideration of private bills.

This would leave only one week for the passage of the controversial TVA bill, the Guffey-Snyder coal stabilization bill, the measure closing the door on further gold-clause suits and a bill establishing a new form of Federal control over the liquor industry. In addition, there would be conference reports to consider on bills coming from the Senate.

House leaders believed they could handle all this work during the second week in July, but others thought it would be July 20 or later before Congress is able to lean on the oars. For one thing, the Senate may take a week or longer to debate the Eccles banking bill, due to reach the full Senate Banking and Currency Committee Monday. The Guffey-Snyder coal, the liquor control and gold-clause-suit bills have not yet been considered by the Senate.

Tax Bill Biggest Problem.

At all events, congressional leaders are anxious to complete action on their "must" calendar as quickly as posible in order that three-day recesses may be taken until the tax bill is ready for consideration. Adjournment depends on the speed with which the tax bill is handled, and some predict the measure will not be passed until late August or September.

The reason why it is desired to rush the pending measures and take three-day recesses until the tax bill comes up is to shut off opportunities for forcing on the House consideration of undesirable legislation. For instance, 202 members of the House have signed a petition to force to the floor the Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage refinancing bill, which provides $3,000,000,000 of currency inflation.

Should the advocates of that measure obtain 16 more signatures, or a majority of the House, they will be in a position to force a vote with certain success. But seven legislative days must elapse after the petition is signed by a majority and then the bill can be called up only on designated days. By having only two legislative days a week, as would be the case under the three-day recess plan, leaders can thwart any attempt to force a roll call on the bill.

Day before yesterday the Frazier-Lemke bloc had become a serious threat when they had 210 names on their petition. This so disturbed House leaders that they immediately went to work to dissuade some of the signers to withdraw their names and were successful in having the list decreased by nine names.

A City of Guinea Pigs?

With the completion of hearings on the Ellenbogen unemployment insurance bill it is evident that substantial amendments are desirable. In some respects it is far more liberal than the State laws already enacted or others prepared for enactment. The only reason for these wide differences appears to be a desire on the part of some Federal officials to use Washington as an experiment station.

Six States have enacted unemployment insurance laws. The most liberal of these (the New York, Utah and New Hampshire acts) would permit the payment of benefits for a maximum of only 16 weeks in any one year. Under the Ellenbogen bill the maximum for the District would be 26 weeks. The District Commissioners rightly fear that such a discrepancy might encourage an influx of workmen. It is partly for this reason that Corporation Counsel Prettyman has been asked to draw up an amendment to eliminate the proposed 1 per cent contribution by the District to the unemployment reserve fund.

Division of unemployment insurance costs among employers, employes and governmental units is fundamentally sound. The very fact that the District is now spending large sums to support jobless families on the dole suggests its responsibility in the matter. Unemployment is a social as well as an economic problem. When governments take control over systems designed to afford a solution they acquire an obligation to help share the expenses.

Thus far, however, no State has agreed to make any contribution, and none seems to contemplate such action in the initial stage of this undertaking. No doubt the House thought it wise to use the District as a good example. But in doing so there would be danger of putting the District at a disadvantage. Since employer contributions can not be reduced below the minimum prescribed in the Federal bill, and employe contributions are an essential feature of any sound job insurance system, the Commissioners' argument against a levy on the District gains additional strength. Certainly, it deserves careful analysis.

Another amendment being prepared by Mr. Prettyman to allow administration of the system by a local agency is unquestionably sound. A close relationship with the Federal Social Security Board should be maintained, but that agency should not directly control the District system any more than it controls State unemployment commissions. Even if the policy of using the Capital City as an experiment ground could be justified, it would be impractical in this case. Washington is not an industrial city. Its unemployment problem is in no way typical. If Congress is interested in establishing an ideal system for Washington, therefore, it will base each provision on local conditions and permit it to operate under a local agency.

Equally indefensible is the immediate imposition of a flat 3 per cent tax upon employers here, while in the States that maximum is to be approached on a graduated scale over three years. As Congress recognized in passing the national measure, there is danger that such a sudden addition to pay rolls might create unemployment instead of ameliorating its effects. Fortunately, there are indications that the Senate will weed out these highly experimental provisions and shape the bill to the District's specific needs.

Banking Bill Tactics.

Within three days of the time when the onerous requirements of the permanent system of deposit insurance would have become effective, the Senate and House agreed to a resolution extending the present temporary system of insurance for two months. The Senate originally had voted for a one-year extension period, and its acceptance of the House proposal is believed to assure action on the omnibus banking bill at this session of Congress. Otherwise Title I of that bill, which provides for a much modified system of permanent deposit insurance, would be held up and the much criticized postponed plan could not be evaded.

It would have been a much more reasonable proceeding to have separated Title I of the banking bill from the highly controversial Title II, which attempts to centralize control of credit operations in the Reserve Board. There is no pressing emergency requiring an early decision on this section of the bill. On the contrary, Congress needs a great deal of time to examine and discuss proposed changes in the credit mechanism and structural organization of the Reserve system.

By limiting extension of the temporary deposit system to a mere two months, an excuse has been afforded for attempting to force through the omnibus bill in its entirety before adjournment. Failure to act, it will be argued, would result in saddling the banks with a burdensome and dangerous kind of permanent deposit insurance. The maneuvers which have brought about this undesirable situation call attention most forcibly to the evils of hodge-podge measures which hamper careful consideration of specific legislative proposals on their merits.

Clarify The Objective.

The only estimate of revenue from the pending tax legislation so far advanced is that of $340,000,000, voiced by Senator Harrison. That estimate, accepted at face value, is a relatively small sum—about three-fourths of the appropriations for the Navy Department alone during the next fiscal year. But though totally inadequate for current fiscal needs, it is still probably far in excess of the yield which would be produced from legislation closely following the lines of the President's tax message.

When the Treasury tax experts early this week failed to submit computations to the Senate Finance Committee it was announced that they had not been able to complete their calculations. Now rumor has it that an entirely different reason was really responsible: that the calculations were finished but showed a probable tax yield so small as to make its publication politically impossible.

Some are even saying that $50,000,000—the budget of the recently announced "National Youth Administration"—is all that could be expected. That guess doubtless errs on the one side as much as that of $340,000,000 on the other. It doesn't really make much difference which is more nearly correct. The point is that the President based his "suggestions of important changes in our policy of taxation on the broad principle that . . . taxes must produce ample revenues without discouraging enterprise." Obviously the proposed legislation is not going to achieve the aim of "ample revenues." Is it likely to be more successful in averting the danger of "discouraging enterprise?"

The answer here also is all too likely to be in the negative. The most superficial examination of the proposals reveals their definitely punitive intent, and, of course, the less the probable revenue the more the element of punishment will stand out. Just for this reason it is important that detailed revenue estimates should be produced by the Treasury immediately. They will clarify the real objective of the measure, and understanding of its real objective must precede intelligent legislative consideration.

President Roosevelt has made a political blunder of the first magnitude by letting it appear that he wanted to force his tax program through without any examination or analysis. This, he now says, was not his real intention. But the President is none the less responsible if an alarmed public opinion feels that the intent is still to fool the Nation as to the real bearing and import of the tax program. The burnt child fears the fire, and the American people—who are not altogether children in their ability to see through disguised motives—have in the last two years experienced many instances of an unprecedented executive desire to push cloudy, devious and often unconstitutional measures into law.

If the tax bill is drawn in such form as to bring in virtually no revenue, while severely penalizing large corporations and wealthy individuals, its constitutionality under the "due process" clause will probably be in question. But over and beyond this consideration is the question of the economic effects of the proposed law.

Nothing is easier than the destruction of wealth. In many countries, in many periods of history, in many ways, it has been successfully carried out. Punitive taxation is probably as efficient a weapon for the purpose as any. This Administration will set no precedent if it tries that device now. It will set a precedent only if the program achieves any social benefit commensurate with the destruction envisaged. For, as the Russians would be the first to admit, the elimination of individual or corporate wealth is one thing, and its transfer to the pockets of the proletariat quite another.

Of all this the public has some inkling. It saw through Dr. Townsend's old-age pension plan and, given a little time for reflection, it will see through an irrational and superficial "share-the-wealth" tax program just as clearly. But if Dr. Townsend had been in a position to crack the whip, to hold patronage and relief funds over the head of Congress, to put his program through without any competent examination or criticism—the outcome there might have been very different.

That is why there is today a widespread feeling that the country skirted the abyss this week. And that is why there is growing insistence that the tax legislation shall be put through only after the sober and serious consideration which its importance to the Nation demands.

Etiquette For Fire-Eaters.

The realistic French cling to one romantic remnant. In spite of the modernism of the Normandie, they preserve the duel. Within a week, tennis-star Borotra is challenged to personal combat and a gentlemen's jury is summoned to decide whether master-detective Chiappe may challenge anybody.

A sportswriter decided that France was being let down at Wimbledon by the "Bounding Basque," Borotra; so the man of the typewriter called out the man of the net. Dismissed as Prefect of Police during the Stavisky scandal, jovial Jean Chiappe decided that one way of return to the Parisian political stage was to challenge Pierre Godin, former president of the municipal council. And Godin argued to an honor court that Chiappe forfeited the privilege of challenging when he, two years ago, declined a fellow Corsican's invitation to fight.

Here in America, where the code is dead and sport so much alive, most people will feel that, in l'Affaire Borotra, the tennis player should choose, as his weapons, rackets at 14 paces. Also in America, because the code was once so deadly here, opinion in regard to the Chiappe case is likely to declare for some latitude to fire-eaters in their selection of social engagements. Certainly the theory that refusal of a challenge carries the stigma of mortal fear can hardly be applied to the duels of France.

Time For A Showdown.

If the District Commissioners had wished to demonstrate their subserviency to Representative Blanton, they could not have done it more effectively than by promoting Inspector Headley to be assistant superintendent of police. On Thursday Commissioner Hazen told newspapermen that the vacancy caused by Assistant Superintendent Bean's retirement would not be filled. At that time he apparently had not received orders from Representative Blanton. Yesterday morning, after the would-be dictator of District affairs visited the Commissioners, the decision was reversed. A more complete or a more artless surrender can scarcely be imagined.

When the so-called "gentlemen's agreement" between Representative Blanton and Maj. Brown, superintendent of police, was first exposed by the House District Crime Committee, the community was shocked. Commissioner Hazen vigorously denied that he was a party to any such underhanded attempt to promote Inspector Headley. By implication he decried the interference of Congressmen in the administration of local affairs. But now he, along with the other Commissioners, has put the stamp of approval on the "gentlemen's agreement," in spite of the Crime Committee's recommendations and in spite of animated public opposition.

Without mincing words, the Crime Committee condemned the "gentlemen's agreement" and recommended abolition of the post which Mr. Blanton sought for Headley. It found the inspector's conduct "prejudicial to the best interests of the (police) department." Nor did its censure stop there. Mr. Headley was accused of neglecting his duty in spite of deplorable crime conditions in the district for which he was responsible and of evasiveness when he appeared before the committee. As a result the committee concluded that "his services have been unsatisfactory and conducive to a lack of efficiency and harmony."

In the absence of any evidence superseding the committee's findings, taxpayers of Washington had a right to expect Inspector Headley's retirement. But the Commissioners have promoted him at a crack of the whip by the first party in the "gentlemen's agreement." Subserviency has reached a point of being intolerable. The Commissioners have betrayed the confidence of the public to curry favor with a demagogue who, through his membership on the House District Appropriations sub-committee, seeks to dominate the local government.

It is significant that this pusillanimous performance follows the vote of the House District Committee to reconsider the crime report because of political pressure. The Commissioners may try to excuse their action as being in line with the vacillating policy of the committee. To some extent they were subjected to the same unscrupulous influences. But the action of the city fathers is even more shameless because it actually puts into effect a sinister political bargain which has been generally recognized as having a demoralizing effect upon law enforcement in Washington.

The effect of Mr. Blanton's triumph is to rock the foundations of the local government. Are the appointive heads of the District responsible to the President or to a Congressman from Texas? The time for a showdown has come. It is inconceivable that the people of Washington will tolerate a dictatorship of this type without a protest that will force official action. The President should be the first to see that responsible local government under such conditions is impossible.

You can now go from one place to another twice as quickly as you could a few years ago. This gives you more time after arrival to wonder why you did it.

"I feel sorry for those unfortunate people who think this country is in a mess," asserts a Congressman. Our sympathy lies with those who think it isn't.

Hitler says Europe is not big enough for a war. It's our impression that it isn't big enough for peace.

The Cotton Confusion.

From the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The 6,000,000 bales of stored cotton on which the United States Government holds a mortgage, directly or indirectly, represents approximately half of a good year's domestic crop; more than half of last year's restricted production.

As a new crop season progresses to produce millions more bales to be marketed in the fall, the Nation's cotton problem remains unsolved. What about the new crop? Will the Government again lend growers 12 cents a pound, taking as security a mortgage on the stored cotton?

If the Government finally has taken over this pledged cotton, as it will unless the price rises above 12 cents a pound, and then sells it, the loss will amount to about $30,000,000 for each cent less than 12 cents a pound received by the Government.

Government officials are said to see a ray of hope in the fact that farmers who get Government cotton loans agree to participate in the acreage control program. Does this mean progressive crop reduction, with more idle acres and idle farm labor in the South, and a gradual surrender of our cotton export business?

"Damn Dumb" Party?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: May I commend the force of your editorial in The Post of June 20 on the subject of the lack of intelligent planning for the use of the $4,880,000,000 work-relief fund, but in doing so do you not think that the press should have dwelt more on this feature while the work-relief bill was pending? In the very nature of things human prevision could not conceive of sudden intelligent uses for such a fabulous sum. I had this in mind in writing the letter which you published a month or two ago, in which I advocated paying the soldiers' bonus out of the relief fund, if it had to be paid.

The President and Congress, having made this leap in the dark, now seek to counter by a great parade of making a class, the wealthy, bear the brunt of the misstep for the benefit of another class, the poor, the "forgotten," thus taking another step toward destroying democracy's boast that it recognizes no classes.

In characterizing those Democrats who do not follow the new paths which are being blazed as "too damb dumb to understand," Administrator Hopkins has made a valuable suggestion that the opponents of the new conceptions of government be collected in a new party, entitled "Damb Dumb Party." It will start with a large membership.

New Vision Needed.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: One of the fundamental causes of our social, political and economic confusion is our idealistic attitude toward the state. We individuals think and act as though the State were what Hegel supposed it to be, namely, the realization of the moral idea, and the ultimate in reason and justice. We erroneously look upon the state as a unity of high ideals and then, with less reason, look for a realization of the ideals through the state.

As a matter of fact, the state is not as moral, reasonable, nor just as the aggregate of individuals who compose it and it never can be. It lags far behind the average of its aggregate individuals and it is not as unified as an association of individuals or a corporation. Our attitude has given rise to bureaucracy, to muddled foreign relations, to war and to general domestic confusion.

Our Government today is not something apart from the people who compose it and not something superior to the people who make up its mass. It is merely a lot of Mr. Smiths and Mr. Browns who have built up an array of boards, commissions and bureaus, as ends in themselves. These outward evidences of smug bureaucracy may be looked upon as things in themselves, but they are and always will be, merely a collection of individuals.

What we need is a new vision, a new attitude and then a new deal will come rapidly of itself.

ANGELO.

Impound All Wealth?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In view of President Roosevelt's "distribution of wealth" message do you believe it would be well to advocate that the Government impound all wealth in the country from leaving the country until settlement of the plan is made? If something like this is not done would it not hurt recovery if capital becomes scared and is taken out of the United States?

Only Fifteen Days.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: This day's Post contained a "Vacation Address Order Blank—Let The Post follow you—Holiday Service." Alas! For your misdirected efforts! Government employes with families can't afford vacations on account of lack of money and lack of time.

Fifteen days' annual leave seems inadequate even for such necessities as the family shopping, medical and dental attentions and emergencies that arise in all families.

The Custer Controversy.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The crop of Custer fictions never fails. Barron Brown's interview in Kansas City with an Associated Press reporter, published in The Post of June 24, must rank as a notable addition. Particularly interesting is Mr. Brown's assertion that he has "broken down the stony silence of the red man" and thereby learned the inside story of the battle of the Little Big Horn.

It happens that Indian participants and near-participants in the battle have been volubly telling their stories to eagerly receptive white men for all the 59 years that have followed that tragic event. Few of their stories agree; and except for a few Indians of exceptional intelligence, their contributions furnish little aid to the student.

The statement that the Indians of 1875-76 obtained firearms mainly through "dishonest Government agents" is fiction. The Government at the time fostered the arming of the red men to enable them to hunt game. The statement that the killing of Custer was "inadvertent" is also fiction. None of the Indians knew that the white leader was Custer. Fiction also is the statement that Sitting Bull interposed to prevent the destruction of the Reno-Benteen command, 4½ miles away. Against this force the Indians kept up a persistent attack until the approach of the Terry-Gibbon command caused them to retreat.

That "the Sioux warriors did not mutilate their victims" is fictitious. They always did just that, though in this case, by reason of the proximity of their village, they had the aid of the women, old men and boys in the ghastly work. It is also fiction that they stripped the dead bodies of the soldiers only because they felt that they would need the garments in Canada. These victorious red men had then no apprehension that they would be driven into Canada, and in clothing themselves from the bodies of their victims they were merely following an immemorial custom.

Two statements in this new revelation are unexceptionable: that Custer was not scalped and that Tom Custer's heart was not cut out. The information, however, having been available all these years, is not news.

Passengers' Duties.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In connection with the Morro Castle disaster, I read that previous to the fire many of the passengers refused to participate in the "fire drill."

When any passenger accepts transportation on any vehicle, he accepts the rules and regulations of that vehicle and has no right to endanger the lives of other passengers by refusing to comply. But please understand that I am not in sympathy with neglect on the part of steamship companies—rather, quite the reverse.

In future should not insurance damages or claims be annulled by the proper authorities when passengers refuse to fulfill their duties as passengers?

Awaits Bus Routes.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: After waiting several years hoping that a switch would be installed at Eighteenth street and Columbia road so that cars would run direct from Chevy Chase to Potomac Park, I see that it is announced that there are to be no street cars whatever from Chevy Chase on Connecticut avenue.

R. C. WELLS.
Chevy Chase, D. C., June 26.

Street Car Facts And Arguments.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In this morning's Post, Mr. Ury sings the praises of the street car as against the bus with somewhat more of enthusiasm than logic. He should realize that the street car belongs to a past age. It is a cumbersome, noisy and inefficient vehicle.

The street car is unable to avoid obstacles. It must go where its track leads it, willy-nilly. It is the great traffic delayer. When you have driven 4 or 5 miles behind a street car, that stops at every block, you realize that you are in the dark ages. Then how frequently do we see, in winter storms, a line of stalled cars a half-mile long with irate passengers, who have paid useless fares, swarming out into the cold and hoping vainly to reach their offices or homes in time?

Street cars are the great noise makers. It has been stated that 90 per cent of city noises is caused by street cars, and if so, they are responsible for serious illness in those afflicted with nervous diseases, no less than the cause of tremendous deterioration in real estate values.

Mr. Ury proposes a vote of the people on the question of street cars and buses. Such a vote would be valueless, as the great majority of the people do not know what is good for them, anyway, and their welfare should be directed by progressive and intelligent leaders who can and do look into the future. If we had taken a vote on the traffic back in the 90's, the farmers would have saddled on us forever horse-drawn vehicles and streets that looked like farmyards (and smelled like them as well), while the city was filled with millions of sparrows and swarms of disease-laden flies.

Let Mr. Ury go to New York and ride up Madison avenue in one of the new buses that have replaced street cars recently. He will be surprised at the wonderful change in conditions, the frequency of opportunity to ride, and the comfort and rapidity of his trip. But more than all he will marvel at the almost rural peace and calm of a street that was just now filled with distracting and nerve-wracking noise. A single fact is worth a thousand arguments.

The Post Impressionist

He Smiles—Aside.

Post Office, Saturday.

THE STORY, as we heard it in Geneva, went this way:

The King of Italy was in Milan—to lay, with a golden trowel, the cornerstone of a new hospital—to clip, with silver scissors, the ribbon that barred a new bridge—to press a diamond button that would start a new mill—or to perform some equally important function of the modern monarch. The nervous King fumbled with a handkerchief—and dropped it.

His Majesty stooped to retrieve the trifle. The Duce stooped to retrieve it.

"Please," said the King, "don't."

"Sire," said Mussolini, "I insist."

"All right," muttered the King, "if you insist, of course, that's the end of it—but I really don't want to lose my handkerchief: His handkerchief is the one thing left in Italy that the King of Italy is now allowed to stick his nose into."

They are a type of anecdote peculiar to these tenebrous times of ours. Of all types of humor, this type is the most modern. It is unpublished, illegal in the lands of its origin. It is bitter. It is political. It is secret.

For incautiously indulging in it, many men are now laboring in Siberian convict-camps. Some of these humorists are paying, for the telling of these stories, in German concentration-pens. And a few are working out the punishment on Italian prison-islands.

"Bootleg humor" Lyons calls it. Somewhat more common than bombs or machine-guns, much more common than armed revolution, it is one of the Twentieth Century's protests against dictatorship.

The Post-Impressionist had rather fancied himself as a connoisseur in this form of literature. He would probably have writtten some rather philosophic columns about it, illustrating them with examples from Rome, Berlin and Moscow. But Lyons has beaten us to it.

Eugene Lyons was the United Press correspondent at the capital of Soviet Russia for a long time. We don't know why he left: he was a first-rate correspondent, and we don't undertake to say that his excellence as a correspondent had anything to do with his leaving Soviet Russia. But, anyway, he has come out of there—and out of Germany and out of Italy—with such a collection of bootleg humor as puts the Post-Impressionist to silence—almost.

* * *

A while ago, for instance, Lyons, in Harper's Magazine, showed just enough of his collection to make your mouth water. The best items bore either the sickle and hammer trademark or the swastika.

There was President Kalinin making a Moscow speech in praise of the constructive achievements of the Soviets. He waxed lyrical over the 20-story skyscrapers in the North Ukraine—and particularly Kharkov.

"But, Comrade Kalinin," said a naive worker in the audience, "I live in Kharkov. Daily I walk Karl Marx street, yet I have never seen these skyscrapers."

"That," shouted the President, "is the trouble with men like you! You waste your time promenading the streets instead of reading the newspapers and learning what is going on in your country."

Then there's the story about the five friends around a cafe table: It is told of both Berlin and Moscow. Four of these men had tears in their eyes.

"Now, now!" warned the fifth. "How often have I told you not to express political opinions in public?"

According to Lyons, the only defense that—in one dictatorship—a comrade could offer for a friend arrested when calling the government stupid was the defence of insanity.

"Don't try to tell me that," snorted the policeman. "If he's crazy, how can he understand the government so thoroughly?"

You see, Lyons has quite outpointed us. The best we can do is to make him a present of the following:

* * *

The shade of Lenin wandered the wastes of space. The Kingdom of Heaven was shut against him. Dejectedly, he sought hell's portal—but the Devil would not even open it.

"I know you," said the Devil: "If I ever let you in, you'd steal my job." And he walked away.

Only after years of patient waiting outside was Lenin accosted by an interstellar peddler who agreed to gain him entrance. "Climb into my bag," he commanded and, when Lenin had obeyed, the peddler knocked at the gate. He was known; it was opened.

"I've got a present for one of your guests." And the peddler handed in the bag.

"Karl Marx."

"But what's the present?"

"It's the interest on Das Kapital."

Caught Again.

HENRY WALLACE and Chester Davis are beginning to think there is a curse on them. Chester doesn't say anything about it, but Henry goes about figuratively wringing his hands and reminding one of the road signs of the religious sect in nearby Virginia which give the motorist the jitters with their warnings: "Look out! Death awaits you around the corner."

What Henry and Chester can't get into their heads is why every bureau and agency of the New Deal is successful in slipping something over on Congress and they can't get away with it to save their lives. Try as they might, as hidden as they make their purposes they always get caught.

• • • •

They have been fooling around with the bill to increase their authority, originally called the clarifying amendments bill, for two years without any luck. Just when they think they have passage assured something bobs up to bedevil them. The first thing they got caught at, of course, was in describing the measure as merely little clarifying amendments to the agriculture act. It would have clarified them into such authority as even our most ambitious bureaucrats have never dreamed of.

Just when they were about to get the bill through the Senate by the device of tacking it on to another agriculture bill, which Senators could not afford to vote against, the Supreme Court came along with its NRA decision and knocked their plans sky high. Then after a momentary panic they sought to take advantage of the excitment attendant upon the court's decision by appearing to take it gracefully and revising their bill.

Up it went to the House purportedly reflecting their desire to be good. They learned their lesson from the Supreme Court and henceforth the House and Senate could believe them implicitly when they presented a measure. The House, always friendly, took a look at the 52-page thing and said, yes, Henry and Chester had reformed, their new bill was all right.

• • • •

Two Senators, however, Cotton Ed Smith and Harry Byrd, didn't take Henry's and Chester's supposed reformation seriously. They got lawyers to help them read the bill. The first thing they saw was that the licensing authority which had been previously sought had been changed to authority for Henry and Chester to get what they wanted from food processors by issuing orders.

Cotton Ed and Harry looked closer at the bill and as a result ran across a provision even more drastic than the licensing or order phase. This is looked upon as an effort on the part of Henry and Chester to perpetuate their bureaucracy by making the processing taxes permanent and removing them from the original "parity" theory. The controverted provision would simply authorize Henry to raise or lower the processing taxes by 20 per cent.

Without directly saying so, Henry and Chester have been trying to pave the way for the permanency of the processing taxes for some time. Originally the processing taxes were intended to be applied to a commodity until it reached a parity price. Under the present law there is really no authority to continue them after that. Notwithstanding that the tobacco manufacturers contend that tobacco prices exceeded the parity price by one-third as early as last year, Henry and Chester still apply their processing taxes. If they don't they won't have any benefit money to give the tobacco growers. Similarly, other commodity handlers are claiming that Henry and Chester are violating the law in the matter of their commodities.

Henry and Chester, in the meantime, have been trying to ease away from the parity theory. If prices of certain commodities have reached the originally prescribed figure, well, then the prices of what the farmer buys have also gone up, so you see it is not yet parity. They want, without directly saying so, to get the processing taxes accepted as a permanent feature of farm economics just as the tariff is of industry. The provision giving Henry the right to raise or lower the taxes at will would accomplish this. In the meantime, the impression is that the other bureaucrats are taunting them for always getting caught, and they are determined, sooner or later, to slip something over. It's now coming to be a matter of pride.

Sins Of Omission

Inertia And Inaction Rather Than Inadequacies Of Law Seen As Heart Of Banking Problem Now Provoking Debate Over Bill Centralizing Control In Federal Reserve Board.

By A. P. Youngman.

ALEXANDER POPE, poet and philosopher, once said, "Whatever is, is right." In the field of public administration, however, it sometimes seems as if whatever is, is wrong, because, no matter how excellent governmental institutions may be, judged by abstract standards, the weakness of men in positions of authority are responsible for defective management. As a result the public is led to demand fundamental changes in the system itself instead of asking for improved administration. In the field of banking, for example, ineffective administration, rather than the inadequacies of the banking laws, accounts for many of the disasters that have overtaken this country.

The debate over Part II of the banking bill, which raises the question whether or not greater powers should be conferred upon the Federal Reserve Board, would be much more enlightening if it were understood that to no small extent weaknesses of administration instead of any lack of power to function are largely responsible for dissatisfaction with the present system. Recently, it is true, discussion has been increasingly concerned with the question as to whether the Reserve Board could be relied upon to exercise enlarged powers of credit control with intelligence and discretion. This shift of emphasis is especially conspicuous in the arguments recently advanced by Dr. A. C. Miller, who has based an indirect appeal for passage of the banking bill (with certain modifications) upon a defense of the board's administrative record.

Specific proposals contained in the banking bill, such as those which broaden eligibility requirements for discounted paper in accordance with Reserve Board regulations and authorize the board to change member bank reserve requirements, are being discussed more and more with reference to the wisdom of thus centralizing authority. This is itself a tacit admission that the benefits conferred or the damage done by proposed statutory changes depends primarily upon the way in which the law is administered.

THE American public has learned by painful experience that a multitude of legal prohibitions does not afford adequate guarantees against bad banking practices. Consequently, there is probably less fear today than there once was that removal of formal legal restrictions upon banking operations will bring inevitable disaster. On the other hand, it is better understood that mere liberalization of the laws will not provide a solution of evils traceable to weak or inefficient administration. Before conferring greater powers upon the Federal Reserve Board, therefore, it would be well to look at its record since the organization of the system, and to discuss frankly some of the failures chalked up against it.

With skill but not with entire frankness, Dr. Miller defends the board against charges that it was responsible for the misguided credit policies that led to speculative inflation and ultimate collapse of the banking system. Inaction is, however, sometimes a more fatal error than mistaken action. Thus the assertion that the board permitted the Federal Reserve Bank of New York to dictate credit policies which eventually proved disastrous, and the further fact that the board did not intervene until it was too late to save the situation, is an evidence of serious functional weakness. Since such acquiescence was not due to lack of authority, the board can not ask absolution for such sins of omission.

As a matter of fact the Reserve Board failed from the start to exercise various powers conferred upon it as effectively as it might have done.

WHEN the system was organized, after extended hearings and much debate, it was expected that a balance would be maintained in the Federal Reserve Banks between the local banking and business interests represented on the board of directors and the public interest, represented through the Federal Reserve Board in Washington. But although the board had full power directly to appoint outstanding men as chairmen of the boards of the Reserve Banks, it did not choose in most cases to exercise this power independently and effectively.

Although the chairman of the board of directors of a Reserve Bank was obviously intended to be its operating head, he was made subordinate in practice to the bank governor—an official of whom no mention whatever is made in the original Federal reserve act. Furthermore, with ample power to approve or disapprove the salaries voted to Reserve Bank officials, the board failed to act aggressively and to insist that people occupying important positions in the Reserve Banks should be men of outstanding character and ability. The scale of salaries certainly should have made it possible to secure the services of unusually able men. Unfortunately, the member banks frequently used the Federal Reserve Banks as convenient dumping grounds for their own "lame ducks."

The board's failure to create an adequate examining force to provide for careful checking of the examinations of the Comptroller of the Currency and especially reports from State banking authorities, is another black mark against its record. The examining system also suffered a loss of effectiveness because of the pressure exerted by influential politicians, and by Congressmen, to prevent frequent examinations from being made where necessary, and also to interfere with application of corrective orders. The unsavory disclosures which followed failures of a number of member banks show only too plainly that abuses were permitted to exist for years and banking solvency was in many cases undermined long before the speculative collapse of 1929 and subsequent deflation of values led to widespread banking disaster.

• • • •

THE Federal Reserve Board likewise erred in permitting without effective protest the creation of security affiliates of member banks, thereby acquiescing in a most unsound development which violated the spirit and probably the letter of the law. Undoubtedly, the mismanagement of these affiliated concerns contributed in no small degree to the collapse of the country's banking system. Furthermore, the board offered no effective opposition to the practice of establishing holding companies to buy up bank stocks, although it was possible by such means virtually to evade legal prohibitions against extension of branch banking. Finally, the board made no determined effort to work toward a system of unified banking, although the growing competition between State and National banking systems had shown only unification could provide needed safeguards against loose and dangerous banking practices.

In face of this striking and far from complete record of Reserve Board inertia and inaction, public sentiment seems nevertheless increasingly in favor of giving more power to a body that throughout the formative years of the system failed to use aggressively the powers conferred upon it under existing laws.

Silent Theater

By

Wm. Lyon Phelps.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN'S preference for the silent pictures is well known; and I myself hope there will always be some movies without speech.

They have gone far beyond this in Moscow. In Moscow there is a theater for the deaf and dumb.

It was founded about 15 years ago, when the city and country were in a rather tumultous state, owing to the revolution. In such a time, amid the wild hurly-burly of revolution, to start a theater exclusively for the deaf and dumb seems to indicate a positive genius for the ironically inopportune.

• • • •

But the daring venture proved to be a success and has steadily become more and more popular. I have not seen it myself, but I learn on good authority that the company-teamwork in acting has greatly improved and that the deaf and dumb audiences are increasingly enthusiastic.

The repertory is extensive. The theater would seem to be more free from propaganda than most of the Russian theaters and movie houses, for the aim is artistic. They play both classical and contemporary pieces, not only of Russian origin, but from all European literatures—I suppose one could hardly say in translation.

• • • •

The players are all deaf and dumb; and their art consists in facial expression, gestures, and movement; so that the deaf and dumb spectators (one ought not to say audiences) have no difficulty in understanding what it is all about. Some of the members of the company have reached an almost unbelievable skill in expression, and the younger and less skilful players learn much merely by association.

The director of the theater is Maxim Zwarykin, who is himself deaf and dumb. Every evening the theater is crowded, and of course, a certain percentage of the spectators are normal, and are drawn to these performances out of curiosity; they have a double interest in observing the players and also the other spectators.

I am told also that many of the players do not have to depend on this theater for their living, but are many of them employed in factories and elsewhere, and work for the theater outside of their business hours.

Astor's Thrift Shown in Notes On Church Aid

By the United Press.

Green Bay, Wis.—Sale of the former Union Congregational Church here recently recalled aid given by John Jacob Astor and Washington Irving to house Wisconsin's first Protestant organization, formed January 9, 1836.

The congregation, continuing unbroken since that date, although its first edifice burned and it has moved from the second, participated in many stirring events recounted in its records. The belfry of the old church at least once, and perhaps on other unrecorded instances, was a refuge for fugitive Negro slaves. Mrs. Jeremiah Porter, wife of the pastor, tells in a letter how a fleeing Negro father and his three children were hidden there in 1855.

Astor Gave Cash and Land.

Astor, nationally famous as a fur trader, was reputed to be the wealthiest man in the United States at the time he donated land and $300 for the church. Interesting traits of the old trader are evident in his letters regarding these transactions.

In a letter dated at Yorkville October 1, 1838, he grumbles to a church committee that he did not anticipate being asked to donate a bell after giving land and money. "Yet I have complied with your request," he adds, "and have purchased today from Mr. Force an excellent bell of 696 pounds cast by him the present year. It has a fine and full tone, and will effectually notice all who are disposed to give attention to their duties from its summons."

He adds in a postscript:

"You will please see that the church settles the account of the freight and expenses."

Advice on 87 Cents.

N. Goodell, Astor's Green Bay agent, received directions regarding expenses of transferring the property donated for the church.

"You have in your account 87 cents for recording the deed to the —— church," Astor wrote. "The church ought to pay this. Please collect it."

Irving, creator of Rip Van Winkle, Icabod Crane and other famous American literary characters, contributed $50. James Duane Doty, then Wisconsin's Governor, gave $200, and Zachary Chandler, Detroit, later Secretary of the Interior, contributed 16 yards of carpeting worth $22.

Boy, Who Will Not Chew, Lives 20 Years Without Eating Meat

Philadelphia Lad Hale and Hearty on Diet of Liquids.

By the United Press.

Philadelphia.—Douglas Baker, 20, never has bitten into a juicy steak or a sweet apple.

He is known as "the boy who will not chew."

Since an infant, Douglas' diet has been only liquids. He has lived on milk, orange juice, tea, coffee and cornstarch—but physicians hope to correct the strange malady.

Douglas is only 5 feet 3 inches tall and weighs only 99 pounds, but his health has been fair.

"I play all the sports the other boys do," he said. "I play baseball, football and swim. I'm not so good at running, but I manage to get through the field at a football game all right."

The youth revealed that he was sick for four years when a baby and "had to be carried around on a pillow."

"Maybe I got used to having only fluids, and I've never gotten over it," he said. "I'm crazy about milk. But I don't like cream."

Physicians said the youth's case is unusual, but in "no means" unique. They pointed out that life can be maintained for many years on the proper variety of fluids.

Auto Exhaust Kills Clarksburg Man

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., June 28.—Victim of carbon monoxide fumes from a motor exhaust, the body of Guy Harmon Earle, 55, a feed broker, was found early today in a garage in the rear of his home here.

Earle had been dead about 15 hours, Dr. Leroy Goff, coroner, estimated, when he was discovered by his son, Robert Earle. The motor of the car was not running.

His family believed he had started yesterday for Wheeling and Cameron on a business trip and last saw him alive when he started for the garage.

He had been engaged in the hay and grain brokerage business here since 1904. His wife and four sons survive. One son, Lawrence Earle, is a cadet at the United States Naval Academy.

70 Bushels of Barley Record Per-Acre Yield

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., June 28. — As harvesting got under way in western Maryland this week, record yields of both wheat and barley were reported.

J. A. Miller, Keedysville, U. S. Department of Agriculture, reported for this section, estimated that Washington County would average 25 bushels to the acre of wheat and said that the crop is the finest in history. Lloyd Hull, Paramount farmer, reported a record yield of barley, when he harvested 70 bushels to the acre. Yields of 60 to 65 bushels to the acre are not uncommon, but Hull's yield excels any previous barley production in this section, say farmers.

Leaders of Rotary Have Region Rally

Incoming Presidents Meet With Gov.-Elect Howe.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., June 28.—Incoming presidents of the 30 clubs, comprising the thirty-fourth district of Rotary Clubs, and other Rotarians from the district, attended an intercity meeting here this afternoon and tonight, with District Governor-elect Harrison E. Howe presiding. The incoming presidents take office Monday.

The district comprises clubs in the District of Columbia, Maryland and parts of Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

Albert Lindsay Rowland, of the State Teachers College, Shippensburg, Pa., was the principal speaker at a dinner tonight. George F. Humphrey, who is the new president of the Hagerstown Rotary Club, was toastmaster.

Storage of Wheat, Advice to Farmers

Virginia Official Acts on Threat of Low Prices.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., June 28.—Virginia wheat growers were advised today by Commissioner of Agriculture George W. Koiner to hold their wheat on the heels of the Richmond Grain Exchange announcement that prices would be lowered some 15 or 20 cents a bushel. W. David Saunders, secretary of the exchange, said competition of flour millers in the Pacific Northwest made the drop to 65 or 70 cents a bushel necessary.

Pointing out that wheat can safely be held for some time without danger, Koiner urged farmers to store their crops. Those who have no adequate storage facilities were advised to rent storage space.

He said he was confident farmers would lose money if they sold at the lowered prices.

Myocarditis Claimed Result of Auto Crash

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Leesburg, Va., June 28.—A $10,000 suit introduced in circuit court here today hinged on the testimony of several physicians as to whether myocarditis could have resulted from an automobile accident. The case involves Charles M. Hopkins, of Washington, who claims that he has suffered from the heart malady since his car was allegedly forced into a ditch by a truck owned by John H. Roff, Vienna, Va.

Physicians testifying for the defense said that myocarditis is contracted only after many years. Physicians brought to court by the plaintiff contended that the heart disease might have been brought on by the impact of Hopkins chest against the steering wheel of the car. The accident occurred three miles from here November 1, 1934. The case will continue tomorrow.

Garden Club Visitors See King George Sights

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Heathsville, Va., June 28.—The Betty Lewis Garden Club of Westmoreland County was entertained by the King George County members at a luncheon served on the lawn at Waverley, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lomax Hunter. They were taken on a pilgrimage to some of the beautiful old estates of the county, including Bleak Hill, Mormion, Moreland, Belle Grove and Okenbrough.

The guests were entertained also at luncheon by Gen. and Mrs. Cheatham at Stratford. Lunch was served at the Commons.

450-Pound Bear Caught.

Lusk, Wyo. (U.P.).—A 450-pound bear was caught recently in the Dubois Mountain by A. J. Stenner. The bear's hide measured 7 feet 7 inches in length and about 7 feet in width. Dr. Stenner did not say whether he would use the hide as a rug or as a trophy.

Among our famous lines, we mention that we are sole agents in Washington for the EDWIN CLAPP SHOES.

Men, being men, can not tell you very much about women. For instance, to the young-man-in-love the opposite sex is all sweetness and light; the bachelor, who has dodged the ladies for years, believes them to be scheming minxes, and the married man is probably afraid to tell you what he really thinks.

Therefore, to get a true opinion of women, you must go to a woman for your information . . . and so we've gone to Miss Malvina Lindsay, editor of The Washington Post's woman's pages, to find out about those lovely and sometimes sweet creatures who do so much to make our lives happy and miserable. And Miss Lindsay certainly tells us, and all other readers of The Post, about "The Gentle Sex." You'll find her impressions of her sisters . . . and brothers, too . . . in The Post each Sunday morning to entertain . . . and educate you. Each week she writes this amusing, intelligent column which so satirically punctures so many of our illusions, and which gives us an insight into the devious ways of women.

For example, she outlines the character of Tactful Tillie, who never comes right out and tells her friends they are getting fat. Oh, no! Tactful Tillie merely sniffs, "Are'nt you getting a bit stout, dearie?" Tactful Tillie, Miss Lindsay also reveals, prides herself on being able to find out disagreeable things by a method which is practically painless . . . to her.

Or Miss Lindsay describes the conversation at the Sunday dinner table; and her description is as true to life as the family laundry line. You can recognize Uncle Henry, who wants to talk politics, and Aunt Susan, who simply must tell Cousin Mary about those perfectly darling little needlepoint footstools she saw downtown for only $2.98, or, if you read carefully, you might recognize yourself!

We are sure that Miss Lindsay's sardonic humor will please you as much as it pleases us . . . we think it's one of the best features in The Sunday Post. Gently, oh, so very gently, the barb of her wit penetrates . . . but you're laughing so much you don't mind the sting.

"The Gentle Sex," which has become one of the best-liked columns in The Sunday Post, may be found each Sunday morning on the woman's pages of ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.

Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Judge Walter T. McCarthy, in the Circuit Court of Arlington County, yesterday reappointed the entire police force for a term of one year, effective July 1. The appointments were made upon the recommendations of Sheriff Howard B. Fields.

Those reappointed were John R. Burke, Raymond Crack, James D. East, James J. Scott, Louis W. Elliott, Ray B. Cobean, jr., Vernon R. Will, Ernest H. Miller, Edward G. Duncan, Hugh C. Jones, Harold E. Mason, Norman S. Carson, Marion F. Ward, Archie H. Richards, John E. Conway, Joseph H. Marcey, William H. Brown, A. D. Langley, John Burke, William D. Havens and Louis F. Shaw.

Officers John Burke, William D. Havens and Louis F. Shaw, who serve in the South Washington section, are appointed by the court upon the recommendations of Sheriff Fields without any cost to Arlington County.

All the officers are bonded in the sum of $1,000.

Today's session of the State Christian Endeavor Society, meeting at Clarendon, will open this morning at 8:45 o'clock in the Clarendon Baptist Church with the Rev. George E. McDorman, pastor of the Mount Olivet Methodist Church, presiding.

Group meetings will follow until 10:30, when an address will be delivered by Miss Margaret Buchanan, of Chatham Hill, on "Christian Youth Building a Better Home and Community."

Educational conference will be conducted by Mrs. Ruth Keen Naff, State junior superintendent.

Luncheon will be served at 1 o'clock in the Odd Fellows Hall.

The afternoon session will open at 2 o'clock with group meetings taking up the entire afternoon.

In the evening at 7 o'clock there will be a banquet at the Mayflower Hotel in Washington at which the State officers will be elected.

The guest speaker will be Dr. William Hiram Foulkes, vice president of the World Union.

The County Board holds its last meeting of the fiscal year this morning at 9 o'clock at the court house. Appointment of the plumbing board, application to the Public Works Administration for funds for additions to the court house and extension of Courthouse Road to Wilson Boulevard will be among the principal matters for consideration.

With both Federal and State reports indicating that infantile paralysis is unusually prevalent in North Carolina and in a group of bordering counties in Virginia, County Health Officer P. M. Chichester issued the following statement yesterday:

"Brunswick, Halifax, Lunenburg and Mecklenburg are the counties in Virginia most effected at present. There are, however, cases scattered about over other portions of the State. The disease seems to be, according to State reports, traveling along U. S. Route 1. The location of the cases in Virginia, and the time that they have developed, possibly indicates that travel from North Carolina into Virginia, over Route 1, is the source of spread. All other States surrounding Virginia are practically free from the disease.

"As a help to the people in preventing infantile paralysis in the county, attention is called to the paper under date of May 6, of this year, which was distributed by the health department through the county schools, headed, "A Health Officer's Views on the Beginning Point of Any Safety Campaign."

Dr. Chichester, while not wishing to create any scare, asks citizens to avoid trips into infected areas.

He states that the mode of transmission is by direct contact with infected persons, including carriers of the virus, or indirectly by contact with articles freshly soiled by nose or throat secretions.

The fly, he says, is possibly the most frequent indirect means of transmission.

Mary Washington Chapter, No. 50, Order of the Eastern Star, will give a lawn party and supper this evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry K. Green, 1407 Barton street, at Clarendon, from 5 to 8 o'clock.

Mrs. Sybil Hunt has charge of the fete. She will be assisted by the following committees: Supper, Mrs. Pansy McKinney and Mrs. Dora Hynes; ice cream, Mrs. Sara Elizabeth Carl, Mrs. Jennie Lee Smith and Mrs. Cora Fields; cake, Mrs. Marie Barley and Mrs. Grace Shawhan; candy, Mrs. Nellie Pearson and Mrs. Effie Humphries; punch, Mrs. Edna Woodyard, Mrs. Edna Simmons and Irvin Quigg; fancy work, Mrs. Flora Cumberland; fish pond, Mrs. Minnie Ross and Mrs. Alba McKnight; fortune telling, Mrs. Emma Topley; Shirley Temple dolls, Mrs. M. Blanche Allen; decorations and lighting, Louis C. Carl and Hunton Pearson.

Music during the evening will be furnished by the Capital Hawaiian Orchestra.

Arlington Post, No. 139, American Legion and the auxiliary will hold a joint picnic this afternoon and evening at the country home of Charles E. Ladson on the Washington-Richmond highway in Fairfax County.

The group will leave this afternoon in automobiles from the Legion Hall at Clarendon at 3:30 o'clock.

Open Air Church Meeting.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Leesburg, Va., June 28.—The Rev. Marshall Frazer, D. D., pastor of the Baptist Church at Marshall, Va., will preach at the opening service of the annual open air meeting on the courthouse green July 7. The Purcellville, Choral Club will present a program.

Veirs Quits Upon Receiving Montgomery Liquor Position

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post.
Telephone Shepherd 2383.

Resignation of James P. B. Veirs, of Rockville, as manager of the Montgomery County Liquor Control Board was received yesterday by the Montgomery County Commissioners. No action can be taken until Tuesday when the commissioners meet.

Veirs was appointed manager and treasurer at a meeting of the county commissioners Tuesday after the appointment had been delayed several weeks by the opposition of County Commissioner Paul M. Coughlan.

Coughlan bowed to the needs of the Republican State central committee in agreeing to the appointment and it was rumored that Veirs would resign shortly after receiving the post, his pride salved by the appointment. Veirs, a wealthy man, has no financial need for the job.

It is understood that Ralph S. Fowler, chairman of the Liquor Control Board, who was prominently mentioned for the post, has decided against accepting, but he has been designated acting manager.

John C. Walker, Democrat, who has been manager of the dispensary system since its organization after repeal in December, 1933, will leave the office today. He resigned, effective June 15, but was prevailed upon to remain until July 1 in order that the system would have a manager. His record was praised recently by the liquor control board, all Fusion appointees.

Miss Rose K. Dawson was designated treasurer for the board pending appointment of the general manager, who also acts as treasurer. This was necessary in order that the signing of checks incident to the conduct of the business could be carried out.

The liquor control board yesterday voted that license holders who do not file their report within ten days after the last day of the month on the amount of beer they have purchased for the month will have their licenses suspended for one day for each day they fail to return the report. A number of establishments have failed to report.

The board adopted a resolution requiring that stenographic record be made of any public hearings before the board incident to applications for licenses or revocation or suspension of licenses. John Huiess, of Silver Spring, was named official stenographer.

It was reported that liquor sales in the county dispensaries for the week ending June 22 were $1,000 larger than for the same week in 1934.

The application for on-sale license to sell beer of Julius Bieber of near Four Corners was granted.

Fiscal matters of the county government, especially the new county tax rate of $1.50 per $100 assessed valuation, were outlined by County Auditor Alexander K. Hancock at a meeting of the Montgomery County Federation of Republican Women's Clubs yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman in Bethesda.

Hancock directed his remarks mainly to explaining the reasons for the 60-cent increase in tax rate for the fiscal year starting July 1, reciting increased expenditures for schools, interest and retirement on county bonds and other items.

The recent Republican grass-roots convention was described by Mrs. William Fitch Kelley, president of the Washington Republican Women's Club, who was a delegate to the convention.

Street-car service between Glen Echo and Washington was suspended for nearly an hour yesterday when a truck operated by Paul Alban was in collision with an eastbound street car. Alban and Kenneth Shannon, who also was riding on the truck, escaped injury. The truck was hurled to the tracks on the other side of the street, where it became imbedded in the tracks.

Although adjourned for the summer, the Silver Spring (Md.) Citizens Association is planning a vigorous campaign for civic improvement and beautification during the next few months.

Encouraged by its recent clean-up campaign the association will ask managers of stores in the business section of the Silver Spring area to continue in keeping their premises free of trash and refuse.

Copies of an ordinance passed by the county commissioners in 1929, which makes dumping of trash or garbage within 100 feet of a public highway or building occupied by human beings a misdemeanor and liable to fine, will be sent to all business houses. The ordinance, it was said, will be enforced when necessary with the cooperation of the local police.

"No Dumping" signs are also to be placed on all vacant lots.

A roads and streets committee, composed of O. H. Garvin, chairman; Chester Flack and W. B. McKinney will endeavor to have a street cut through from Thayer avenue to Silver Spring avenue, near East Silver Spring School. The committee will also look into the matter of having the streets of the community named in systematized order.

Playground facilities for the new Montgomery Blair Senior High School will also be sought during the summer. Immediate completion of the Montgomery avenue bridge in Sligo Park will be urged in a resolution directed to the Maryland National Park and Planning Commission. The bridge will give direct access to the school for students from Takoma Park and outlying areas.

Other improvements which will be asked include the placing of a mail box at the intersection of Colesville road and Georgia avenue and the cutting back of undergrowth at the intersection of Dale drive and Houston avenue.

The membership committee secured 34 new members in a drive just completed. Joseph M. Bowman has been elected secretary in the place of Byron Sedgwick, who resigned.

All the Takoma Park, Md., police officers, with the exception of the police clerk, Alex Robertson, were appointed by Mayor Frederick L. Lewton and the town council, it was learned yesterday.

Windsor Poole and Ira Hover, Montgomery County police officers who were at the Takoma Park station, were appointed special town police, but are detailed to the Silver Spring police.

Other officers are Sergt. C. Earl Thomas, chief of police; A. M. Thomas, Frank A. Lane and C. N. Thomas.

Merchants of Montgomery County have been requested to discontinue the sale of a type of firecracker called "Globe Flash Salutes," according to an announcement made yesterday by Chief J. W. Garrett.

The firecrackers are said to have caused serious injury to several children. The request comes from the office of James H. Pugh, State's attorney of Montgomery County.

Montgomery's Relief Setup Stays for July

County Aid Head Is Told to Continue at Same Expenditure Rate.

Montgomery County's new public welfare advisory board decided last night to continue the existing relief setup in the county during July.

The board instructed Ray Souder, superintendent of county aid, to continue administration of institutional and hospital care during the month at the same rate of expenditure. It also asked the Social Service League of Montgomery County to continue relief of dependent families during July, agreeing to reimburse it up to $2,600.

The new board was appointed by the county commissioners last Tuesday to handle all county welfare work, beginning July 1, but at the organization meeting in the Rockville courthouse last night members decided to wait until better organization had been perfected.

They elected Robert E. Bondy, of Bethesda, as chairman. Bondy is president of the Montgomery County Civic Federation. Mrs. B. Peyton Whalen, of Bethesda, was named secretary.

Others who attended the meeting were Judge Thomas C. Kelley, of the Orphans Court at Rockville; Dr. Claude W. Mitchell, of Silver Spring; Miss Lavinia Engle, former county commissioner, of Forest Glen; Mayor Douglas M. Blandford, of Rockville, and County Commissioner Frank H. Karn.

Sons of World War Hold First Rally

Bobbie Warthen Picked to Lead Kensington Squad.

Sons of war veterans of Kensington, Md., held the first meeting of their new organization last night—Squadron No. 30, Sons of the American Legion, sponsored by Arnold Wilburn Post, No. 30, of the American Legion.

Bobbie Warthen, captain; Charles Stubbs, first lieutenant; Lewis Bergdorf, second lieutenant; J. E. Farrell, son of the post commander, adjutant and financial officer; Billie Warthen, sergeant at arms, and Kenneth Simpson, historian and chaplain.

About a dozen boys were present. The squadron secured a charter from the Legion's national headquarters several days ago.

Winchester Meeting To Discuss Zoning

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, June 28.—Plans for a public meeting when the problem of a zoning system for Winchester will be discussed were announced today by W. Nelson Page, chairman of the City Planning Commission.

At a meeting of the commission recently, the problem was broached in view of complaints registered by property owners who claim some of the residential sections are being harmed by the erection of undesirable buildings.

Takoma Park Plans Celebration on July 4

Plans for Takoma Park's July 4 celebration will be discussed at a meeting tonight at 7:30 o'clock at 107 Carroll avenue.

Judge H. C. Heffner, chairman of the committee in charge, has asked all 25 members to be present.

Club Will Open Camp for Boys Near Franconia

Alexandria Kiwanis to Send More Than 100 There for Outings.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The Alexandria Kiwanis Club boys' camp, located in Fairfax County near Franconia, will be opened formally on Monday when the first group of more than 100 underprivileged boys of Alexandria will arrive for a week's free vacation. The camp will be open two months.

About 15 boys, 10 to 12 years old, will form the first group. They have been picked by officials of the club on recommendation of members of the Alexandria health office and Policeman George Welker, in charge of welfare work for the Alexandria police.

Clair Crenshaw, a student of the Episcopal Theological Seminary, has been appointed camp director, an official of the club announced today. Medical attention will be given by Dr. W. Clyde West and Dr. J. W. Love, members of the Kiwanis Club.

The period of residence at the camp is not limited to one week. Boys found to need medical attention and outdoor life will be kept for longer periods.

Attempting to pet a small dog as it was passing her, Ruth Schauffler, 3-year-old daughter of H. A. Schauffler, of 404 Duke street, Alexandria, was bitten on the head and face.

She was taken to the Alexandria Hospital by Dennis Dillon and George A. Morrison, of Washington, who were passing in a car. Her injuries were said not to be serious. The dog is owned by Albert Schlag, of 223 South Pitt street, it was reported.

J. Herbert Taylor, president of the Belle Haven Country Club, of Alexandria, has announced the appointment of the following committees: Executive — J. Randall Caton, jr., chairman; H. O'Bannon Cooper, John B. Gordon, Dr. J. T. Ashton, John S. Bryan, C. C. Brown, secretary.

Finance — Harrison Emhardt, chairman; Eugene L. Lindsey, John W. Howard and C. C. Brown, secretary. Membership — Andrew W. Clark, chairman; C. C. Brown and Daniel F. McGowan. House—T. J. Moncure, chairman; Mrs. Evelyn D. Dillard, Mrs. John W. Howard, Mrs. J. Randall Caton, jr., T. A. Hulfish and Al Wilson. Greens—Charles E. Darr and Clarence J. Robinson.

Tennis—Armistead Boothe, and golf—Charles Rollins.

Capt. John S. Arnold, of the Alexandria police, yesterday issued a warning that persons riding bicycles must observe the traffic regulations set up for other vehicles. He declared that hereafter violation of the regulations will result in arrests the same as for motor vehicle traffic. He stated he has received numerous complaints of persons riding bicycles at night without lights, going through red lights and stop signs and cutting corners.

Wallace Boland, 9, of 417 South Lee street, was treated at the Alexandria Hospital Thursday night for injuries suffered when his bicycle collided with an automobile at Jefferson and Lee streets. Philip W. Reed, 39, of Fort Myer, was listed as driver of the automobile.

George E. Schlosser was installed president of the Lions Club of Alexandria at a meeting this week. Other officers installed are John P. Strauss, second vice president; Fred Pettit, third vice president; Martin Wilson, secretary; Claude Hoover, treasurer; Jack Doniphan, lion tamer; Thornton J. Goode, tail twister, and Cary Blackwell, director.

The new president is one of the charter members of the organization and a former second vice president. During the past year he served as chairman of the activities committee.

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary S. Duffey, widow of George Nelson Duffey, who died Tuesday at Laredo, Tex., will be held today at 2:30 p. m. at the Seventh-Day Adventist Church in Rosemont.

She was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel S. Sipple, of Alexandria. She is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Walter Redd, of Laredo, Tex., and Mrs. George Welch, of Alexandria, and two sons, Ernest N. and Charles A. Duffey, of Alexandria.

Carpenter, 51, Ruled Suicide

Body of James Triplett Is Found by His Son at Takoma Park Home.

Dr. Francis X. Richardson, Takoma Park health officer, said yesterday he would issue a verdict of suicide in the death of James Triplett, 51-year-old carpenter, who lived in the 200 block Park avenue, Takoma Park.

Triplett was found dead just before midnight Thursday by his 11-year-old son, James, jr., his body sprawled on a makeshift cot in front of a stove in the kitchen of their home, gas filling the room.

Earlier in the day, Takoma Park police had received a telephone call in which the caller said simply:

"This is James Triplett."

Then he hung up. Young Triplett said he had been spending the last three days with an aunt while his father was supposed to be on a fishing trip.

Dr. Richardson said the father had been dead for several hours when found.

Kip, Skipping State, Escapes Executioner

"Kip," a shaggy shepherd dog, apparently has escaped the executioner's bullet. He simply isn't going to show up for his scheduled death in Falls Church, Va.

"Kip," owned by S. P. Grubbs, and "Buster," a police dog, owned by Maj. W. L. Covington, were sentenced to die last January after Judge B. M. Hedrick had found them guilty of killing neighbors' chickens.

Maj. Covington and Mr. Grubbs appealed the case. The appeal came before the Circuit Court two days ago. However, inasmuch as there was nobody present to argue for the dogs, Judge Walter T. McCarthy decreed that they must die.

It turns out that Maj. Covington's "Buster" was killed by an automobile on the Lee highway two months ago, and Mr. Grubbs' "Kip" has been sent to a former owner in New York. Judge McCarthy said no attempt would be made to "extradite" him.

Joseph Counts Funeral Held; Victim of Bus

The year's fifty-sixth traffic victim, Joseph B. Counts, 38, of 1378 E street northeast, was buried in Arlington Memorial Cemetery yesterday.

Earlier in the day, an inquest held by Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald said Counts came to his death when he "was either struck by or collided with an unknown bus with an unknown operator."

Counts' body was found lying on Eleventh street northwest, near I street, late Saturday. He was taken to George Washington University Hospital, unconscious. On Wednesday he died.

Cause of his injuries remained a mystery until yesterday, when Dr. MacDonald said a woman had reported seeing the body lying on the street just after a bus had turned south into Eleventh street after coming along K street. She said she was standing on her porch and had not noticed the body before then.

Counts was a temporary clerk in the Public Works Administration. He was born in Coeburn, Wise County, Va. During the war he served as a private in the Infantry.

He came to Washington in 1920, joining Victory Post of the American Legion.

Services were held at the Deal funeral home, 816 H street northeast.

Mad-Dog Scare Believed Ended

Biting of Six at Beltsville Attributed to Canine Now Dead.

While he ordered a special shipment of anti-rabic vaccine from Baltimore yesterday, to be delivered today, Prince Georges County health officer, Dr. A. B. Hooton, of Upper Marlboro, said he believed the Beltsville "mad-dog scare" to be ended.

In slightly more than a week, 2 adults, 4 children and 16 dogs had been reported bitten by dogs, all of them near the Beltsville experimental farm.

A stray dog was shot and killed Thursday by M. W. Olsen, of the poultry department of the farm. The dog's head was sent to the University of Maryland biological laboratory at College Park, and yesterday it was found to have been afflicted with rabies.

Both Dr. Hooton and State Veterinarian Dr. Mark F. Welsh were checking the cases of the victims yesterday, but they said they believed all the biting had been done by the dog which is now dead.

Driver of Bus Held for Jury In Death of Two

Judge Rules Negligence Is Shown After Hearing in Fairfax County.

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 120-J.

J. M. Peregoy, of Laurel, Md., driver of a Greyhound bus which struck a vegetable truck on June 13, resulting in the death of two men, was ordered held for the Fairfax County grand jury yesterday in the County Trial Justice Court.

Peregoy is charged with "killing without intent" James M. Hopson and Morris Browdy, of Durham, N. C.

The accident occurred on the Washington-Richmond highway near Ingleside, Va. According to testimony the two men were bringing a load of produce to market in Washington and had stopped to repair a tire when the bus hit the truck.

In overruling a motion to dismiss the charge, Judge Paul E. Brown, of the Trial Justice Court, held that "sufficient evidence of negligence had been presented to warrant a grand jury investigation." Bond was set at $1,000, pending action of the grand jury.

The Lee District Improvement Association is sponsoring a rally day July 4 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Staub at Burke, Va. The rally is to be in the nature of a reunion of the citizens of Lee district. Democratic candidates for the county offices in the primary election on August 6 have been invited to attend and make short addresses. Music will be furnished by the Volunteer Firemen's Band of Falls Church, and during the evening a program of games and fireworks has been planned.

The Guild of the Good Shepherd at Burke, Va., will give a bingo party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cam Sheads on the Burke Station road tonight.

Mrs. W. W. Louk and Mrs. Will Bennett have been elected to represent the Vienna Parent-Teacher Association next year at meetings of the Fairfax County Federation of School Leagues and Parent-Teacher Associations.

Mrs. W. G. Mills, the new president, has named Mrs. Wainwright Bauman chairman of her welfare committee; Mrs. W. W. Louk chairman of landscaping and grounds, Mrs. Louis Denham, membership; Miss Louise Wine, program. Other chairmen of standing committees will be named later. Frank Fouche was appointed to interview Superintendent of Schools W. T. Woodson to ask that heat be piped into the auditorium before the fall term opens.

Carl Allensworth, Vienna's leading blind citizen, will be in charge of a special booth at the Order of Fraternal Americans carnival which opens tonight and continues through next week. Allensworth will be assisted by Miss Catherine May, of the Federal Bureau of Vocational Guidance, of Washington. The booth will contain articles made by the blind, including woven leather belts made by Allensworth, and a display of dolls made by blind girls of Washington. Allensworth will also give demonstrations of his skill at chair caning. All of the proceeds of sales from this booth will be devoted to use of the blind rather than going into the order's standard charity fund for the support of four orphans' homes.

George Darne has been elected treasurer of Betsy Ross Council, No. 21, Daughters of America, to fill the post vacated by the resignation of Stanley Twombley. The officers elected at the June meeting will be installed by District Deputy State Councilor Miss Bessie Blincoe, of Ballston, at a special meeting on July 10. The regular meeting Monday night has been canceled by special dispensation, in order to permit the Daughters to assist with the O. F. A. carnival. They will be in charge of ice cream, lunch and other refreshments.

The Rev. Garland M. Butt, pastor of Herndon Circuit of the M. E. Church South, has announced that the Arnon M. E. Church South at Forrestville, Va., will have an all-day meeting at the church tomorrow with a picnic lunch at noon to celebrate the forty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the church.

Guest speakers will be the Rev. Oliver, of the Hyattsville, Md., M. E. Church South, and the Rev. J. C. Dugger, of the Marshall M. E. Church, a former pastor of the Herndon Church. Special music has been arranged.

Count Rene de Chambrun To Marry Josette Laval

Daughter of Premier of France Will Become Bride of Nephew of the Late Nicholas Longworth.

Members of diplomatic and resident society, who have been busy during the past month attending fashionable weddings and choosing gifts for future brides, will be interested to learn of the engagement of Mlle. Josette Laval, daughter of the Premier of France, M. Pierre Laval, to Count Rene de Chambrun, son of Gen. and Mme. de Chambrun, of France.

Mlle. Laval will be remembered by many in Washington for sne accompanied her distinguished father in the autumn of 1931 when he spent four days in the Capital on a conference on international affairs. She attended the large dinner given at the White House by President and Mrs. Herbert Hoover and the following evening at a dinner and dance given by Mlle. Reine Claudel, daughter of the Ambassador of France at that time, and Mme. Pierre Claudel.

Count de Chambrun's mother was the former Miss Clara Longworth, sister of the late Speaker of the House. Mr. Nicholas Longworth. A direct descendant of the Marquis de Lafayette, he is a nephew of Count Charles de Chambrun, French Ambassador to Italy, who was married last November to Princess Lucien Murat and a daughter of the late Duc and Duchesse de Rohan, who made her home in the twelfth century fuedal castle of the de Rohans in Brittany.

Count Rene de Chambrun is well known in this country as he has frequently visited in Washington and spent some time in New York, where he held a position. His uncle, Count Charles de Chambrun, an honorary citizen of the United States, was born in Washington and visited here at the conclusion of the World War on a special mission. Another Marquis de Chambrun married Miss Margaret Rives Nichols.

Mr. Washburn, D. C., Engaged To Miss Talbot

Englewood Girl of Colonial Descent; Fiance Is Former Envoy's Son.

Mr. and Mrs. Earle Talbot, of Englewood, N. J., have announced the engagement of their younger daughter, Miss Barbara Tahoe Talbot, to Mr. Albert Lincoln Washburn, son of Mrs. Washburn and the late Mr. Albert H. Washburn, of Washington and Hanover, N. H.

Miss Talbot attended Dwight School in Englewood and is a graduate of the Scoville School in New York City. Later she specialized in geology at Barnard College. She is a member of the Appalachian Mountain Club and an active member of the Junior League.

Miss Talbot, on the maternal side, is a granddaughter of the late Mrs. Helen M. Scoville, well known educator of New York City, and the late Maj. Squire Chase Scoville, of Watertown, N. Y. On the paternal side she is the granddaughter of Mrs. Amy N. Talbot, of Washington and San Francisco, Calif., descendant of colonial families, and the late Mr. C. F. A. Talbot, of San Francisco.

Mr. Washburn was graduated from Dartmouth College this June, having prepared at Le Rosey Institute, Rolle, Switzerland, and at the Clark School in Hanover, N. H. At college he was a member of Phi Gamma Delta fraternity, Paleopitus, Green Key, Casque and Guantlet and Dartmouth Outing Club and represented his college in many of the intercollegiate ski meets. He was a member of last year's Dartmouth-Harvard expedition, which accomplished the first ascent of Mount Crillon in Alaska.

Mr. Washburn's father was the late Albert H. Washburn, of Massachusetts, lawyer and diplomat, whose distinguished career in the service of his State and country included the post of envoy to Austria for eight years and culminated in his appointment as ambassador to Japan prior to his death in 1930. Mrs. Washburn is the former Florence Bell Lincoln, of Springfield, Mass.

High Officials Of Canada See Tennis Tourney

Sir Francis Floud and Wife and Daughter in Play at Seignory Club.

Seigniory Club, Quebec, June 28. Canadian tennis has been given a certain social-political stimulus by the new British High Commissioner, Sir Francis Floud, an active sportsman who, with his daughter Mollie and Lady Floud, played here last week-end in an inter-club tournament. With Sir Francis and his family on its team, the Rideau Lawn Tennis Club defeated Hillside Club of Montreal in an annual match on the picturesque red clay courts here.

The Earl of Gosford, whose home is in New York City, motored to the Seigniory Club from his farm in Vermont, accompanied by Capt. and Mrs. McEwen, of New York, and was a spectator at the tennis matches.

Signor Luigi Petrucci, Italian Royal Consul General to Canada, and his daughter, Maria; Capt. Fisher-Rowe, one of the aides de camp from Government House in Ottawa, and several other prominent persons of Ottawa, also were among the spectators.

Lady Moyra Ponsonby, daughter of the Governor General of Canada, and Lady Bessborough, who return to England at the end of the Governor General's term this autumn, and Mlle. Nicolle Brugere, daughter of the French Minister to Canada, were entertained at tea at the Seigniory Club manor house, formerly the home of Louis Joseph Papineau. The latter's parents, M. Raymond Brugere, French Minister to Canada, and Mme. Brugere, together with Andre Seigfried, the distinguished French writer and his wife and daughter, drove the guests from Ottawa.

The gay gathering on the courts anticipated the club's international tournament scheduled for August 23 to 25. It will be preceded by another outstanding event, the annual horse show from August 15 to 18, to which the Governor General of Canada has extended his patronage. Another interesting gathering is anticipated for Monday, a Canadian national holiday, when yacht club cruisers will visit the Seigniory Club harbor. The club will celebrate the fifth anniversary of the opening of the Log Chateau.

Cool and Quiet Grill Features English Fare

London Atmosphere Waits Diners; Powder and Compact for $1.45.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

A LITTLE bit of England right here in Washington! A little grill room, almost within the shadow of the White House.

Those who know their London will love it! And those who like to dine where it's cool and quiet, and the food is "topping," will count this a rare find.

Next time you're strolling down lower Connecticut avenue keep your eyes open for a large bay window covered with a filmy voile. Beyond this lies a long, softly-lighted room which might have been transplanted from London itself. Snowy white cloths on the tables, fresh bouquets, heavy oak paneling on the walls! A myriad of little Tudor touches!

It's right here you'll find such tempting viands as English trifle, kidney pie, roast beef par excellence, and beef steaks with real appetite appeal.

After the hurry and hubbub of a morning's shopping, or a long, gruelling day at the office, what a boon to drop by here for luncheon or dinner, and enjoy the calm, restful, dignified atmosphere, along with a meal that words fall short of describing.

With both luncheon and dinner you have dainty hors d'oeuvres. And if you prefer an American or French cuisine to English, you have a choice.

Luncheons cost 55 or 75 cents. Dinners range from 75 cents to $1.25. Here your time and money are well spent!

Bargain in Compacts.

Like unique bargains? Here's the real lowdown on one. A compact and a box of powder (a large box, too) for only $1.45! There was a time, not so long ago, when you would have paid two dollars for these two things together. But now, thanks to this special offering, they're yours at a bargain price.

The powder is made by an English concern which is well known for its high quality cosmetics. It's a powder you can depend on to give your skin a soft, flattering, chiffon finish.

The compact, a glowing cold color, is thin and light, especially adapted to crowded handbags and small pockets.

Incidentally you may have your initials or name engraved on it for only 5 cents per letter.

Shoulder Showers.

The last word in showers! Have you seen them? Shoulder showers they're called. They fasten on to any type faucet at one end. At the other end there's a loop which fastens around your neck. This is pierced so that when you turn the water on, a small deluge comes through the tiny holes and pours down over your body.

Women, of course, are waxing enthusiastic over the new showers for the simple reason they can enjoy them without having their hair splashed and drenched in the process.

There are few things more appealing in hot weather than a cool, revivifying shower. Don't let $1 hold you back! Go down now and invest in this ideal little modern convenience, suited to homes and summer cottages alike.

Call Ruth Anne Davis, of The Washington Post, National 4200, Extension 305, for further information, or write, inclosing stamped, addressed envelope.

IF JUNE 29 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:30 a. m. to 12:30 p. m., from 3:30 to 5:30 p. m. and from 8:30 to 10:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 7:30 to 9:30 a. m., from 12:30 to 2:30 p. m. and from 5:30 to 7:30 p. m.

It will be wise not to insist on having your own way, should you encounter opposition to some trifling matter on this day. If in doubt as to the proper course to pursue in some social activity, remember sometimes "two heads are better than one," so consult one which you believe contains plenty of good common sense.

If a woman, and June 29 is your birthday, you are probably a naturally born comedienne, and can be just as entertaining off, as well as on, the professional stage. Be very careful popularity does not spoil you. Money should never cause you any great concern, for most of your financial problems probably will be solved easily. As a hostess, secretary, professional dancer, actress, or receptionist you should attract attention, as well as make money. Married life should bring you many blessings.

If a man, and June 29 is your natal day, among your virtues is probably a well developed sense of humor, which will be one of your most valuable assets. Alert and energetic, with the ability to express yourself well both by word of mouth and by writing, fame may come to you as an author, newspaperman, lecturer, preacher, actor or educator, and as a salesman you should be exceptionally fine.

This BUSINESS of LIVING

Woman of 37, Married 10 Years, Surfeited With Aimless Social Activities, Yearns for Domesticity; Husband Unsympathetic.

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: I am a married woman of 37. My husband is 39. We have no children, because my husband doesn't want children. He wants us to be free to come and go and have a good time with other childless couples, or those who have enough money to delegate the care of their children to paid nurses and governesses and boarding schools.

• • • •

We have been married nearly ten years and I suppose it's too late for me to have children now, even if my husband should change his mind and want them. But this is my situation: I am becoming a nervous wreck from keeping up the aimless social pace he sets, a constant round of parties, flirting, dancing, drinking, golfing, bridging, and so on.

• • • •

For years I tried conscientiously to be the kind of wife I thought he wanted: the kind who is attractive to other men and envied by other wives for her popularity with men. But I'm sick of the whole game, actually, physically sick.

• • • •

I have tried at times to make my husband realize we're wasting our lives and haven't a real friend we could count on if we were down and out, and he either teases me about talking like a "hangover" or gets angry and asks me why I married him, if nothing he likes or does suits me. I still care more for my husband than any man I've met in the crowd we go with, but I must admit the early love for him has died. Instead, I've developed what I suppose is a habit of faithfulness to him, and a constant, anxious, almost motherly desire to protect his health, to present him in the best light to his so-called friends and to make him happy by running the kind of home he likes, which is constant open house when we're not on the go ourselves.

• • • •

Is there anything you could suggest for changing the pattern of our married life at this late date? Any appeal I could make to him which might lead him to settle down? I have thought some of adopting a child if I could get him to share my dream on the subject. What is your advice to an UNHAPPY WIFE?

Abandon "Merry-Go-Round."

DEAR UNHAPPY WIFE: Although your husband won't listen to reason, there's a possibility he can be made to see reason. You say you have developed "a habit of faithfulness to him." This suggests he has intuitively placed complete dependence in you, to which you have intuitively responded. Therefore, since he is dependent upon you, it's very possible he may follow your lead, if he finds you are no longer following his.

• • • •

Instead of continuing to camouflage the emptiness of your married life by a never-ending pursuit of almless social activities, just step down off the merry-go-round, pleasantly but firmly. Start now to build a more normal and satisfactory life of your own within your marriage. If you have any friends whose intelligence you respect, tell them frankly why you propose to drop out of the social whirl; for the others, any polite pretext—possibly a plea of ill health—should suffice.

• • • •

Establish a regime of more or less regular hours, sufficient to take account of a proper amount of healthfully wearying outdoors exercise, such as walking, riding, gardening, golfing, of absorbing intellectual pursuits, such as study of music, art, writing, drama literature; of some seriously approached hobby, such as welfare work with children; and make a definite effort to create new social contacts which will bring you such friends as share your own intellectual and spiritual enthusiasms.

• • • •

Don't urge your revised mode of life upon your husband. Let it be understood that you have of necessity elected it for yourself but leave him free, by implication at least, to go his social way alone, if go he must.

• • • •

Miserably uphappy and actually ill as you are now, if you can, by changing your way of living, reclaim a measure of health and contentment, the effect will not be lost on your husband, if he cares for you at all. In any event, I think your only hope of influencing him for the better (in accordance with your philosophy) is by example rather than preachment.

• • • •

If and when your husband is willing to settle down to a more domesticated way of living, it will be time enough to consider adopting a child. To bring a child into a home as emotionally divided as yours is at present, would be to do an injustice to the child. M. H.

Pattern No. 870.

THE SLIM, young bride can easily find becoming daytime cottons. But how about the homemaker whose figure is equally good but not equally slender? This design is for her. It is crisp, pretty and easy to wear. The skirt is straight in front, with a shaped panel in the back.

The pattern includes a long-sleeved, more formal version as well as this one with its tiny sleeves and touches of white. A large instruction chart comes with the pattern. This design is for sizes 36 to 46. Size 40, with short sleeves, requires 3¾ yards of 35-inch material and 1 yard for the collar and sleeve tabs.

Mrs. Kennon's Biscuit Recipe Wins 1st Prize

Maryland and Virginia Women Second, Third; Entries Numerous.

THAT THE ART of biscuit making has not been lost by the present generation is proven by the large number of entries received in The Post's biscuit recipe contest this week.

Mrs. Mary M. Wilson, 1111 Stratton road, Silver Spring, Md., is the winner of the second prize, $2, for her butterscotch biscuit recipe, and Mrs. Clarence Hirst, of Falls Church, Va., third prize, $1, for an orange tea biscuit recipe.

Those receiving honorable mention include Mrs. A. H. Wille, 527 Shepherd street northwest, for her recipe for appleton biscuits; Mrs. Isabel Rothwell, 1531 Wisconsin avenue northwest, for her old English raisin tea biscuit recipe; Mrs. Lee Duncan, Alexandria, Va., for her egg biscuit recipe; Miss Nellie Reed, 3038 N street northwest, for her recipe for Maryland beaten biscuits.

Cream of Tartar Biscuits.

2 cups flour
2 level teaspoons cream of tartar
½ level teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons fat
½ to 2/3 cup milk

Sift all dry ingredients, cut in fat, stir in milk just enough to incorporate all dry material. Cut in rounds, brush with melted butter and bake at 425 degrees F. for 12 minutes.

For cheese biscuits, add ½ cup of grated yellow cheese to dry ingredients.

Butterscotch Biscuits.

2 cups flour
4 tablespoons shortening
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
2/3 cup of milk or water

Work shortening into sifted dry ingredients. Add liquid to make a soft dough, handling as little as possible. Roll lightly into a sheet about ¼-inch thick, using a doughnut cutter with removable center. First cut a biscuit with the center circle removed, then put the center back and cut one like a doughnut. Place this on the solid cut. Fill the hole with a lump of butter and brown sugar. Cut a small circle of dough with just the center, and place on top to cover the butter and brown sugar. Bake on a greased sheet in a hot oven 450 degrees F. for 15 minutes.

Orange Tea Biscuits.

2 cups flour
1 cup milk
3½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter

Mix dry ingredients. Then add milk. Handle lightly and roll on bread board. Cut any size desired. Place in baking pan and make a small depression in the top of the biscuits with the handle of a silver knife, which has been dipped in melted butter. Place in this 1 cube of sugar which has been dipped in orange juice. Add 3 drops of melted butter to top of sugar. Sprinkle over all grated orange rind. Bake immediately in a hot oven.

Appleton Biscuits.

3 cups flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons butter
1 egg
1 cup sweet cold milk

Sift flour, salt and baking powder. Work in the butter with the fingers. Combine beaten egg and milk and add these ingredients to the mixing bowl. Stir well, turn out on floured board. Pat with hands to one-half inch thickness. Cut with biscuit cutter and place in buttered pan. Turn each biscuit over as you put it in the pan so that a little butter will spread to both sides. Bake about 20 minutes in a hot oven. By adding 3 teaspoons sugar, this recipe makes a delicious short cake for berries or other fruit.

Old English Raisin Tea Biscuits.

1 tablespoon lard heaping
½ cup boiling water
1 cup scalded milk

When luke warm, add 6 cups flour, 1 cup raisins, yeast cake which has been dissolved in ½ cup luke warm water and ½ teaspoon sugar. Knead and let rise 2 hours. Shape into tea biscuits and let rise again ½ hour. Bake in hot oven from 12 to 15 minutes. Rub tops with butter. This recipe makes about 1½ dozen.

Contest Seeks Favorite Food Served to Men

What is your husband's favorite dish? What do you serve him on his birthday or when you want to give him a special treat? Fried chicken, potpies, chocolate cake, blackberry cobbler or what not?

Whatever it is that will soothe his temper and bring a smile to his face, enter it in The Post recipe contest this week.

All recipes should be sent to Dorothea Duncan, Home Economics Editor of The Washington Post. Only one recipe from each contestant will be considered for a prize. All recipes should be received on or before Thursday of next week.

Type recipes if possible. If not, write them neatly in ink. The name and address of the sender should appear on each sheet submitted.

Underwood & Underwood.

Capital Visitor Writing Another Drama

Mrs. Mary Axelson Is Guest of Parents on Iowa Avenue.

By Malvina Lindsay.

HAVING A BABY is one way of landing on Broadway. But Mary McDougal Axelson, who followed that route, maintains there are plenty of other equally interesting methods. Falling in love is one. Falling out of love another. Facing old age still another. And drawing near to the great adventure of death may be the most effective of all.

That is all predicated, of course, on the adventurer's ability to write clearly and simply of these experiences in a way that will move others.

"What the theater needs today is the vitality of real life," says Mrs. Axelson, author of the widely discussed maternity ward play and movie, "Life Begins." "The great experiences of living that come to us little fluttering human beings are the material of which drama is made. Too many plays being written today are weak rehashes of those the writers have seen. The authors do not go down into themselves for the dramatic experiences of life."

Old Age Theme of New Play.

Old age is the theme of Mrs. Axelson's new play. She obtained material for it from life, going to the "Tin Can" cities about New York and visiting with their elderly inhabitants. A dump heap in Brooklyn where 2,000 persons live was one of her laboratories.

The same thorough research was employed for "Life Begins," which as a movie has stirred audiences throughout the world and which is to be presented for the first time in England. While in the hospital in Oklahoma City where Mary Yvonne was born, Mrs. Axelson kept a journal in which she recorded maternity ward events and conversation. Later she visited lying-in hospitals in New York to check all details of her play.

"If one detail is false it breaks the illusion of reality," she says.

Out of life rather than her own imagination come most of Mrs. Axelson's characters and for this she makes no apology. "I feel that a play lacks vitality if its characters are not drawn from life," she says. "All but one character in 'Life Begins' were portrayals of real people."

Widely Known for Poetry.

As Mary McDougal, Mrs. Axelson was widely known for her poetry before she ventured into playwriting. Her verse appeared in leading magazines and newspapers. With her sister, Violet McDougal, she is the author of "Wandering Fires," a volume of verse. While her husband, Ivar Axelson, was teaching economics at the University of Oklahoma she began the study of playwriting. Then into her own life came the stuff of drama—the birth of her daughter. While at the hospital she resolved to portray the varying reactions of the women in her ward—the housewife, the convict's wife, the night club hostess, scores of others—as they faced the experience of childbirth. "I wanted to catch the feel of life and death sweeping through the hospital walls," she says.

She worked eight months on the first draft of her play. Its entire writing took about two years. One day, starting to drive from Hollywood to New York, she announced, "I will have a play on Broadway in a year." That, in spite of the fact that it takes the average beginning playwright ten years to make the Great White Way. All her friends and relatives along the way laughed at her—all but one, an uncle, in Mississippi, who Mrs. Axelson says, "had scarcely heard of Broadway and thought, of course, I could do anything."

In New York Mrs. Axelson enrolled in a course of playwriting at Columbia University and completed her play. It was produced by university players in 1932. A Broadway producer bought it. After a run in New York it was bought for the movies. The movie purchasers had not intended making a feature of it until they observed the actors weeping so that the mascara smeared their faces. Even the camera men were wiping their eyes.

The film was featured both in this country and abroad. It has been one of the most successful American films ever shown in foreign countries. Audiences have laughed and cried over it in Sweden, Norway, Italy, France, Japan, South America and Canada.

Now Mrs. Alexson is so happy writing plays she wants everyone else to do likewise. She does not speak gloomily of the "hard work" or the "stiff competition." "If you have a play in your system get it out," she advises. "Don't wade in. Leap in. Dive in. If you have had a moving or imporatant experience get it down on paper and go after the technique later. Surely everyone——"

She stopped abruptly. "There I go again. When I wrote poetry I wanted everyone else to write poetry. When I got married, I wanted everyone else to get married. When I had a baby, I wanted everyone else to have a baby. Now some of the people I sold on marriage are coming to me wanting their money back. Maybe I'd better say this, 'Don't write a play—unless you can't help it.'"

NEWS of WOMEN'S CLUBS

Frayed Nerves In Ears Linked To Sea Illness

Throb, Roll of Ship Foreign Stimuli That Upset System, Cutter Says.

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

SEASICKNESS is a nervous reflex that arises from persistent irritation of certain nerves located in the organ of hearing (the inner ear) or in the stomach or in both. We must not blame nerves for objecting to unusual stimuli as we depend on them for our safety as well as for the smooth functioning of the muscles of the body. Hence, whenever the body finds itself in an abnormal situation something is bound to happen.

Laboratory Studies Possible.

Various experiments have been performed in an attempt to interpret seasickness. By means of a rotating chair an individual can be studied in the laboratory. After a short period of whirling in this chair dizziness, unsteadiness of gait, and peculiar muscle movements are brought about. Typical movements of the eyes to the right and left (nystagmus) are also observed. After a short period of rest all symptoms recede, but if the individual is whirled at frequent intervals typical manifestations of seasickness appear—nausea, vomiting slowing of the pulse, pallor of the face, and intense headache. The severity of the illness is increased if the subject moves his head backward and forward during the periods of rotation. By this combined procedure all the semi-circular canals of the ear are stimulated.

In car sickness the dmoinant sensation is one of nausea. This is followed by vomiting, sweating, a profuse flow of saliva, and the appearance of "goose flesh" on the skin. Whenever nausea occurs there is a backward movement of the stomach that may result in vomiting as the normal forward contractions of the stomach are stopped. Strangely enough car sickness is aggravated by hunger and is more frequent in those who travel with an empty stomach.

Pre-voyage Rush Invites Nausea.

Disturbances of the digestive tract often mark the onset of seasickness, hence before taking a long motor or bus trip or ocean voyage, indiscretions of diet should be avoided as well as mental and physical fatigue. Usually there is so much fuss about packing and departing that the traveler arrives on board physically fatigued and susceptible to slight stimuli. For this reason some simple sedative such as sodium bromide is often prescribed. After the symptoms become evident, attempting to walk about only aggravates the condition and usually the greatest comfort will be found in lying down with the eyes closed. Of the numerous remedies recommended few are of value, although every seasoned traveler has a favorite prescription.

Persistent nausea and vomiting often lead to a serious fluid loss and acidosis or alkalosis may develop. For this reason even seasick victims should take fluids even though a portion or all is rather promptly expelled.

Some real friendly chap who possesses a concrete nervous system will try to persuade you that the symptoms are due to your imagination. Keep him with you just long enough to enable you to grasp some hard movable object, then summon your fast failing powers and hurl the missile in his direction with accuracy and speed.

Gen. A. E. Truby To Vacate Post At Walter Reed

Col. Wallace DeWitt Will Be Placed in Charge of Medical Center.

Col. Wallace DeWitt, chief surgeon of the United States Military Academy at West Point, soon will report for duty as commandant of the Army Medical Center, succeeding Brig. Gen. Albert E. Truby, it was learned yesterday.

Gen. Truby is slated for retirement on July 31, when he will reach the statutory age limit. Another change affecting the high command of the Army Medical Corps will bring Col. Raymond F. Metcalfe, at present commandant of the Letterman General Hospital, San Francisco, to Walter Reed as assistant to Col. William L. Keller, the Army's foremost surgeon.

Col. Keller's surgical genius recently was recognized by an act of Congress which designated him as consultant in surgery at Walter Reed for an indefinite period. Although officials believe that Col. Keller, who is 61 years of age, will remain in his present post, it is understood that he is anxious to have Col. Metcalfe come here to relieve him of some of his duties.

Col. Fife Transferred.

Still another change in the Medical Corps setup will bring Col. James D. Fife, at present commanding officer of the Army and Navy General Hospital at Hot Springs, Ark., to the War Department as chief of planning and training in the office of Maj. Gen. Charles R. Reynolds, the surgeon general.

Col. DeWitt, who is expected to be named a brigadier general, served overseas as chief surgeon of the Eighty-third Division and later of the Seventh Army Corps. A native of Wyoming, he is 57 years old. He came into the Medical Corps in 1901 as a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania medical school.

As commandant at the medical center, Col. DeWitt will be in charge of the center's professional service schools, as well as the Walter Reed Hospital.

Ends 37-Year Tour.

Eligible for retirement seven years ago, Gen. Truby leaves the military service after 37 years of active duty. His first post was Fort Myer, Va. He has seen service in Cuba, Panama and the Philippines as well as throughout the United States. He has long been recognized as of the world's foremost authorities in the field of medical practice among aviators. He served a tour of special duty between 1919 and 1922 as adviser to the chief of the Air Service and later went abroad to conduct research and practice in this field.

Col. Fife served here from 1926 to 1930 in the office of the Assistant Secretary of War as chief of the planning branch. He is a native of Charlottesville, Va., and was graduated from the University of Virginia in 1897. During the World War he won the Distinguished Service Medal.

Col. DeWitt will be relieved early in July from his duties at West Point to come here. Col. Metcalfe will sail from San Francisco about August 3. Col. Fife will come here shortly after August 1.

Early Action Seen On D. C. Social Bill

Changes Planned by Senate Sub-Committee.

Action by a sub-committee of the Senate District Committee on the District's three social security bills probably will not occur until early next week, as Senator Royal S. Copeland (Democrat), of New York, the chairman, left the city yesterday for the week-end.

The sub-committee plans to meet in executive session at the first opportunity to report the unemployment insurance, the old-age pension, and the needy-blind bills with amendments to make them conform with the national social security legislation.

The principal point at issue is whether the unemployment insurance bill will retain a provision requiring the District to contribute an amount equal to a third of the industrial pay roll tax. District officials and trade organizations have asked that it be eliminated and that an employe tax be substituted.

'Old-Gold' Buyer Takes Good Gold

Police Hunt Woman Who Victimized D.C. Resident.

Police yesterday were investigating a new racket and searching for a woman about 35 years old as its perpetrator.

The report came from Mrs. Irene Butler, of the 1600 block O street northwest, who said a woman came to her door, saying she wished to buy old gold.

Mrs. Butler showed her some old jewelry, police said, and when the woman left, discovered she had stolen a gold ring set with three opals and three diamonds. The ring was worth $25.

The woman sought was described as being 5 feet 5 inches tall and weighing 160 pounds. She wore glasses, had yellow hair and wore a light flowered dress and a small light-colored hat.

Fear of Hunger Drives Man, 69, to Suicide

Hill City, S. Dak., June 28 (AP).—Joe McCarville, 69, was buried today. He shot and killed himself to avoid what he deemed certain starvation. McCarville left a note which read:

"I have existed 11 days today on part of a loaf of bread and potatoes. So I think I will end this suffering with a six-shooter. And it is lucky that I have a six-shooter to do it with."

The body was found two hours after the tragedy by Roy Butler, a neighbor, who was taking McCarville "something to eat."

Frisco R.R. Sues Banking Firms For 11 Millions

Trustees Accuse James Speyer & Co. and J. & W. Seligman & Co.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 28.—Trustees of the St. Louis-San Francisco Railway Co. brought suit for $10,506,090.40 today against 14 officers and directors of the banking firms of James Speyer & Co. and J. & W. Seligman & Co., and Edward N. Brown, director of the St. Louis-San Francisco, for alleged fraud and conspiracy in operation of the road's funds. The road, known as the Frisco, was reorganized in 1916 with the two banking firms as reorganization managers, and it has been in Federal receivership since November, 1932.

Since 1916, the trustees charged in their suit, the banking houses "completely dominated and controlled" the road's affairs. The trustees, John G. Lonsdale and James M. Kurn, charged the banking firms and Brown with selling worthless stock of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad to the Frisco. The Rock Island now is in the hands of trustees appointed by the Federal court after it defaulted on some of its obligations.

Another action, filed simultaneously, asked $1,049,978.33 from the directors of Speyer & Co., and Brown, charging a similar fraud in connection with the sale of 25,000 shares of common stock of the Gulf, Mobile & Northern Railroad Co.

The suit charged that the Frisco's funds were used to buy 183,333 shares of Rock Island common stock by a "confederation and conspiracy between Speyer & Co., and Brown, with the knowledge or consent of J. & W. Seligman & Co."

The Rock Island stock, it was alleged, was purchased by Speyer & Co. at $45.98 a share, sold to the Frisco at $60.23, and was rendered worthless when the Rock Island went bankrupt.

Previously, the complaint further alleged, the banking firms in 1926 sold to themselves 50,000 shares of Frisco common stock which they held in trust for the Frisco for $4,762,500, crediting the sum to the railroad as part payment on the Rock Island purchase. They later resold the Frisco stock at a profit of $346,105.06, in addition to accrued dividends, the trustees alleged.

In the second action, seeking return of $1,049,978.33, the complaint said, Speyer & Co., and Brown, arranged the purchase of the Gulf, Mobile stock by the Frisco, "in order, at the expense of the Frisco, to save Speyer & Co., or a syndicate of which they were members, and who or which owned the stock, from their disastrous investment therein."

Frisco bought the stock, the trustees said, at $38.04, although its market value was only $13.62 a share. The trustees offered to return the stock to Speyer & Co.

Legal Officer

PEYTON R. EVANS.

Evans to Take FCA Counsel's Office Monday

Virginia Democrat Began Farm Credit Services Under Hoover.

In 1927 the Hoover Administration was looking for a lawyer who knew about farm credit problems. It found Peyton R. Evans, a native of Amherst, Va., and a Democrat.

Monday, the Roosevelt Administration officially makes Mr. Evans general counsel of its Farm Credit Administration—chief legal officer of the world's largest financial institution for agriculture.

Mr. Evans has been learning about farm credit problems since 1915. That was the year he took his law degree at the University of Virginia and began building a practice as a farm credit lawyer, representing banks and insurance companies. In the years that followed, until 1927, he learned enough about farm mortgages to make it all right for the Republicans to give a Virginia Democrat a job and for the Administration official who hired him to say, when informed of the brand of the Evans political faith:

Political Faith Ignored

"I don't care what you are. I want someone who can do this job."

The job was to help with the work of reorganizing of the Federal Farm Loan Board, one of the predecessors of the present Farm Credit Administration. Mr. Evans took the job on a ten-day trial basis. He never left it.

He became progressively, assistant counsel, counsel and general counsel of the bureau. When President Roosevelt consolidated all Federal agricultural credit agencies into the Farm Credit Administration, Mr. Evans joined the staff of the new organization as Assistant Land Bank Commissioner. He later became assistant general counsel in charge of litigation.

He's Also An Engineer.

After attending public and private schools in Amherst, Mr. Evans spent four years in the school of civil engineering at Virginia Polytechnic Institute. For a time he worked as an engineer for the Virginia State Highway Commission. Then he decided he wanted to be a lawyer and entered Virginia University. He passed the bar, but the World War disrupted his plans temporarily. He enlisted, served overseas, and achieved a captaincy.

Mr. Evans, appointed FCA general counsel about a week ago to succeed Scott W. Hovey, resigned, takes over the position Monday.

Darcy Named To Take Baton Of Army Band

Assistant Will Be Leader Monday With Stannard on Retired List.

Capt. Thomas F. Darcy, jr., assistant leader of the Army Band since 1926, will be promoted to leadership Monday, according to an announcement yesterday by Secretary of War Dern.

Capt. Darcy will succeed Capt. William J. Stannard, who has led the band since its organization in 1923, Stannard will retire.

With more than 33 years of active service in the Army as a bandsman and chief musician, Stannard is one of America's best known leaders. In his early days he was a pupil of Walter Damrosch and other noted musicians.

Capt. Darcy, the band's new 39-year-old leader, has been in service since 1912. Son of one of the Army's foremost leaders, he enlisted in the service at 18. He became a leader at the age of 22, the youngest person in the American Army to hold such a position.

Darcy went to France in 1917, being wounded in action in the Argonne offensive. He holds the Silver Star and Purple Heart decorations, the Verdun Medal and the French Fourragere.

Charles Haislip Dies At 65, Theater Worker

Charles Haislip, 65, of 1611 Lawrence street northwest, died suddenly at the Columbia Theater yesterday, where he was employed as a fireman.

Haislip was in the basement of the theater when he collapsed. He was dead when he was examined by Dr. Sol Rosen, of Casualty Hospital. It is believed that he suffered a heart attack.

New Leader

CAPT. THOMAS F. DARCY, new leader of the Army Band.

Mrs. Samuel Connor In Garfield Hospital

Mrs. Samuel Connor, Democratic national committeewoman from Kentucky, was recovering yesterday in Garfield Hospital from an intestinal disorder.

She was taken to the hospital from her Washington reesidence, 1909 Q street northwest, May 25, at the order of her physician, Dr. T. E. Neill, who yesterday described her condition as satisfactory. Mrs. Connor is expected to leave the hospital within a week.

WASHINGTON'S FAVORITE WHISKEYS HAVE JUST SPENT A YEAR IN THE WOOD

MEADWOOD AND OLD AMERICAN GROW SMOOTH AND MELLOW IN CHARRED OAK CASKS

THIS IS the cistern room. In these charred oak casks the whiskey is matured to attain its great smoothness...its rich, mellow flavor.

Never before such Value...Fine, Aged, 100 proof Whiskeys for less than $1.00

FOR OVER A YEAR now these two fine whiskeys have been quietly mellowing. Time has imparted its own smoothness.

Full 100 Proof

From the start they were destined to be great whiskeys. Only the choicest ingredients have gone into them. They were made in the heart of the grain country, where the greatest whiskeys come from. And behind them is a long tradition of fine whiskey-making.

2½ Million Barrels

No wonder these two are great whiskeys! They're made by a distilling company that has been producing fine whiskey for over 40 years.

In this time, The American Distilling Company has made over 2½ million barrels of fine whiskey. Meadwood and Old American are among the greatest whiskeys its master distillers have produced.

But try these old and mellow whiskeys for yourself. They offer you a rare treat. If you like Rye, ask your dealer for Old American. If you prefer Bourbon, ask for Meadwood.

Gov. Peery Assigns Profit From Liquor To State and Cities

$3,675,000 Fund Split Into 4 Parts for Distribution.

$1,000,000 Goes To Municipalities

Virginia Treasury Will Get $2,175,000 Under Law.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., June 28.—Gov. Peery today split the estimated $3,675,000 profits from Virginia's State liquor monopoly for the current fiscal year four ways, setting up a $500,000 reserve fund for the ABC board, ordering into the State treasury $1,675,000 earmarked for it by the control law, and allowing $1,500,000 to be divided one-third to the State and two-thirds to its municipalities.

The reserve fund of $500,000 represents approximately the investment of profits in stock and fixtures owned by the board, leaving the estimated $3,175,000 in cash as of June 30 to be distributed according to the terms of the ABC act passed by the 1934 General Assembly.

Audit Due in Month.

Distribution of the excess profits will be made as soon as the State auditor's report for the fourth quarter, showing the exact profits for that period, are available, the Governor announced. He said he expected the audit report about the first of August.

The $1,000,000 share of the excess profits melon that will go to the localities "will be apportioned by the treasury of Virginia upon warrants of the comptroller, to the several counties, cities and towns of the Commonwealth on the basis of population * * * according to the last preceding United States census."

The Governor reached his decision as to the amount of the reserve fund after several conferences with State officials, including Budget Director Bradford, Comptroller Combs and members of the ABC board.

Reserve Size News.

It had been known for some time that the liquor board's net profits for the year would aggregate about $3,600,000, of which $1,675,000 was allocated to the State by law, but the amount of the reserve fund and the excess profits to be divided by the State and its municipalities was a subject of speculation until today.

The Governor said he had had a number of recent inquiries from Virginia cities. Several months ago a meeting of Virginia Mayors, held at the capitol, urged that the Governor release the localities' share of the ABC profits then for use in local relief expenditures, but their appeal produced no immediate result.

The Governor pointed out today that the ABC board had not used its original appropriateion of $250,000 granted by the General Assembly to finance the agency during its early days. Instead, the board operated on its credit at the beginning.

Estimated payments to Virginia cities included Alexandria, $9,971; Bristol, $3,650; Danville, $9,185; Hampton, $2,635; Harrisonburg, $2,986; Lynchburg, $16,788; Newport News, $14,210; Norfolk, $53,557; Portsmouth, $18,871; Radford, $2,571; Richmond, $75,531; Roanoke, $28,575; South Norfolk, $3,244; Staunton, $4,950; Williamsburg, $1,559.

Jail Frees Woman For Visit of Stork

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, June 28.—About to become a mother, a woman prisoner in the city jail, unable to furnish bail on two liquor charges, was released on her own recognizance today by State's Attorney Bernard J. Wells so that her child might be born outside prison.

The woman was Mrs. Anna Baronowski. Her bond was set at $2,000 on charges of selling whisky without a license and of having untaxed liquor in her possession.

Murder Trial Of Quesenberry Opens Monday

Prosecution Hopes to Get Facts on Loudoun Liquor Operations.

By the Associated Press.

Leesburg, Va., June 28.—Tom Quesenberry, rugged and picturesque mountaineer, will face the threat of the electric chair when he goes before a jury in Loudoun County Circuit Court Monday on charges of killing C. J. McClary, Alexandria police officer, but this is not expected to force from him information involving others in Loudoun liquor operations.

John Galleher, former Commonwealth's attorney and now relief works co-ordinator for Virginia, who will conduct the case for the State under appointment as special prosecutor, has said he will ask the death penalty. He also has indicated his belief that testimony at the liquor trial will tend to throw light on liquor operations in this county.

Officers and newspapermen who have observed the prisoner believe he will stick to the old mountain code of silence where others are concerned.

"I ain't gonna tell on nobody," he has repeatedly said.

Stilson H. Hall and Lucas Phillips, appointed by the court to defend the mountaineer, continued reticent concerning their plans, but it is believed that Quesenberry will plead not guilty and tell the jury he shot McClary, March 17, only after he believed his own life in danger from the officer's bullets.

Locked in a steel cell in the county jail here since Federal and State officers captured him, as he slept on his rifle and revolver in a ravine in a heavily-wooded area, Quesenberry awaits trial with a stolid air. No relatives have been to visit him. A Baptist minister who lived for years among mountain folk has been his only visitor. The minister has talked freely with the prisoner and "Old Tom" spends much of his time reading the Bible. His only complaint is that rheumatism is in "my jints."

Departing Pastor Honored.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Frederick, Md., June 28.—The congregation of St. John's Catholic Church gave a farewell reception to the Rev. Father Thaddeus I. Skrzynski, assistant pastor for five years, who will assume the pastorate of St. Joseph's Church, Carrollton Manor, near Buckeystown, Sunday.

Right of Way Unit Dropped To Cut Costs

Maryland Board Hopes to Receive Donations of Needed Land.

Realty Acquired Over Period of Years to Be Sold.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Baltimore, Md., June 28.—The State roads commission has abolished its rights of way department and also has decided to sell all unoccupied real estate which it has acquired over a period of years.

Dr. Homer L. Tabler, chairman of the commission, announced that the rights of way department had been abolished due to the excessive cost of operation and that after July 15, when the order becomes effective, the work would be done by the commission's engineering department.

A number of employes in the department, including engineers and draftsmen, as well as attorneys, will be dropped.

Hopes For Donations.

In accordance with the policy of the commission that it will not consider any road application until the right of way has been obtained for the entire distance of the road, it also considers a new road will increase the value of adjacent property and that therefore it will expect this to be donated rather than purchased by the commission, it was said.

The right of way for a new road on the Eastern Shore was donated this week, Chairman Tabler said.

Any case of damage claimed by owners of property through which a new road will pass will be closely examined before such claims are considered.

Entire Tracts Bought.

This policy, the commission believes, will discourage real estate developments which may contemplate amortization of part or all of the original investment, as the commission interprets requests for a new road to be a necessity and a convenience of the traveling public.

The unoccupied property which the commission has accumulated over a period of years, consists of houses and land, which the commission was compelled to purchase in obtaining rights of way for roads. In many cases it was necessary to purchase an entire plot, whereas only a small portion was used for right of way.

Chairman Tabler said that the cost of obtaining rights of way for roads has been so great that often little remained for building the road.

5 CCC Camps Organize July 1 in Elkins Area

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Elkins, W. Va., June 28.—Five CCC camps, two of them new, will be organized July 1 in the Elkins district. Two officers and 23 men will be stationed at each camp, with a total force to be brought up to 206 some time in July.

One new camp is located on the Pickens road in Randolph County and the other at Onego, Pendleton County. The old camps are at Thornwood, near Durbin; Sugar Grove and Cass.

Tomato Packing Started.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Heathsville, Va., June 28.—Several of the early tomato packing houses in Northumberland County opened this week, paying 50 cents per ⅝ basket for the fruit. J. H. Dulaney, of Salisbury, Md., and John T. Handy, of Crisfield, Md., are among the outside packers. Several small shipments have already been made to Baltimore and other markets.

Court Frees Mother Who Took Children

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, June 28.—Mrs. Lillian Rochester, of Birmingham, Ala., arrested in Washington on a charge of kidnaping her own children, Henry jr., 6, and Mary Elizabeth, 4, was dismissed by Magistrate Hugh H. Jones, jr., here today.

The children were returned to an aunt, Maybelle Ecker, of Sparrows Point, to whose custody they had been given by an Alabama court. Mrs. Rochester promised not to try to recover them, saying the only reason she had done so was that her husband had written her from Baltimore asking her to come here and get them.

5 Hurt, 1 Lost As Blast Sets Barge Aflame

By the Associated Press.

Urbana, Va., June 28.—Three men injured this afternoon in an explosion on the oil-laden barge Wingfield, a Negro member of whose crew is missing, were rushed to the Marine Hospital at Norfolk tonight by way of Yorktown and Newport News.

Two other men, on the accompanying tug Francis, which was set fire from the blazing barge, were less seriously hurt.

The men taken to the hospital were Arthur Riecke, captain of the barge; Benjamin Wilson, chief engineer, who was the most seriously burned, and Willis Raymond Horseman, cook on the Wingfield, all of Baltimore.

The missing man was known only by his christian name, Henry. He was believed drowned.

Carrol Parks, Baltimore, mate of the Francis, has a burned hand. He cut the tug loose from the barge. Luther Bramble, one of the tug's crew, was blown overboard but escaped with minor burns.

The injured men were brought ashore here and first aid was given by local doctors.

Exploding with terrific force, the barge was instantly wrapped in flame, which was swept by the wind onto the tug. All windows on the tug were shattered by the blast, which was distinctly heard in Urbana.

Hagerstown Firm Sells Business Site

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., June 28.—The largest real estate deal in several years was closed here yesterday when Edward Jaegerman, New York, purchased a business property in the downtown section, fronting 41 feet on West Washington street, for $60,000 from the City Realty Corporation.

Sherman M. Fairchild, president of the Fairchild Aviation Corporation, with a large airplane building plant here, announced that 42 Fairchild airplanes in the 1,000-5,000-pound classification had been licensed by the Department of Commerce during the first five months of 1935. Eighteen of the same type were built during the corresponding period in 1934.

The Hagerstown Light & Heat Co., which operates the local gas plant, announced that after dropping to a low point in November, 1933, its number of consumers here this week had passed the peak reached in November, 1931.

Grand Jury to Sift Reported Shortages

Richmond, Va., June 28 (AP).—A Hustings Court grand jury will attempt to determine Monday if any criminal liability exists in reported shortages in the accounts of City Sergeant John G. Saunders and Chancery Court Clerk Charles O. Saville.

State Auditor L. McCarthy Downs reported that Saunders was $10,384.83 short and that Saville was short to the extent of $2,643.

Judge John L. Ingram said the grand jury would be asked to consider the Saunders case and Commonwealth's Attorney T. Gray Haddon said the grand jury also would be asked to look into the Saville matter.

Elkton Felon Camp To Be Opened Soon

Richmond, Va., June 28 (AP).—State highway officials said today the convict camp to be placed near Elkton on the Spotswood Trail between there and Harrisonburg would be set up "about the middle of July."

Henry G. Shirley, Virginia highway commissioner, this morning studied plans for relocating and straightening the road with engineers of the department, but announced that no decisions had been made on changes in the route. The highway department previously has announced that the convict camp will include approximately 100 men.

U. S. Sets Up 10,000 Acres As Preserve

Work Already Is Under Way at Area Near Waynesboro, Va.

State Legislation Giving Wild Life Rights Is Awaited.

Development of a 10,000-acre wild life preserve and recreational area near Waynesboro, Va., is contemplated by the Federal Government.

Work already is under way on the project. A recreational Lake near Sherando on Big Creek is to be opened in October with a celebration. The land has been acquired. The only hitch in the program is State legislation necessary to convey to the Federal Government wild life rights now reserved to the Commonwealth.

The preserve would include the 25-acre lake and its 3,000-acre surrounding recreational region, and the big level game refuge lying close by. Connecting lands already have been acquired, making a total area of 10,000 acres.

Hobby of Robertson.

The development is a hobby of Representative A. Willis Robertson, of Lexington, who has offered to the State highway commission a proposal for construction of a scenic highway loop leading out of the preserve, and offering tourist traffic and citizens of Lynchburg and other nearby communities a direct good road into the area.

The route would lead from the refuge touching Mathews Mill, Crabtree Falls, the Montbello Hatchery and Waynesboro, crossing the Skyline drive on top of the mountains in Nelson County, and connecting with the Seminole Highway.

Robertson said the park service lists among its projects the development of Crabtree Falls, giving the route another feature.

The Federal Government already has two men on the refuge, but it can not take full jurisdiction until the State transfers the wild life rights. Maj. Robertson said a bill for the transfer would be introduced in the General Assembly when it meets in January.

Model Refuge.

When the development is complete, said the congressman, the Federal Government plans to make the preserve a model refuge in the East, stocking the woods with turkeys, grouse, and all the wild fowl that will live in the area.

Maj. Robertson said the idea of establishing such a preserve and recreational area originated with Justice H. Cline, who retired from the United States Geological Survey some years ago and went to live at Stuart's Draft.

An invitation has been extended to the Virginia Conservation and Development Commission to visit the area October 19, during its park tour, Maj. Robertson said. He hopes the lake will be ready for formal opening then.

Defeats 29 Aspirants; Will Compete for Shenandoah Title.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New Market, Va., June 28.—Selected as the most beautiful of 29 aspirants, Miss Marjorie Bodell Tidler, 15, blonde daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Tidler, was chosen "Miss New Market of 1935" in the annual beauty pageant Wednesday night. As a result, she will be this city's representative in the annual Valley-wide contest for selection of "Miss Shenandoah Valley," this summer.

Miss Tidler is five feet tall, and weighs 100 pounds. Second, third, fourth and fifth places in the contest were won by Miss Catherine Martz, brunette; Miss Doris Lohr, blonde; Miss Catherine Driver, blonde (last year's winner), and Mrs. Elizabeth Driver, blonde, respectively.

Other contestants included Miss Mary M. Royston, Miss Hazel Branner, Miss Frances Zirkle, Miss Samuella Crim, Miss Elinor Thornton, Miss Nella Newland, Miss Virginia Funkhouser, Miss Arlene Weaver, Miss Grace Madden, Miss Frances Weaver, Miss Betty Brannon, Miss Nancy Martz, Miss Mildred Wickes, Miss Lucille Lonas, Miss Ruby Moyers, Miss Eleanora Riglemon, Miss Polly Anna Lohr, Miss Anna Miller, Miss Bessie Mills, Miss Florine Burkholder, Miss Lorraine Liskey, Miss Marjorie Burkholder, and Mrs. Viola Steele and Mrs. Gertrude Isler.

In addition to the title and a silver cup, presented by the Rev. Lewis Koon, of Emmanuel-Saint Matthews Lutheran Church, Miss Tidler was given an audition today over the Shenandoah Valley's only radio station, WSA, at Harrisonburg.

2 Counterfeit Coins; 336 Days in Prison

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Elkins, W. Va., June 28.—Because he possessed two counterfeit quarter-dollars, Kenneth McCray, alias Larry Kent, of Parkersburg, must serve a year and a day in the Northeastern Penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa. Judge William E. Baker sentenced him in Federal court here after he had confessed.

Crime Check Seen in More Convictions

Cites 3 Months' Record of 364 Punished in 980 Offenses.

By the Associated Press.

Atlantic City, N. J., June 28.—The best method of reducing crime and the work of the criminal courts is to double the percentage of convictions even though punishments are reduced by half, Judge Rowland K. Adams, of the Baltimore City Supreme bench, told the Maryland Bar Association today.

"Crime statistics for the third quarter of 1934, as published by the Baltimore Criminal Justice Commission, show that a total of 980 crimes were reported during the period, that arrests were made in 574 cases, but that in 89 cases the accused was dismissed," Judge Adams said.

"Of the remainder, 313 were convicted in the criminal courts and in addition 51 were sent to the juvenile court for disposal.

"Assuming that all cases referred to the juvenile court were punished, in the final analysis punishment was inflicted in 364 cases, or 38 per cent of a total of 980 reported. Thirty-three, or 9 per cent, of 313 convicted were placed on probation."

Those addressing the association on the administration of criminal law in Maryland were Judge Adams, State's Attorney James C. L. Anderson, of Baltimore County; Stephen R. Collins, Chestertown, and Roscoe G. Rowe, Annapolis.

Bible Class Hears Professor.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Waynesboro, Pa., June 28.—A luncheon meeting of the Men's Bible Class of Trinity Evangelical and Reformed Sunday School was addressed yesterday evening by Prof. Paul Cessna, a member of the faculty of Gettysburg College. The committee on arrangements was composed of D. B. Riddlesberger, I. J. Funk, W. K. Stauffer, Earl Jacobs and Max Black.

Social and Club Notes
Of Towns and Cities in Nearby States

Women's clubs in neighboring States have launched their summer programs with new and unusual presentations. In Staunton, Va., a 4-H summer camp was held at Stokesville, Va., June 17-21, as a preliminary to the summer plans. The camp was under the direction of Miss Ruth Jamison, home agent of Staunton, assisted by J. C. Coiner, farm agent; W. A. Quick, jr., assistant farm agent, and leaders from the clubs, among whom were Mrs. George Harper, Mrs. Carl Thompson, Miss Kitty Coyner, H. H. Houser, Miss Lillian Smith, Miss Julia Davis, Miss Claudine Rosen, Maurice Collins, Miss Anna Lee Tutweiler and Carl Coiner. Miss Gertrude Hottinger and Mrs. W. A. Quick were on the camp staff.

The Augusta County, Va., rural clubs have sponsored a county contest in dressmaking which will close this month. The winner will be sent to Blacksburg to compete in the State contest. Announcement of plans for July made by Miss Ruth Jamison, include demonstrations and the securing of speakers from the local garden clubs for each of the 16 clubs in this district.

Delegates from the Virginia rural clubs are preparing to attend the short summer course to be given at Blacksburg, Va., during the week of July 29.

The Towers Club of Augusta County met yesterday for a discussion of the correct dress contest. Mrs. John Manger presided.

The Jug Bridge Women's Club of Frederick, Md., met Tuesday with Mrs. Evan Carpenter as chairman. The topic for discussion was "Home Management," led by Miss Grace Burgee and Mrs. D. J. Thomas. The chairman presented a program on current and historical events.

The Lewistown (Md.) Women's Club met Tuesday at the Community Hall for a social affair at which the 4-H club members and their mothers were entertained. Following presentation of the club history by Mrs. George Arnold, a box supper was held.

On the same day the Spring Mill Club of Martinsburg, W. Va., met at the Community House, having as leader Mrs. James Small and as alternate Miss Daisy Tice.

Mrs. A. V. Graham was hostess to members of the Inwood Women's Club of Martinsburg, W. Va. Miss Arlene Staub was the leader.

Midsummer's Torrid Heat No Longer Has Evil Effect Upon Film Fare or Fans

Strong Lineup Promised July Picture-Goers

M-G-M to Release 'Big 4'; More Regarding 'Becky'; Amusement Chatter.

(Reprinted from Yesterday's Last Edition.)

By Nelson B. Bell.

Nothing could bear more eloquent testimony to the steadily improving quality of motion pictures than the hot-weather announcements the major first-run exhibitors are able to make.

It was not so long ago that this time of year was looked upon as the beginning of the end of everything good on the screen until Labor Day, at the earliest. Even for a season or two after the refrigerating systems that make the picture houses the coolest places in town had been perfected and pretty generally installed, there was not much in a movie palace but the low temperature to entice a patron inside. All that is changed now.

Hot—and I mean hot—on the heels of the Warner Brothers' "June Parade of Hits," for example, comes now the declaration from the Loew interests that "Escapade," the William Powell starring vehicle scheduled to take possession of the Palace screen following the current engagement of "No More Ladies," is only the first of four "big" pictures that will be released during July by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. It is expected that the entire quartet will be seen at the Palace.

Adapted From German.

"Escapade" had its genesis in the German play, "Masquerade," and was directed by Robert Z. Leonard, former husband of Mae Murray and one of Hollywood's ace megaphonemen. In addtiion to bringing Mr. Powell back in a congenial role, it will introduce Luise Ranier to American audiences. Mlle. Ranier is a widely heralded continental star. There is one other such in the cast in the person of Mady Christians. Surrounding these three are Virginia Bruce, the former and most recent Mrs. John Gilbert; Frank Morgan, Reginald Owen, Laura Hope Crews, Henry Travers and others.

That the combination of Frank Morgan and Reginald Owen in the same cast can be made productive of a considerable amount of nonsense will be recalled by those who remember them with Margaret Sullavan and Henry Marshall in the grossly farcicalized—and I devoutly hope there is some such word—camera version of "The Good Fairy," the Molner play originally introduced as a stage starring vehicle for Helen Hayes.

"Manhattan Madness" is another midsummer film on its way from the M-G-M lot. Its cast is headed by Joel McCrea, Maureen O'Sullivan, Louis Calhern, Adrienne Ames and Ted Healy, under the direction of George Seitz.

Tracy's First for M-G-M.

"The Murder Man" also will be coming along shortly as the first stellar picture for Spencer Tracy, under his new M-G-M contract recently signed. This will be No. 3 on the July list and will have Virginia Bruce—still the former and most recent Mrs. John Gilbert—Louise Henry, Lucien Littlefield, Harvey Stephens, Theodore von Eltz, Lionel Atwill, "Fuzzy" Knight and others in the cast.

Last on the July release schedule is "The Hands of Orlac," which will introduce Peter Lorre as star, supported by Frances Drake, Colin Clive, Ted Healy, Sarah Haden, daughter of Charlotte Walker, former Washington stock star; Henry Kolker, Harold Huber, Isabel Jewel, Edward Brophy and a long roster of others of note. The film is based on an exciting French novel by Maurice Renard.

Who remembers when it used to be necessary to cook up a "Greater Movie Season" every late July in order to insure enough activity at the box office in August to pay the ushers for standing up asleep at their posts?

In case your curiosity has been even slightly aroused by the likeness of Olivia de Havilland, appearing next that of Master Raft, elsewhere on this page, you should be told that Olivia was born in Tokyo, Japan, her father being an attorney temporarily resident with his family in the Nipponese capital at the time. She was raised and educated, however, in the family's old home town of Saratoga, Calif. When Max Reinhardt put on the spectacular Shakespearean comedy, "A Midsummer Night's Dream"—this would be the living production in the Hollywood Bowl—Miss de Haviland played the role of Hermia. Then she was engaged by Reinhardt to play the role in Berkeley, Calif.; San Francisco and on the Eastern tour, and was the first person cast in the Warner Brothers' film version of the fantasy, made under Reinhardt's direction, but not yet released for national exhibition. So now you know.

Old Friends in New Dress.

So much has been written concerning the purely chromatic aspects of "Becky Sharp" since its Washington premiere on the screen of RKO-Keith's Theater a week ago Wednesday night, that the long and distinguished career this Thackeray character has enjoyed in the theater has been largely overlooked.

Scant heed has been paid, for instance, to the coterie of notables Becky was able to marshal around her by the sheer impertinence of her coquetry. There were the Prince Regent George IV, Beau Brummel, celebrated dramatically on his own account by the late Richard Mansfield; the Duke of Wellington, conqueror of Napoleon at Waterloo; the Duchess of Richmond and the poet Shelley, all in step with Becky Sharp's parade of literature, politics, tradition and drama.

The stage personality most closely linked in the American mind with Thackeray's heroine was the late Mrs. Minnie Maddern Fiske. In addition to playing the title role of "Becky Sharp" in the original production of the Langdon Mitchell dramatization of "Vanity Fair," in 1899, she revived it five times during the ensuing three decades. Mrs. Fiske appeared in this role something over 1,100 times.

Has Enlisted Great Ones.

Other great ones of the stage have contributed to the fame of this audacious vixen, several of them still among the theater's foremost living artists. In this list would be included Maurice Barrymore, father of the present "royal family" of the American theater; Tyrone Power, Emily Stevens, Cecelia Loftus, George Arliss, Holbrook Blinn and Basil Sydney, to name only a few.

Now, as "Becky Sharp" comes to the screen, chosen from all the works of fiction by Pioneer Pictures to lead the color era of the cinema, a new galaxy of brilliant names is assembled—Miriam Hopkins, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Billie Burke, Alan Mowbray, Alison Skipworth, Nigel Bruce and scores more.

A Specious Viewpoint.

While it is well not to forget the almost legendary preeminence of this reliable bit of theatrical merchandise, it also has been my conviction from the outset that the introduction of natural color to feature-picture photography would have proved an even greater triumph than it has, had it been associated first with a story less well known, more immediately productive of the elements of surprise and suspense and less firmly fixed in the mind of the reader than this perennial theatrical exhibit in which such a wealth of the finest traditions of the native stage are bound up.

That this is not a tenable viewpoint is emphasized by the box-office history of "Becky Sharp" in every community where it has been shown; but that is my story, even if as usual, I am stuck with it!

Speaking of being "stuck," it would be vastly interesting to know how El Wyn, who presented the "spook" portion of last midnight's special chills-and-fever entertainment at Loew's Fox, became "Ed Wynn" in the cold type of yesterday's column. The two gentlemen are no more the same than Ed Wynn and Wynne Gibson! The columnar confusion must be set down as "just another one of those things." However, last night's was El Wyn's and not the Firechief's party and you can't make anything else out of it.

"Blood Is Thicker, Etc."

Just to afford a rough idea of the extent to which American and British film interests are becoming interwoven, like that famous brand of footgear, take a look at the announcement of the completion of working personnel Alexander Korda has assembled for the making of H. G. Wells' yarn of "100 Years From Now." Or don't take a look, for all I care.

At any rate, the cast, headed by Raymond Massey and Ralph Richardson, includes Maurice Braddell, Edward Chapman, Sophie Stewart, Derrick de Marney, Margaretta Scott, Alan Jeayes, Pickles Livingston and Anthony Holles. If this is not all-English it certainly is all-unknown American!

All Little Pals Together!

The direction, however, will be by William Cameron Menzies, of Hollywood. But George Perinal will do the filming. In case you do not immediately identify George, it was he who did the camera work on "The Private Life of Henry VIII," and "Catherine the Great," two right pert jobs of shuttering, on either side of any man's ocean.

If there isn't enough of the hands-across-the-sea idea and all that sort of twiddle-twaddle in this as yet, then know that all the trick photography in the picture will be done by Harry Zech, responsible for the filming of "Hell's Angels," with Ned Mann handling the special effects.

What! You don't know who Ned Mann is?

Neither do I.

Samuel Goldwyn, the old Oxonian, announces the signing of Lillian Hellman to a long-term contract as script writer. Miss Hellman is author of that highly successful and provocative stage play, "The Children's Hour," dealing with a topic which a few years ago was taboo on any polite rostrum. She has recently completed the screen play for Goldwyn's forthcoming production of "The Dark Angel." Merle Oberon, Frederic March and Herbert Marshall have the leading roles in the film business.

Shakespeare at Sylvan.

Rehearsals for Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream" will begin tonight at 8 o'clock when, at Central High School, Thirteenth and Clifton streets northwest, the Washington Community Players will gather to complete the cast of this season's production, which will be given on Wednesday night, July 10, in the Sylvan Theater on the Monument Grounds, under the auspices of the Community Center Department and the Office of National Capital Parks.

Last season's performance of this work was one of the outstanding events of the Sylvan Theater's summer season. It will be offered again this year as the sixth summer festival of the season with last year's cast virtually intact—J. Edmond Veitch, as Bottom, the weaver; Kent Dyer, as Quince, the carpenter; James M. Rawls, as Flute, the bellows mender; H. Stanley Prothero, as Snout, the tinker; Paul W. Murphy, as Starveling, a tailor, and Harry Crow, as Snug, a joiner.

The comedians will be coached for the forthcoming July performance by Robert Halstead. The production is under the general direction of Bess Davis Schreiner.

Washington's two summer theaters are going great guns! The Roadside Theater is doing S. R. O. business, in its second week of Dion Boucicault's "After Dark," and out at The Odeon, on the grounds of National Park Seminary, at Forest Glen, Md., the National Civic Theater Society is packing 'em in with Emlyn Williams' "A Murder Has Been Arranged." One is a real barn, the other a real theater. Both are well worth attending. Ask anybody.

Stitch-in-Time Note.

Now is the time for all good men to set in their supply of Fourth of July firewater.

Pardon, fireworks is the word.

The wish is father to the drought, or something.

Arts Club

AN EVENING OF DRAMATIC RECITALS. The Arts Club of Washington presents scenes from three classic dramas. Mise en scene arranged and executed by Maj. R. B. Lawrence. Reviewed Thursday evening by W. A. Whitney.

THE PROGRAM.

1. "JEANNE d'ARC," one scene from the drama by Percy Mackaye.
2. "CHANTICLEER," two scenes from the drama by Edmund Rostand.
3. "ROMEO AND JULIET," three scenes from the tragedy by William Shakespeare.

The balcony scene from Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet," supplemented by two later excerpts from the same play, bulwarked the program of dramatic recitals presented last evening in the garden of the Arts Club.

The three Shakespearean selection — the balcony scene, the scene between Juliet and the nurse immediately following, and the potion scene—offered Dorothy Lawrence the opportunity to pit her talents against those locally displayed by Eva Le Gallienne. Reading her lines with precision, Miss Lawrence made an admirable Juliet, but lacked some of that consuming passion generally associated with the character. Edward Stansbury was acceptable as Romeo and Miriam B. Hilton was quite delightful as the nurse.

Opening the program was a scene from Percy Mackaye's "Jeanne d'Arc, with Adelaide Borah playing the title role and Joseph Haltigan doing that of Gerard. From Rostand's "Chanticleer," Violet Pierson effectively read the "Chanticleer's Confession" and "Love's Sacrifice" scenes.

Moose Class Initiated.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., June 28.—Approximately 500 persons attended the initiation of a class named in honor of Police Commissioner Harry W. Matheney last night at Cumberland Lodge, No. 271, Loyal Order of Moose. Following the initiation the lodge celebrated its twenty-fifth anniversary with a supper and entertainment.

Seen in Films Opening Today

The young sophisticate pictured above at left, needless to say, is George Raft, who is said to have one of his best roles in "The Glass Key," opening a week's engagement on the screen at Loew's Fox Theater this morning. The smilingly expectant and youthful beauty on the right above is a newcomer to the screen, who appears in an important role with Joe E. Brown in "Alibi Ike," likewise opening this morning as chief film feature at the Earle. Her name is Olivia de Haviland and the Warners expect great things of her.

Is the modern city only a "persistent form of social disease eventuating in the fate all cities have met?" Frank Lloyd Wright, one of the world's most famous architects, thinks so. He has frankly branded the present-day metropolis as "a natural triumph of the herd instinct over humanity, and therefore a temporal necessity as a hangover from the infancy of the race, to be outgrown only as humanity grows."

However, thinks this architect, there is always hope, and there is the city of the future. His conception of that city, "Broadacre City," a metropolis which will be planned, and which will not "just grow," as Topsy did, a city with no traffic or playground problems, will be placed on exhibition at the Corcoran Gallery this Sunday.

Discussing Mr. Wright's "Broadacre City," which attracted 40,000 persons to its recent exhibition in New York, Laura Vitrey, of The Washington Post staff, in a special article written for the art page of this Sunday's Post, gives an interesting picture of Mr. Wright's work, emphasizing the architectural trails he has blazed, and telling the effect of his pioneer work on present day and future design in this country and abroad.

Cone Collection Analyzed.

In addition to this interesting article, the art page will contain a review, by Harold Rhodenbaugh, of the Cone collection of the works of Henri Matisse, the French "primitive" painter, now on exhibition at the Baltimore Museum of Art. This article, as well as that by Mrs. Vitray, is illustrated.

One of the more interesting articles to be found on the science pages of the Special Article Section is written by Genevieve Smith, who describes a new treatment and cure for the dread hemophilia, or "kings' disease," which has cursed the Bourbon dynasty for generations. This disease, commonly known as "bleeders' disease," may be cured through the injection of a serum made from the venom of poisonous snakes, the article tells, and the treatment has been tested by an Army colonel who actually injected the new serum into his own veins. Other science articles will tell of new inventions recently patented in this country.

In lighter vein, G. C. Gillingham has written an amusing story of the ghosts which are supposed to haunt the dark recesses of the Capitol Building, in particular a "demon cat," which may be found (by the superstitious) stalking majestically through the corridors of Statuary Hall.

For the reader with a more political and social turn of mind, Peter Kihss presents an article on the "tax-the-rich" movement which has been given added emphasis by the Administration's proposal for increased gift and inheritance taxes, while John Maloney writes an article on the agricultural resettlement project through which hundreds of thousands of drought sufferers will be moved to new homes where they may find a new start in life. In addition, "Gallery Glimpses," by Robert C. Albright, will give the reader many pertinent and impertinent peeks behind the scenes in Congress.

New Air Liner Described.

Harris Hull, aviation and military editor of The Post, describes a late type of tri-motor air liner soon to be flown over lines leading into this city. This article, together with many news stories concerning military affairs and reserve officer organizations, will be found on the Army and Navy news page. An article concerning the opening of the C. M. T. C. camps on Tuesday is also featured.

The Amusements Section of The Sunday Post will be especially interesting to the Washington reader, containing, besides Nelson B. Bell's column of comment on the current theater, an article by Rouben Mamoulian, brilliant young director of "Becky Sharp," discussing the miracle of color which promises to make the black-and-white photoplay as ancient as the silent film. Mark Barron comments on the New York theatrical season, current plays and plays which will soon open on Broadway, and a full column of news direct from Hollywood.

Court Styles Delineated.

The society section will contain full coverage of Washington and Eastern social events, profusely illustrated. A special feature of this section will be an article, illustrated with photographs, of the silver jubilee, paying particular attention to the changing style of court dress from 1885, during the reign of Queen Victoria, to the present day.

The problem of summer clothing, suitable for vacation travel, is discussed by Frances Mangum, writing for the Household Pages which are a part of the Society Section, and the weekly article on Beauty is also devoted to vacation and the hot weather months: How to appear cool despite the climbing mercury. Dorothea Duncan's article on foods, Sofia Freseman's column on interior decoration, and Mary Haworth's interesting, vital column, "This Business of Living," will also be found on the Household Pages.

Complete local, State, national and world coverage of news and sports, in particular the finals of the intercollegiate golf tournament at the Congressional Country Club, will be found in The Sunday Post, plus The Post rotogravure section, Post comics, and the "Parade of Youth," the unique newspaper designed specially for boys and girls.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Third summer festival entertainment at the Sylvan Theater. Half-hour concert by the U. S. Marine Band, led by Capt. Taylor Branson. Program: Overture to "Iphigenie in Aulide" (Gluck), ballet suite from "Coppelia" (Delibes), "Ritual Fire Dance" from "El Amor Brujo" (De Falla), "Russian Sailors' Dance" from "The Red Poppy" (Gliere), polka and furlana from "The Bartered Bride" (Smetana), bacchanale from "The Seasons" (Glazunov). Followed by the Lisa Gardiner Dancers in a series of solo and ensemble dances to piano accompaniment by Edith B. Hunter, Henry S. Gregor, R. Dean Shure and LaSalle Spier.

Confident that the late afternoon shower had spent its force, a large audience gathered last night at the Sylvan Theater to enjoy another of the outdoor entertainments provided by the Community Center Department and the Office of National Capital Parks. That confidence was not betrayed, for the announced program proceeded without interruption from the elements, while stars twinkled through the cloud wrack overhead and lightning flickered in the southern sky.

Capt. Branson and his men discoursed agreeably about the Gallicized mythology of Gluck, and gave rhythmic vitality to the succeeding ballet numbers of Russian, French, Spanish and Bohemian provenance. The predominance of tripping themes throughout the concert was a fitting prelude to the dances that were to come.

Five members of the Washington Composers Club—Mary Howe, Henry Gregor, Edward Potter, LaSalle Spier and R. Deane Shure—were represented on the program of dances, and Messrs. Gregor, Spier and Shure took their turns at the piano to accompany the interpreters of their fancies. The dances, previously commented upon when disclosed last spring, lost nothing by their repetition, and in several instances gained in effectiveness because of the more ample dimensions of the rustic stage.

"The Lotus Eaters" of Mr. Potter, so languorous in their drowsy revelry, seemed particularly appropriate to the humid and oppressive night. The efforts of those who had more strenuous movements to execute were rewarded by the admiring applause of the spectators, appreciative of the grace and skill so picturesquely presented. Mr. Spier's clever pantomime, "Afternoon of a Four," again scored a decided success.

Dr. Meeks to Head Church Federation

Local Pastor Succeeds Dr. R. Y. Nicholson.

Election of Dr. Benjamin W. Meeks, superintendent of the Washington district of the Baltimore Methodist Episcopal Conference, to the presidency of the Washington Federation of Churches was announced yesterday.

Dr. Meeks was made head of the federation at a special meeting of the board of directors, called upon the retirement of Dr. R. Y. Nicholson, who had been elected president in May.

Dr. Nicholson recently was transferred from the pastorate of the Rhode Island Avenue Methodist Protestant Church to Baltimore.

Dr. Meeks had been vice president of the Washington federation for three years, and has been active in the organization since coming to Washington five years ago. He is a member of the board of temperance, prohibition and public morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He has been active in numerous civic enterprises in the city.

Fertilizer Men Open Del-Mar-Va Rally Today

Ocean City, Md., June 28 (AP).—The Del-Mar-Va Peninsula Fertilizer Association will hold its annual convention here tomorrow.

The sessions will be opened with an address of welcome by Mayor W. T. Elliott. Warner W. Price, president of the association, will preside. Speakers will include H. H. Hansom, State chemist of Delaware; J. P. F. Ritz, Baltimore, code representative; William E. Valliant, chairman of Zone 3 of the association, and Charles J. Brand, Washington, executive secretary-treasurer of the National Fertilizer Association.

Boulevard Speeders Are Fined Up to $11.45

Halethorpe, Md., June 28 (AP).—Nine motorists who faced Magistrate Henry Routenberg on charges of speeding on the Washington boulevard between Baltimore and Laurel either forfeited $11.45 collateral or received fines ranging from $6.45 to $11.45.

The magistrate expressed regret that all were private operators, remarking that bus and truck drivers frequently ignored the speed limit on the highway.

Check Charge Holds Man.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., June 28. — Frank Welch, alias Frank Haskins, arrested at Manchester, N. H., was returned to the Allegany County jail yesterday by Sheriff George E. Kemp to face a bad check charge. He was apprehended a week ago, following a radio broadcast by the Pennsylvania State Police on request of local authorities. Welch is said to have presented a check for $1,200 at a local bank and opened an account some weeks ago. He is accused of passing bogus checks here before he left the city.

Farmer Injured in Fall.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., June 28.—A fall from a haymow sent Jacob Risser, 50, farmer, to the Washington County Hospital with a fracture of the back and both ankles. Risser attempted to leap from the mow to a wagon he had been loading, when he slipped and fell to the barn floor.

Broadway

By Ed Sullivan

Day in New York.

New York, June, 28.

2:20 p. m.: Awaken with the sun pouring into the room, and the phone ringing. The town, it seems, is vastly excited over the unusual events occurring the night previous at a party given by Virgil Moore. It was the typical penthouse party that New Yorkers go for in such a big way, and in the course of the evening, all of the regular penthouse party-goers showed up. The guests included Jean Hirshon, Peggy Sheffield, Marie Hamans, Gene Forker, Valerie Ziegler, Muriel D'Orsay, Lois Long, Helen Noyes, Earl Benham, Bill Austin and the former Irene Delroy, Dick Nesbit, Charlotte Milburn, Leo Best, Ann Morales, Billie Mastbaum, and others too numerous to mention. In every way, it was like every other party. Then the party started to disband. The girls let out whoops and shrieks of dismay. Purses had been ransacked. Some one among the invited guests had exhibited Raffles' tendencies. The host made good all losses, and probably mentally cursed the impulse that had persuaded him to give a cocktail party in the first place. It was not the first time that parties like his had been invaded by sneak thieves. Curiously enough, the suspected person had been at every other party where thievery took place. Three of the girls, certain of their suspicions, waited until the girl suspect was overcome by highballs. They searched and found the stolen money in the toe of her shoe, returned it to the amazed host. Guest of honor at the party never showed up. Bill Leeds stayed on his yacht at Oyster Bay, and missed the excitement.

* * * *

3:30 P. M.: The day's mail offers every variety of request for aid. A young married couple want me to help them get furniture. Five girls, in five separate letters, scourge me for speaking unkindly of their Max Baer. There is a whole stack of letters asking for the sun-tan recipe which Lee Shubert made popular. For the last time, it is repeated here: Equal parts of witch hazel, olive oil and vinegar. Shake well, apply and cover with a thin coating of vaseline. Renew this every time it starts to disappear or you will get a scorching. There is a nice wire from Kay Francis, a letter from Sam Burger at the Elks' convention, an invitation to Dorothy Bauer's wedding in Chicago tomorrow, a letter of thanks from Mooseleekmeguntic Lake, Me., for a recent mention, and publicity memos by the paper ton. There is a bid to Paul Sabin's opening at the Colony Surf Club, at West End, N. J., tomorrow night. Dr. Gregory Ziborg, who psychoanalyzes such celebs as Marshall Field and George Gershwin, regrets he can not give me the article I wanted.

* * * *

4:30 P. M.: The column has been finished in an hour flat, average time. My record is 40 minutes. On the desk are notes taken at the bachelor party given to the Paramount Theater assistant manager, Ed Sullivan. He was to be married at St. Patrick's today. Boris Morros, Jack Barry, Bob Weitman, Ben Griefer and other Paramount execs were in attendance and the mechanical effects by the engineers from the theater were unusual. The bridegroom-to-be looked ghastly in the greenish glow from a small baby spotlight. Unwary guests bounced a foot out of their chairs when an electric current singed their trousers. It was a swell evening dedicated to a swell person. The A. M. P. A. luncheon to Al Lichtman is best of all, with Attorney Nizer's oratory the highlight.

* * * *

8:30 p. m.: Broadway is beginning to get hot as dusk blankets the street. The electric lights start to sparkle. Restaurants disgorge the thousands who have eaten. Subway kiosks empty other thousands into the streets. Trolley cars rattle and bang along, and the taxi horns strike every conceivable note. Lita Grey Chaplin and Dr. Lublin stroll along East Fifty-ninth street. Johnny Dundee stops for a moment to compare notes on the Louis-Carnera fight. Dundee has picked the winners of the last ten important fights, and the big bettors now hang on his authoritative word. Sam H. Harris comes along. He says Louis is the greatest natural fighter he has seen since the days of his Terrible Terry McGovern. The heat of the city seems to rise from the pavements until it is insufferably hot. Standing at a corner, under an arc light, I meet Mike Casale, perusing a racing sheet. He comments on Al Jolson's tough luck. Jolson had a $500 bet on a 12-to-1 shot. The horse won—but the stewards gave it to Knowing. Jolson lost $6,500 on a bad decision.

11 p. m.: The big cinema cathedrals are letting out and new lines are forming for the midnight pictures. No other city, I think, matches the midnight-picture enthusiasm of New York, for no other city stays up that late. It is a little ghostly to see a midnight picture. The 7,000-seat theaters are only partly filled, and the shadows on the screen play out their parts in silence. There is no roar of laughter from the audience, no electricity in the air. Fellows sit with their girls and hold hands in the loge sections. Occasionally, a drunk lets out a bellow of approval or disapproval and the ushers make a half-hearted effort to locate him. Now it is midnight and you can hear the night club bands and the dance hall bands blaring "hot" rhythms. You conclude that it is too hot to go indoors. Wearily, you point your car and head across the Fifty-ninth Street Bridge. Thirty-five minutes later you are at Pavilion Royale and urbane John Steinberg is greeting you at the door. At 3 a. m. you are homeward-bound.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hancock, Md., June 28.—The wedding of Miss Adele Marise Cohill, daughter of Mrs. M. L. Swan, of Hancock, and a descendant of one of Washington County's early settlers, to Mr. J. A. Donnell, New York, will take place at St. Thomas Episcopal Church here July 20.

The bridal party will include Miss Mary Ann Cohill, cousin of the bride-elect as maid of honor, and the following bridesmaids: Miss Rachel Hicks, West Chester, Pa.; Miss Betty Millholland, Cumberland, Md.; Miss Mary Kneisley, Hagerstown, and Miss Sarah McCandlish, Baltimore.

Mr. David Darling, Boston, will be best man.

Woman Sentenced For Drunken Driving

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., June 28.—In the first such case to have involved a woman, Mrs. Eleanore Pollard, of this city, was found guilty today of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor.

She was fined $100 and costs and her permit to drive was revoked for a year.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Waynesboro, Pa., June 28.—Announcement was made yesterday of a rally of the Franklin County Republican Club, to be held Tuesday in Chambersburg.

6-Month Auto Tag Is Effective Monday

Baltimore, June 28 (AP).—The six months' rate for State automobile licenses will become effective Monday, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Walter R. Rudy announced today. The rate is half that charged for a full year's license.

Rudy said that those applying for tags must show that taxes have been paid on their automobiles.

D. C. Man to Join Class in Aviation

J. O. Taylor One of Six to Train at Anacostia.

J. O. Taylor, of 1456 Clifton street northwest, was named yesterday at the Navy Department as one of a class to start preliminary flight training at the Anacostia Naval Air Station next month.

With five others, Taylor will undergo a month's instruction under Lieut. M. B. Johnson. Four of the students later will be selected by Lieut. Johnson for advanced training at Pensacola, Fla.

Upon successful completion of the Pensacola course the cadets will be ordered to duty with the fleet and later commissioned as Naval Reserve aviators.

Others chosen as members of the class to be trained here are H. L. Miller, of Bethesda, Md.; V. S. Deitrick, jr., of Parksley, Va.; G. Trunkey, of Lynchburg, Va.; C. T. Hardenburg, of Fredericksburg, Va., and W. R. Campbell, of Raleigh, N. C.

Carried Others Liquor, Driver Gets Acquittal

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., June 28.—Although the new State liquor law appears to provide that anyone found transporitng more than 1 gallon of liquor is violating the law, Magistrate Late B. Davisson holds a different opinion.

The magistrate acquitted Sam Arco, of Shinnston, who was charged with transporting 4 gallons in his automobile. Arco testified one gallon was his and three other persons swore the other 3 gallons were theirs. It was brought out that the three other persons had given him money to purchase liquor for them and to accommodate them he was hauling it to Shinnston when he was arrested by State troopers.

Potts Named Cashier Of Clarke County Bank

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Berryville, Va., June 28.—Roy E. Potts, postmaster at Berryville for the last three years, has been appointed cashier of the Bank of Clarke County by its board of directors to fill a vacancy left by the resignation of Jetson F. Spates, who is one of six candidates for the county treasurership. Mr. Potts, formerly of Winchester, recently was elected president of the local chamber of commerce.

Other officers of this bank, the oldest in the county and which recently acquired the Boyce State Bank, are: President, W. A. Bradford; vice president, L. N. Glover; teller, Nicholas Morrison; cashier, Julian Glascock.

Many Adopted Children Lose Parents' Identity

Harrisburg, Pa. (U.P.).—A "conservative" estimate that 150 Pennsylvania children are "lost" and will never know their parentage, due to "carelessness" of officials, appears in the report of a State-wide CWA investigation of poor board administration, just announced.

Identities of these children of indigent parents, placed in foster homes, were lost in "slipshod" files of poor boards in a dozen counties, and names of the families with which they were placed were not kept, the report states.

White and Haas Gain Final in U. S. College Golf Tournament

This Morning...

With Shirley Povich

New York, June 28.

AIN'T it the truth? No sooner does a guy create a fistic sensation and look as if he's the real fighting goods when everybody tries to dig up a fellow to knock him off. Now they're looking around for somebody to throw in there against Joe Louis—somebody who not only will give the Negro lad a fight but who will have a fair chance of exploding the Louis bubble if such it be. Who'll it be?

POVICH.

Certainly not King Levinsky whom Louis has contracted to meet in August. The Kingfish has no right to be mentioned in the same breath with Louie as a fighter, far less to be tossed into the same ring with him. A Louis-Levinsky bout represents only so much financial gravy for Louis when he goes on exhibition in the Midwest whence he came to make his place in the heavyweight division.

Against the Kingfish it will be only a matter of time when Louis' right cross or mayhap his left hook catches up with the Chicagoan. Levinksy, as wide open as the East entrance to the Capitol Building, is the perfect target for Louis. If the Negro doesn't belt the Kingfish outa there in one-two-three rounds his capabilities are a myth. Surely it isn't Levinsky who is the White Hope.

And, speaking of White Hopes, there has been darn little talk of 'em. Everybody, it seems, is willing to let Louis succeed to the world's heavyweight championship. He has engendered none of the animosity that Jack Johnson created among the whites with his various escapades. Louis is a good boy, if you can believe half the things they say about him, and he is being nicely received all along the line.

BUT, anyway, the talk is running to Max Schmeling and Max Baer as the two guys with the best chance of upsetting this Detroit lad who has come along to turn the fistic world topsy-turvy and menace Nordic supremacy in the prize ring. And it's a hidebound cinch that if he ever gets a shot at the title while Jimmy Braddock is holding it the championship will belong to Louis before that night is over.

Braddock doesn't appear to be the guy who can stop this Louis. Jimmy's a nice lad and all of that, but he doesn't have the weapons to beat back the Detroit Destroyer. And there I've gone and done it. I vowed never to use the overworked alliteratives that they've been applying to the Negro lad with sickening frequency, but how are you gonna get away from it? If a guy was ever a destructive machine it's Louis, and there's no denying that he's from Detroit.

But, as I was saying, our new champion Braddock has no right in the same ring with Louis. It would be a dead-gone cinch for the colored boy if they ever met. At his best, I think Braddock is a third-flight heavyweight who caught the reigning champion on an off night and who was lucky to inherit the title. As I said, he's a nice boy and all of that, but a Braddock-Louis bout might be a case for the coroner, with Braddock as the subject of the inquest.

And now that brings us down to the two guys who loom as the last White Hopes—Schmeling and Baer. They are the only two who might give Louis a fight. You notice I say might, because there's great doubt of that. But there are also possibilities, and you can't dismiss either of 'em.

RIGHT now I'd say Schmeling is the best bet. I can't like Baer after what happened to him against Braddock. I wouldn't bet a plugged nickel on the guy against Shirley Temple. He might go into his dance and La Temple would outpoint him, no kidding.

But Schmeling—ah, there's a sharpshooter for you. He may have what it takes to stop this Louis. The only real black mark against his record is that knockout by Baer, and that could happen to anybody. He did lose to Steve Hamas when he was out of shape, but he came back to beat Hamas unmercifully in Germany. At tops, he can fight.

I'd like to see him in there against Louis. It would be no Carnera that Louis would be facing. Give that German an opening and they will carry somebody outa there, and it won't be Schmeling. He can hit. I'd like to see what Louis could do against a bobbing, weaving target like himself. And we'd know then if Joe can really take it, because sometime during that battle Schmeling would let one fly. I mean his right. And when that strikes, buddy, somebody is hurt even if he doesn't show it.

But now I'm wondering whether Baer isn't the best bet against Louis after all. I mean if he takes it seriously—if he gets in shape and trains for this bout. Because, my friends, there's the man who can take it above all others. I mean Baer. He has his shortcomings. He is a consummate loafer in that ring, a clown and a dumbunny at times, but nobody has ever knocked him down. Nobody, in fact, has ever knocked him off balance. He laughs 'em off.

Maybe Louis is the man who will show Baer up. Mebbe. Louis hits puh-lenty hard, and if anybody can jar Maxie it's the Detroit lad. But I'd have to see it first. I mean if Baer takes the fight seriously and really trains. And another thing. Don't think that Baer can't punch his way out of a cellophane wrapper. If I remember rightly he killed a guy once—when he was in shape.

Budge Is Impressive In Wimbledon Tennis

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 28.—Already the darling of Wimbledon's galleries, Donald Budge, lanky 19-year-old youngster from Oakland, Calif., shelled Christian Boussus, last remaining Frenchman, from the all-England tennis championship today and gained a berth in the quarter-finals in this his first major European tournament.

Displaying a veteran's coolness, despite the fact he was making his first appearance on Wimbledon's famous center court, Budge drove Boussus to cover with a devastating backhand attack and won with surprising ease, 6-3, 6-2, 3-6, 6-0.

Joining Budge in the round of eight were Fred Perry, the defending champion, who ousted Josip Pallada, of Yugoslavia, 6-2, 6-2, 0-6, 6-2, and Baron Gottfried von Cramm, of Germany, who easily disposed of Gene Mako, of Los Angeles, 6-0, 6-1, 3-6, 6-1. The other ten survirors in men's singles, including Sidney Wood, of New York, Perry's most formidable challenger, will battle it out tomorrow for the other five quarter-final berths.

Budge Takes Offensive.

From the outset, it was apparent that Boussus was going to have little chance against Budge's fiery attack. The youngster took the offensive at the start, reeling off the first three games of the first set and the first four of the second to win both almost without a struggle. Budge obviously took a breather in the third set and then came back to sweep Boussus off his feet with backhand drives and unreturnable volleys. At the finish, Boussus definitely was outclassed.

Budge, who has become the idol of British tennis fans perhaps as much because of his flaming red hair as the aggressiveness of his game, probably will have to face H. W. (Bunny) Austin, British stylist, in the quarter-finals. Austin is a heavy favorite to beat Ed Andrews, of New Zealand, in the fourth round tomorrow.

Other fourth-round pairings tomorrow will send Roderich Menzel, Czechoslovakia, against Enrique Maier, Spain; Jack Crawford, Australia, against George Patrick Hughes, Great Britain; Wood against Harry Hopman, Australia, and Vivian McGrath, of Australia, conqueror of Wilmer Allison in the first round, against Nigel Sharpe, of Great Britain.

Two Helens to See Action.

In the women's division, America's two Helens will resume action in the third round with Helen Jacobs meeting Nancy Lyle, of England, and Helen Wills Moody facing Susan Noel, well-known British squash racquets star.

The principal sensation in the women's division today was furnished by Eileen Bennett Whittingstall, who eliminated Margaret Scriven, No. 7 seeded player, 6—3, 6—2. Accompanying Mrs. Whittingstall into the fourth round were Dorothy Round, the defending champion; Kay Sammers, crack British southpaw, and Joan Hartigan, of Australia.

Allison and John van Ry of East Orange, N. J., topseeded men's doubles, played potty tennis in beating H. G. N. Lee and E. R. Avory, of England, 3—6, 6—1, 7—5, 6—2.

Yates Loses To Texan, 4 and 3

Fischer Is Eliminated by Louisiana Lad in Second Upset.

Champion Defeated as His Rival Shoots 2 Under Par.

By Dave Herman.

A NEW national intercollegiate golf champion will be crowned today at Congressional Country Club.

Charlie Yates, of Georgia Tech, defending titleholder, and Johnny Fischer, of Michigan, 1932 winner, favored to clash in the finals, went down to stunning defeats in the semifinals yesterday to set the stage for a 36-hole battle between Ed White, the modest 21-year-old Texas star, and Freddie Haas, 19-year-old Louisiana State sensation.

Venting his spleen for his defeat at the hands of Yates in the 1933 intercollegiate finals at Cleveland, White battered down the Georgian, 4 and 3, and in so doing shot the 33 holes in 2 under par figures.

Encouraged by Senator.

Spurred on by words of encouragement from his pal, Senator Huey Long, the Kingfish, who told the young man to "die for dear ole Louisiana," Marse Haas created a distinct upset and furore by eliminating Fischer, former Walker Cup ace, holder of the national amateur medal record, 5 and 3.

"Go forth, mah young friend, and show 'em the kind of athletes we all have at ole Louisiana," the Kingfish thundered. "Fischer looks like he might beat you; fight him, son, and stick in thar."

And with that, Kingfish Long, attired in tan knickers and a battered Panama hat, stockingless, who could easily have taken a chance on a razor, ordered out his golf clubs and joined some friends in a 9-hole round.

And Haas turned loose a withering barrage of pars and birdies on Fischer, took a 2-up lead at the end of 18 holes, went 4 up after 27, and played the next six holes in even par, smoking out the favored Michigan golfer on the thirty-third hole, with a birdie 3, thanks to a deadly 20-foot putt.

Bobby Jones' Wire.

When the dethroned champion Yates walked off the ninth green in the morning, a telegram was handed him. It was from Bobby Jones, who said "I'm pulling for you as hard as I can."

A broad grin came from the Dixie boy, who was even with White at this stage of the match.

"Well, someone's thinkin' 'bout me," Yates remarked just before he fired a screaming drive down the tenth fairway.

White turned on the steam for the next nine holes, and, with the aid of three birdies, swung into a 2-up lead at intermission. None of his cunning had been lost by the Texan as play was resumed in the afternoon. He left the twenty-seventh 4 up, and shot the remaining six holes in one over par.

Haas played methodical golf all the way, and benefited by some sloppy putting on the part of Fischer. The Michigan golfer three-putted no less than six greens, and missed short putts on at least three other holes. It is interesting to note that Fischer dropped five of the holes on which he was guilty of three-putt greens—the exact margin of Haas' triumph.

Nor was Fischer himself from the tee. He admitted shortly after the match that only in one round did he regain his driving power—but it wasn't yesterday.

Seven Birdies, an Eagle.

Although going over par nine times, White made up for this deficit with seven birdies and an eagle. His eagle came on the 475-yard eighth of the morning round, where the Texan blasted a two iron out of the rough to within 6 feet of the pin, and downed his putt for a three. White leveled par with a 72 in the morning as compared to Yates' 74, and went out in 35 in the afternoon.

Haas was over par seven times, and had only four birdies to show. The Louisiana boy had a brace of 38s for a 76 to Fischer's 78 in the morning. He was even par for

Middies Will Box Only 4 Colleges

Virginia Heads Schools to Be Met This Year.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Annapolis, Md., June 28.—The Annapolis midshipmen will engage in only four boxing matches, compared to seven and eight in recent years, according to the schedule released today by the Navy Athletic Association.

University of Virginia, Western Maryland, Syracuse and Penn State are the institutions that have been given dates. These four generally have the most formidable teams in the East. Virginia and Syracuse are the only teams ever to defeat Navy in dual meets. The Cavaliers have turned the trick three times. The Middies will open their season February 1, with Western Maryland. The other dates are: February 8, Syracuse; 15, Penn State; 22, Virginia (at University, Va.).

The Athletic Association also announced a schedule of eight games for the Lacrosse team. The Middy stickmen will get underway March 31 with Dartmouth and the season will close with the annual battle with the West Point Cadets at West Point May 30. The rest of the schedule follows: April 4, Harvard; 11, Princeton (at Princeton); 25, Syracuse; May 2, Yale; 9, Maryland; 16, Mount Washington Club.

Schmeling Agrees To Joe Louis Bout

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 28. — Max Schmeling, former heavyweight champion, today expressed willingness to meet Joe Louis, the sensational Negro heavyweight, in a bout here this fall, instead of waiting for a possible shot at the title now held by James J. Braddock, in 1936.

Schmeling's approval of Louis as an opponent was conveyed in a cable from Germany to his manager, Joe Jacobs.

Promoter Mike Jacobs, of the Twentieth Century Club, which is seeking the bout, indicated he would seek to stage a Louis-Schmeling bout early in September and match the winner with Max Baer in October.

Perry Victor In British Tourney

'Dark Horse' Captures Open With Record-Equalling 283.

By the Associated Press.

MUIRFIELD, Scotland, June 28.—Alfred Perry, the darkest horse that ever galloped down a Scottish fairway, not only captured the British Open championship today, but firmly established himself as a golfing great by tying the record, aggregate of 283, held jointly by Gene Sarazen and Henry Cotton.

Shooting final rounds of 67 and 72 in the teeth of a gale that sent scores soaring, the 30-year-old, stocky, taciturn professional from the small leatherhead course near London, won with a margin of 4 strokes over his closest competitor, the rugged Alf Padgham, who had finishing rounds of 74-71 for a 72-hole aggregate of 287.

All the accolades, however, did not go to the new champion. An enthusiastic gallery of 15,000, stampeding in front of the long, low Muirfield clubhouse, raised almost an equal welkin for William Lawson Little, jr., the San Francisco amateur, whose final spectacular round of 69, for a new amateur record for the course, enabled him to finish in a tie for fourth place with 289. Little went out in 35 and came back in 34.

Little's Putts Unlucky.

With any sort of luck on the greens the simon-pure king of two nations would have placed second. Putt after putt on the final round either rimmed the cup or halted on the edge. At any rate he did well enough to justify his father's long trip from the Pacific Coast to see his son in action for the first time since he became a champion.

The 40-year-old Charley Whitcombe, a member of the last four British International Ryder Cup Teams, who led the field by three strokes at the halfway mark with the subpar total of 138, shot a steady and useful 73 this morning and then wound up with a 76 for a total of 288 to land third place. Little was tied for fourth place with Bert Gadd, a British professional.

Sixth place went to tall Henry Picard, of Hershey, Pa. The American professional played the entire tournament without the benefit of his accustomed deft putting touch, but closed with rounds of 72 and 75 for an aggregate of 292. Henry Cotton, the defending champion, wound up in a two-way tie for seventh place along with Sid Easterbrook, with 293.

Mac Smith Cards 299.

Sixteen strokes off the pace and bracketed with three British professionals at 299 was the veteran Scot, Macdonald Smith. Smith lost ground with a third round 75 and then blew up in the afternoon. He went out in 35, but came back in 43 for a 78.

The rest of the American contingent was far down the list. Frank Ball, formerly of Atlanta, pulled up with 301; Robert Sweeney, a former New York amateur now living in London, compiled 307, and Joe Ezar, the Waco, Tex., fashion plate, wound up with two 80s for 311.

Perry, who never won anything more important than the Surrey open tournament, appeared totally unperturbed or uninspired by his sudden bolt to fame.

"You can say this for publication," he said quietly. "I now have played in international matches and

No-Hit Shutout By Henshaw Ruined

Doubtful Double in Sixth Is Only Semblance of Real Safety.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 28.—Wee Roy Henshaw, the Cubs' diminutive lefthander, came within a hair's breadth of pitching himself into baseball's hall of fame today as he set down the Pittsburgh Pirates with one disputed hit and shut them out, 8 to 0.

Relief Pitcher Mace Brown lined a drive to deep right center in the sixth inning that just grazed centerfielder Freddie Lindstrom's glove as he came within reach of the ball after a hard run. Brown pulled up at second and the official scorer, after consulting several of his pressbox associates who agreed with him, ruled the drive a double.

That was the only semblance of a hit in the game, the only other batters to reach base on Henshaw being four who walked, each in different innings, one of whom reached second safely.

Hamman Downs Chase In Trans-Mississippi

Des Moines, Iowa, June 28 (AP).—Leland Hamman, defending champion, staged another remarkable comeback today to enter the semi-finals of the trans-Mississippi golf tournament with a 3-and-2 victory over Hal Chase, of Des Moines, in a 36-hole quarter-finals match.

Johnny Goodman, of Omaha, former National Open champion, played par golf today to defeat Billy Cordingley, of Des Moines, 11 and 10. Johnny Dawson, of Chicago, crushed Bob Conliff, jr., of Oklahoma City, 6 and 4.

Indians Pound Whitehead to Top Chisox

Rookie Drops 6th in Row as Tribe Gains on Leading Yanks.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, June 28.—The Indians took advantage of the "jinx" that has pursued Silent John Whitehead, Chicago rookie flinger, ever since his string of eight straight victories was snapped, and batted out a 6-to-5 victory over the White Sox in the opener of their series.

It was Whitehead's sixth consecutive defeat since the end of his long winning streak and the fourth Cleveland victory in five encounters with the Pale Hose this season. As a result the league-leading Yankees, idle today, again saw their lead reduced to three games. Chicago was plunged into fourth place behind the Detroit Tigers.

With Earl Averill missing from the line-up because of a fireworks explosion which injured him two days ago, the Tribe suffered another setback when Oral Hildebrand, starting pitcher, was hurt in the eighth inning. He stumbled over first base when Whit Wyatt made an error on his attempted sacrifice, hurting his ankle so badly he had to be carried from the field.

Derringer Effective, Reds Defeat Cards, 4-2

Cincinnati, June 28 (AP).—With Paul Derringer effective when effectiveness was needed, the Cincinnati Reds triumphed over the St. Louis Cardinals, 4 to 2, today.

Given a one-run lead in the third as Riggs doubled with two on, Derringer beat off the Cards while his teammates chipped away at Jess Haines and Bill Hallahan.

Misses Didrikson, Hicks Beaten In Women's Western Tourney

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 28.—A pair of seasoned amateurs, in a startling upset, abruptly ended the championship aspirations of America's two leading women golf professionals, Miss Helen Hicks and Mildred (Babe) Didrickson, in the Women's Western Open Golf championship today.

Mrs. S. L. Reinhardt, Winnetka, Ill., runner-up as a girl of 15 in the National Championship 20 years ago, conquered the cocky 21-year-old Miss Didrickson, famous all-around athlete of Beaumont, Tex., 5 and 4.

Tumbling out of the semifinals with her was Miss Hicks, Hewlett, Long Island, national champion in 1931, who fell before Miss Opal S. Hill, Kansas City, 2 and 1. Their defeat was a stunning surprise to their audience of 1,000 which trailed after them over a rain-soaked course.

Miss Didrickson, unable to cope with Mrs. Reinhardt's brilliant iron game, blew up completely, but the match between Miss Hicks and Mrs. Hill was close all the way. Mrs. Hill, thrice winner of Western Association championship, outplayed the former national titleholder consistently around the greens. The Texas Babe was able to clout the ball in drives off the tees with the power of a man, but she didn't have any idea where they were going. Her putting also was messy, missing 2-foot putts for a half on the fourth, twelfth and thirteenth holes.

Mrs. Reinhardt, also a three-time winner of the Western closed event, meets the deliberate playing Mrs. Hill in the 36-hole championship match tomorrow. Eighteen holes will be played in the morning with the final 18 in the afternoon, starting at 2 o'clock.

Omaha Is Favorite For Dwyer Stakes

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 28.—Over the track where his daddy raced to one of his most important triumphs five years ago, William Woodward's Omaha, son of Gallant Fox, will oppose five other 3-year-olds in the $7,500 added Dwyer Stakes at Aqueduct tomorrow.

Although badly beaten by both Discovery and King Saxon last week when the 3-year-old titleholder stepped out of his division in the Brooklyn Handicap, Omaha should have no trouble handling his rivals over the 1⅛ miles of the Dwyer. There will be no such speed horses as either the King or Discovery to set a burning pace.

Omaha will pack 126 pounds and give from 10 to 12 to his rivals, but he was the 3-to-5 choice in pre-race calculations.

Nats Nailing Flag—for Yanks

Senators Are Great Influence, Just by Losing.

By Shirley Povich.

A Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, June 28.—If you don't think these Nats are figuring in this pennant race why you're as dead wrong as the guys who parlayed Baer and Carnera.

Washington is making its presence felt in the pennant race, I tell you. Bucky Harris' team has been a powerful influence in the league this season. I really don't know what the Yankees could have done without them. Certainly New York wouldn't have the three-game lead that it now boasts.

The Yanks really ought to cut the Nats in for a share of the 1935 World Series coin, barring an upset. Nobody has contributed as much to the Yankees' success as the Nats. It's getting so that the result of New York-Washington games is a foregone conclusion. Seven times they have met and six times the Nats have finished a rousing second to the Yanks.

Even St. Louis Better.

Not even the last-place St. Louis Browns have taken it on the chin from the Yanks with the same consistency as the Nats. Twice this season in nine games the Browns have beaten the Yankees. If New York makes a runaway of the pennant race the other contenders can point the finger of shame at the Nats.

They go at it again tomorrow—the Nats and the Yankees. Today no Washington pitcher was knocked out of the box, not a run did the enemy get, not even a hit. In fact, there was no game scheduled, which explains everything.

Manager Bucky Harris will send Irving Hadley against the Yanks in the second game of the current series, and he'll have Pettit, Linke, Bean, Russell and Red Kress warming up in the bull pen just in case, which isn't far-fetched at all, considering what has been happening to the Washington pitchers for the past month.

Great Hitting Team.

The futility of Harris' pitchers has succeeded in wasting the greatest hitting power ever owned by a Washington club in all its history. An average of 13 hits and almost 9 runs per game has not even netted the Nats an even break on their road trip.

Teams Listed For Battle Of Stars

Myer, Bluege Named as Reserves for American Loop.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 28.—The National League's all-stars, who have twice bit the dust, rely on their superior batting punch to turn the tables in the third annual interleague battle to be played July 8 in Cleveland's big municipal stadium.

Based on current averages for the probable starting line-ups, the Nationals have an edge over their American League rivals in six out of eight positions, outside the pitching box.

When actual hostilities begin, this may mean no more than the fact the five-star pitching staff of the Nationals has a record of 48 victories and 24 defeats now, as compared with 40 and 25 for the rival quintet. For the time being, however, it gives the Nationals a good talking point.

How the Teams Line Up.

Terry, Giants, .327, 1b . Gehrig, Y'ks, .304
Frisch, Cards, .297, 2b . Gehringer T., .341
Vaughan, Pir., .400, ss . Cronin, R.S., .262
Martin, Cards, .347, 3b . Foxx Macks, .337
P.Waner, Pir., .312, rf . Vosmik, Ind., .346
Joe Moore, G., .323, cf . Simmons, Chi., .263
Medwick, C'ds, .369, lf . Johnson, M., .366
Mancuso, G., .308, c . Cochrane, Tig., .283
Hubbell, G'ts (9-3), p . Bridges, Tig. (10-4)

The biggest blow to the American League came when Earl Averill, clouting Cleveland outfielder, got mixed up with a premature Fourth of July celebration and emerged with a set of badly burned fingers. Averill will be out of the game for several weeks. He was a batting hero of the 1934 all-star game, driving in three runs, including the decisive tally, with a double and triple at the Polo Grounds.

From the American League standpoint, the return of Lefty Grove to the all-star pitching ranks is noteworthy. The former king of the southpaws helped win the first all-star game at Chicago in 1933, but he wasn't in shape to make last year's team. His record this season is not as good as that of Bridges or Mel Harder, Indian ace, but it compares favorably with those of Lefty Gomez, of the Yankees, and Schoolboy Rowe, of the Tigers.

Hubbell May Start.

Hubbell's remarkable strikeout pitching at the start of last year's game probably will earn him the opening assignment again. If "Hub" isn't on edge, Hal Schumacher, right-handed ace of the Giants' staff, may get the call. The other sharpshooters for the Nationals will be Dizzy Dean, Van Mungo and Paul Derringer.

For reserve duty, otherwise, the Nationals will have Rip Collins and Burgess Whitehead, Cardinals, and Billy Herman, Cubs, infielders; Mel Ott, Giants, and Wally Berger, Braves, outfielders, and Gabby Hartnett, Cubs, and Jimmy Wilson, Phillies, catchers.

American League reinforcements consist of Buddy Myer and Ossie Bluege, Nationals, infielders; Roger Cramer, Athletics; Sam West, Browns, and Ben Chapman, Yankees, outfielders, and Bill Dickey, Yankees, and Rick Ferrell, Red Sox, catchers.

Workman Wins 2 In Dull Race Day

By the Associated Press.

Aqueduct Race Track, N. Y., June 28.—Victor Emanuel's 4-year-old filly Lady Higloss, recorded her second straight triumph in the fourth event of a featureless program here today. "Sonny" Workman had the daughter of Ladkin well in hand as she stepped past the finish line a length and a half in advance of William Woodward's 20 to 1 shot, Thruster. Dewey Bentham's Abner saved third money by a similar margin from the 3-to-2 favorite, Jadaan.

Jockey Workman made it two in a row in the fifth. He beat the gate from the inside astride the 6-to-5 favorite, Miss Rainbow, and the combination never was headed, winning by three lengths.

Smith Wins Charles Town 'Daily Double;' Gains in Jockey Race

District Lad Boasts 25 Victories

Shanks Leader With 27 Triumphs; Double Pays $200.20.

By Walter Haight.

A Staff Correspondent.

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va., June 28.—Eddie Smith and Johnny Shanks, a pair of Washington boys, are battling it out for the riding honors at this meeting. Eddie not only gained a winner on his rival today but rode both ends of a $200.20 daily double. These were his only two successes. Shanks was held to a single winner and the score now stands, Shanks, 27; Smith, 25.

Smith's big daily double consisted of Last Laugh and Natures Dream and his riding was a factor in the pair of victories. He rated his mounts in front of the fields and then came through with drives that put them on top.

Shanks rode his only winner aboard Lady Lawyer in the second race and he barely missed scoring with Lady Buck, a long shot, in the sixth. In fact, many thought Lady Buck, in front most of the way, had taken the race but Bye and Bye's No. 5 was displayed. Frankie Cusimano, another Washington boy, had the mount on Bye and Bye.

Small Crowd Out.

The other two races went to Light Action, under capable handling by the veteran, A. Tryon, and Hosain, piloted by W. Barr.

The races were run over a drying out course and before one of the smallest week-day crowds of the meeting. Betting fell off to $33,523 but the racing was thrilling enough. Not a favorite won.

The horses suspended yesterday when their trainer was found guilty of stimulating, were reinstated today when Paul Corbett was named their trainer.

The Light Action race was the feature of the day and for a mile of the 1 1-16 miles it appeared that Doubtless would be an easy winner. However, Jockey Barr failed to give the old mare a breathing spell and she tired in the stretch as Light Action drove past.

SUN TEATIME, away fast and taken in hand while holding to a forward position, went to the front when HAPPY INVER began tiring and, hard ridden through the stretch, held SQUEEZE OUT safe. The latter moved up steadily on the outside, closing with good energy in the stretch, getting up in the last strides to take the place. CATHOP dropped back in the opening furlong, began moving up steadily leaving the back stretch, saved ground throughout, and held on willingly in the final drive. HAPPY INVER displayed good speed, faltering in the last quarter-mile.

SECOND RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 2-year-old maidens. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:05. Off at 3:05. Winner, H. P. Metcalf's b. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ARGOAN, $18.90, $9.00, $6.00; STUMPTOWN, $33.50, $17.80; AUREATE, $29.20.

ARGOAN, hustled to the front in the first furlong, drew clear and, rated along under slight restraint, responded gamely to pressure in the stretch and outlasted STUMPTOWN at the end. The latter, in nearest pursuit of the winner from the beginning, came gamely under punishment and just missed. AUREATE was prominently placed throughout and held on gamely in the drive. JOY FLAG finished going gamely. IRISH HERO made up some ground.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—STEPAWAY, $5.40, $3.90, $3.00; MIXED PARTY, $7.40, $4.80; BENARES, $3.80.

STEPAWAY had speed from the start, surrendered command to MIXED PARTY, but moved up steadily when called upon and took command in the last furlong to draw out steadily in the last sixteenth. MIXED PARTY showed good speed, drew clear reaching the stretch, but was unable to keep pace at the end. BENARES moved up fast on the outside in the last five-sixteenths, but was unable to improve his position.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won ridden out; place, driving. Went to post at 4:07. Off at 4:11½. Winner, H. T. Archibald's br. h. (6), by Westy Hogan—Candy May. Trained by G. L. Arvin. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $70; fourth, $30. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:46, 1:11 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—WESTYS JUNIOR, $3.90, $3.50, $2.60; SABLIN, $4.10, $2.80; MOANE KEALA, $2.80.

WESTYS JUNIOR, showing good speed from the start, raced SASSABY into submission and held SABLIN safe at the end. The latter worked his way up gradually, came on the outside at the stretch turn and closed going gamely. MOANE KEALA, prominently placed throughout, held on willingly to the end. CHATTERPOL was unable to reach the leaders.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won ridden out; place, driving. Went to post at 4:37. Off at 4:37. Winner, Jack Howard's ch. f. (3), by Greenock—Mollie Mynill. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $900; second, $180; third, $85; fourth, $35. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:46 1-5, 1:12.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MOLLY GREENOCK, $9.00, $3.10, $2.80; POLYDORUS, $2.60, $2.50; CRAZY JANE, $3.10.

MOLLY GREENOCK went to the front at once, withstood determined opposition from CRAZY JANE, disposed of her and held away to the end. POLYDORUS, outpaced at the stretch turn, came on strongly through the stretch, but he pulled up lame. CRAZY JANE showed good speed, but was unable to keep pace in the closing test. DIGNITARY, well placed throughout, was unable to improve his position under pressure.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:11. Off at 5:13½. Winner, Gen. W. W. Jones's br. m. (5), by Wrack—Pay Girl. Trained by G. H. Hamilton. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $70; fourth, $30. Time, 0:25, 0:49 2-5, 1:14, 1:40, 1:46 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PAY RACK, $11.30, $6.10, $4.10; EDDIE WRACK, $8.30, $4.70; WAYWARD SON, $6.60.

PAY RACK took command at once, drew clear in the run to the first turn, was steadied along under slight restraint and was never menaced. EDDIE WRACK moved up steadily approaching the half-mile ground, worked his way up gradually thereafter, and closed with good energy. WAYWARD SON rallied along in the last of the pace, held on well through the stretch. GIFTED LADY raced in closest pursuit.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:43. Off at 5:49. Winner, Miss A. Doris' b. m. (5), by Flying Ebony—Muriel Von Zelle. Trained by H. L. Campbell. Value to winner, $900; second, $180; third, $85; fourth, $35. Time, 0:23 3-5, 0:46 4-5, 1:12 1-5, 1:39 1-5, 1:43 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FLYING DERE, $9.50, $5.20, $3.60; ZULU LAD, $18.50, $8.10; GENERAL A., $5.10.

FLYING DERE improved her position gradually, wore down ZULU LAD in the stretch and was drawing away at the end. ZULU LAD had speed from the start, disposed of REVONAH and, rated along in front, held on well to the end. GENERAL A. never far from the pace, responded gamely to punishment in the last quarter-mile, but was unable to reach the leaders. REVONAH had good speed, but was unable to keep pace in the drive.

Two D. C. Lads Reach Finals in Middle-Atlantic Net Tourney

Title Games Scheduled Today

Nate Ritzenberg, Dave Johnson Defeat Opponents.

WASHINTON'S two outstanding juvenile netmen battled their way into the finals of the Boys Junior Middle Atlantic tennis tourney yesterday at Columbia Country Club, as Nate Ritzenberg earned a berth in the junior division, while Dave Johnsen qualified in the boys division.

Ritzenberg turned back Parrish, of Baltimore, in the second round of play, 7—5, 6—2, and came back with a smashing game in the semi-finals to subdue Land, another Baltimorean, 6—3, 6—2.

He will meet Powell Taylor, of Norfolk, the defending champion, for the championship this morning at 10:45 o'clock. Taylor conquered Hy Ritzenberg in the second round, after two torrid sets which he won by scores of 7—5, 9—7. His victim in the semi-finals was Sydnor, of Richmond, who bowed, 6—4, 5—7, 6—2.

Johnsen won by default in the first round and swept through Nelson, of Baltimore, to a 6—4, 6—3 victory in the semi-finals. He is to meet Harry Weinstein, Baltimore champion, this morning at 10:45 o'clock.

The winners will represent the Middle Atlantic sector in the national tournament to be held next month at Culver Military Academy.

In the District men's tourney yesterday Dooley Mitchell succumbed to Breese in straight sets, 7—5, 6—2, in the quarter-finals of the singles play. The favored team of Mitchell-Markey won in the doubles. Play in doubles will be resumed this afternoon at 2 o'clock with the teams batting in the semi-finals.

Art Scalli Cumberland League Batting Leader

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., June 28.—Latest batting averages of the Cumberland and Georges Creek League show Arthur Scalli, of Keyser, to be the leader with an average of .500 for all games played. Eddie Diehl, catcher-infielder of the Cumberland Colts, is runner-up with .485, while Ray Middleton, of the Frostburg Giants, holds down third place with .460.

Younger, 59, Will Hail Birthday in Marathon

Baltimore, June 28 (AP).—Dan Younger, one of the oldest marathon runners in the country, will celebrate his fifty-ninth birthday Sunday by running in a race to be held here by the Cross-Country Club of Baltimore in his honor.

On July 4, Younger will run in a marathon in Washington.

Mellott's Homer Wins.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., June 28.—A home run by Mellott in the eleventh inning gave the Hagerstown Red Shield speedball team a 12-11 victory over the Cumberland Red Shields here yesterday.

Let's Go Fishing . . .

By M. W. Meier.

CAPT. JOE Fletcher reports that the river is clear again and that prospects for week-end fishing are excellent.

Catches of rocks of any size have sadly fallen off in the past few days and students of the situation contend the large fish have already finished spawning and are dropping down river again into salt water. There seems to be plenty of pan-size fish, however, and it isn't much of a trick to get a mess of them above the Chain Bridge. Turkey Foot is an excellent location.

Catfish are apparently as abundant as ever. Bass are being caught every day but few of any size have been reported.

Virginia and Maryland trout seasons end this month. In their place anglers will be able to fish for black bass in both States. The trout seasons are still open for July in West Virginia, Pennsylvania and New Jersey. Take advantage of the special tourist license fees if you only plan a trip of one or two days.

Deep Creek Lake, in Garrett County, Md., is said to be a good bet for opening day on black bass. It is up near the West Virginia border. Licenses for neighboring States can be obtained at the local automobile association offices or at the Atlas Sports Store.

This week-end the bay will draw a "full house" of local anglers, according to captains at the various popular spots. A storm is brewing as we write this, but it should be blown out by Sunday.

Prospects for bluefish catches seem decidedly slim, but we can't be sure. They are as likely to suddenly start striking this week-end as next. Croakers will undoubtedly make up the bulk of the catches.

Some fine weaks were landed on the Middles yesterday as well as a few blues. The blues were caught by deep trolling and averaged around five pounds. The weaks ran even larger. Croaker seemed abundant.

Wachapreague and Ocean City still afford fair sport, but neither place offers any blues right now. From Oregon Inlet come reports of a plentitude of large-sized channel bass — most of which are being landed in the surf. There are kings there also and one or two bonito have been reported. Wachapreague seems the place to go for weaks. The channels thereabouts seem filled with them.

Capt. Rollins, of Messick, Va., reports very spotted and poor fishing. Only a few blues are being taken. Virginia coastal streams are still producing a few fair-sized rock.

Solomon's Island, Herring Bay, Kenwood Beach, Tilghman's Island, Piney Point, Plum Point, the Gooses and West River send in excellent reports of hardhead fishing and a few decent catches of weaks.

One party going out with Capt. Dick Lore, at Solomon's yesterday, landed 320 croackers and one three-pound weak. The crowd consisted of John C. Burke, Frank Blanchard, Robert L. Thomas, T. C. Himes and Elmer Back.

When you go out in a boat for a long trip, make certain there is plenty of water aboard! Six of us down on Southwest Middles the other day, found we had a gallon supply on board and ere the hot day ended we were actually suffering.

Bluefishing has started in again at Ocean City, Md. Over 600 were brought into port yesterday by sport anglers, all averaging better than four pounds. Big channel bass are also hitting again.

White and Haas Gain Finals in College Golf

Ed White hails from Bonham, Tex., is a senior at college, and hasn't even got a rating in his own State, though his companions say he is one of the best golfers in the Lone Star country. Haas hails from a golfing family and has been swinging a club since he was knee high to a grasshopper. Last week he lost out in the semifinals of the Southern Amateur in Richmond. He was the defending champion.

White shot into the lead against Yates when the Southerner three-putted the first green for a 6. He went 2 up when Yates' drive caught the heavy rough on the second. Yates sank a 5-footer for a bird to take the fourth, and White three-putted to lose the seventh. Then followed White's spectacular eagle on the eighth, where Yates took a 5. Yates squared the battle by rolling a 7-footer for a deuce at the ninth.

Slices Badly.

A 15-foot putt gave White a 2-up lead at the tenth. White 3-putted on the eleventh for a half in five, and missed the fourteenth green to take a 4 and lose the hole. White was trapped on the fifteenth and Yates recovered after being out-of-bounds on his drive, and they got halves in fives.

A birdie 3 put the Texan 1 up at the sixteenth, where Yates missed a 6-footer and took a 4. Yates blew another short putt on the seventeenth and managed to get a half in five.

Both birdied the eighteenth, Yates after slicing badly from the tee, sinking a 20-footer for a 3, and White canning a 12-footer.

White became 2 up by taking the nineteenth with a birdie 4 when he knocked in a 4-footer. They halved the next two holes, and Yates came bouncing back with a 15-foot putt on the twenty-second hole for a birdie 3. Yates' drive hit a tree on the twenty-third and dropped into a ditch. He later conceded White his birdie 4.

A birdie 4 on the twenty-sixth put White 4 up, and they halved the twenty-seventh in par threes.

Trapped from the tee, White took a 4 to lose the thirtieth. He sank a 10-footer to take the thirty-first, halved the thirty-second, and ended the match with a half in 4 on the thirty-third.

Catches Trap.

After halving the first two holes, Marse Haas dropped the short third when his tee shot caught a trap and Fischer took a lead he never again was to hold. The first of a streak of bad three-putts came to Fischer on the fourth, where he took a 5 and lost the hole. Both muffed short putts on the fifth. Fischer three-putted the seventh for another loss, but played a great iron second for a birdie 4 at the eighth to square the match.

Give Fischer a three-putt green at the tenth, which he lost to a par. Fischer became 2 down by losing the eleventh when his drive landed in the ditch. Haas dropped the twelfth with a 5 to 4. Both were trapped, but it took the Southerner 2 to get out. Three up went Haas at the thirteenth, where Fischer three-putted. Johnny three-putted the fourteenth, but this time it was a halve in 4. The Michigan star won the fifteenth with a 4 when Haas three-putted, his first three-putt green of the morning round.

Sinks 20-Footer.

A deadly chip on the eighteenth gave Haas a birdie 3 and put him 2 up.

The first five holes of the afternoon round were halved, the twenty-third in birdie 4s. Haas became 3 up by capturing the twenty-fourth as Fischer missed a 4-footer. In birdie 4s they halved the twenty-sixth.

Johnny became jittery again on the twenty-seventh green, three-putting for the sixth time to take a 4, lose the hole and go 4 down.

Fischer made a beautiful putt from 20 feet on the thirty-first to negotiate Haas' stymie and win the hole with a birdie 4. At the thirty-second it took them two to reach the green. Fischer got his 4, but Haas went him one better by sinking a 10-footer for a 3.

The finishing blow came on the thirty-third. Twenty feet from the pin in two, the lanky Louisiana boy went boldly for the cup and in went the ball for a birdie 3. Fischer rushed over to congratulate him.

The finals will start at 10 a. m. and be resumed at 2 p. m. today.

Interstate All-Stars Win Over Frederick

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., June 28.—The Interstate League All-Stars took the measure of the Frederick Hustlers, Blue Ridge League champions of 1934, in a night exhibition game at Community Park by 8 to 3.

Frederick, managed by Frank Six, who starred for that town in organized baseball about five years ago, was playing its first game in two years, and made four miscues, which aided the Stars in putting over three of their tallies.

Rorick Faces McKnight In Amateur Feature

Cumberland, Md., June 28.—An amateur boxing show will be staged July 4 at Luke, Md., for the entertainment of the Employes Protective Association of the West Virginian Pulp & Paper Co. Ringmen from Charleroi and New Salem, Pa., will meet a team from this city in nine bouts. Jack Rorick, 132, will meet "Jiggs" McKnight, of Luke, in the feature bout. Tracy Riggins, 165 pounds, of Westernport, has been matched with Nick DeLuzio, Charleroi, in the semifinal.

Giants Overcome Dodgers in Tenth

By the Associated Press.

Brooklyn, June 28.—The Dodgers started after the league-leading Giants today in a way that aroused memories of last season's finish, when they proved they were still in the league by knocking the New York Club out of the pennant. But after a prolonged ten-inning struggle the leaders finally came out ahead, 11 to 7.

The Giants waited almost until the last minute after some fine relief pitching by Dazzy Vance had checked one threat short of a tie. Two runs behind going into the ninth, they knotted the count on a rally started by Hank Leiber's tenth home run of the season, then went on to win with an outburst against Ray Benge inthe tenth.

Clark Leading Penn Golf Tourney

Posts 70 for 143 Total; Ehresman Single Stroke Behind.

By the Associated Press.

HERSHEY, Pa., June 28.—Clarence Clark, the big Bloomfield, N. J., golf pro, and Clarence Ehresman, of Eagles Mere, Pa., turned on the heat today to post sub-par 70s and take the one-two positions at the 36-hole mark of the Pennsylvania open.

Clark's shot-making gave him a two-round total of 143 for a 1-stroke lead over the up-State Pennsylvania pro at the half-way mark, while Ray Mangrum, of Los Angeles, the co-leader at the end of the first round, carded a par-73 for a 145 aggregrate and third place.

Sam Parks Falters.

The National Open champion, Sam Parks, jr., of Pittsburgh, again faltered, coming in with a 74, which gave him a hold on sixth place with three others at 149.

The other co-leader at the first-round mark, Cliff Spencer, of Washington, collapsed on the back nine of the second round, finished with a comparatively large 76, and dropped down the list to a fifth-place tie with Bob Barnett, of Washington, who posted a "hot" 2-under-par 71 today for a two-round 148.

Yacht Race Plans Complete at Shore

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cambridge, Md., June 28.—Plans are being completed for the third annual regatta of the Cambridge Yacht Club July 4. The course mapped out is between the yacht basin in Municipal Park and Million Dollar Bridge.

The events will start at 1 o'clock with sailing races, which include craft in the 12, 14, 16 and 18 foot class. These boats will race a triangular course of 3 miles, which will also be followed by the motorboats. At 1:30 o'clock there will be swimming events, and at 2 o'clock a model boat race.

The Ark, one of the ships that took part in the Maryland Tercentenary at St. Marys last year, will sail up the Choptank River for the regatta, arriving in Cambridge at 2:30 o'clock. The Tred Avon Yacht Club, of Oxford, is holding a Star class race on the morning of the Fourth. Twenty boats will compete.

Besides Mr. Andrews, those helping to promote the regatta are Dr. Robert Weygand, swimming; Guy Hicks, motorboating; Henry Aaron, sailboats; Henry L. Johnson, publicity; Curtis Applegarth, model sailboats, and Shirley Creighton, equipment.

Perry Is Victor In British Open

have won the open championship. That's all I want out of golf."

He was referring to two years ago when he was a member of the British Ryder Cup team which defeated a United States side six matches to five with one halved. He played in the foursomes and with Padgham was beaten by Ed Dudley, of Philadelphia, and Bill Burke, of Cleveland.

Perry is one of England's most unorthodox golfers. Right-handed, he swings a club with a low sweeping motion much like a man wielding a scythe. Nevertheless, he produced a pair of great rounds today. His morning 67, from an outward 32 and an inward 35, gave him a one-stroke lead at the end of 54 holes and tied the course record established six years ago by Walter Hagen in the open championship. Since then the course has been lengthened 120 yards and stiffened considerably. His 72 in the afternoon was perhaps equally remarkable as a great gallery which followed every stroke might have upset a far more experienced player.

His baffling calmness through the final round mystified the gallery and when he reached the final green with a chance to create a new low scoring record there was a tomb-like silence. He planted his approach 12 feet from the hole and a birdie 3 would do the trick. He studied the contour of the green carefully and then boldly, almost recklessly, went for the cup. The ball slid inches past.

Camilli's 15th Homer Beats Braves for Phils

Boston, June 28 (AP).—Dolph Camilli drove out his fifteenth homer of the season with Johnny Moore on base today to break up a ten-inning game and give the Phillies a 4-2 victory over the Boston Braves.

The Philadelphia first sacker's circuit drive came after Rupert Thompson, pinch-hitting for Fred Frankhouse in Boston's side of the ninth, blasted into the right-field pavilion with a mate on to tie the score at 2-all.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

FRONT ROYAL, Va., June 28.—The Front Royal All-Stars will remain in the Shenandoah Valley League pending a reconsideration of the player eligibility by-law adopted last night at a meeting of the board of directors of the league in Harrisonburg. This announcement was made today by President George Holtzman, of the Valley League, and B. J. Hilldige, president of the Front Royal club, after a conference between the former and the board of directors of the local club.

Following a meeting of the board this morning, Hilledge notified Holtzman of the withdrawal of the Front Royal club from the league, because the action of Thursday night was in violation of the by-laws originally adopted.

A meeting of league board of directors has been called for next Tuesday night, July 2.

Since the conference this afternoon the week-end games of Front Royal, which had been canceled this morning, were returned to the schedule—Orange at Front Royal tomorrow and Front Royal at Culpeper Sunday.

Edinburg Team's Manager Resigns

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Woodstock, Va., June 28.—Ray Coffman has resigned as manager of the Edinburg team, it was announced here today. The action is said to have been an outgrowth of Coffman's statement that he would play a game with the Strasburg nine, after the game was called a forfeit by J. Grove Kniesley, president of the Shenandoah County League.

Several players on the Edinburg team took exception to Coffman's words. Some of the players refused to play in the game, scheduled for tomorrow.

President Kniesley highly praised Coffman for his sportsmanship in the matter.

Four Games Set Today In Tied County League

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Frederick, Md., June 28.—The county league will go into action tomorrow with Brunswick at Woodsboro, Thurmont at New Windsor, Union Bridge at Middletown and Emmitsburg at Taneytown. Three teams—Brunswick, Thurmont and Union Bridge—are on even terms for first place in the pennant race. Middletown is in second position, one game removed from the leaders, and Taneytown, Woodsboro and Emmitsburg are tied for third place.

Stocks Reach Higher Ground In Light Trades

Advance Is Moderate but Demand Widespread, Say Brokers.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 28.—Share prices edged ahead a pace or two in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange today. Brokers said demand originated in widely scattered quarters and from diverse causes. Some cited the plea of Representative Middleston, of Alabama, before the House for "regulation and not destruction" as a stimulus to the utilities.

Others declared that the spectacular rise in wheat on fears of crop damage lent a bullish tinge to trading in equities which otherwise might have been lacking.

In the background of these specific developments it was reported there was continued quiet shopping for equities by those who feel the worst phase of the depression is gradually receding into the distance.

Measured by the Associated Press average of 60 stocks the market rose .5 of a point to 44.2. Sales totaled 755,630 shares, compared with 736,538 on Thursday.

News from the trade and industrial front was neither very good nor very bad and commentators said it threw little light on the near-term trend of markets.

Freight Loads Drop Sharply

After two weeks of steady gains loadings of revenue freight during the week ended June 22 decreased below the preceding week, the same week of the previous year, and for the first time in 1935, below the same week of 1933.

The slump carried total loads to 567,847 cars, 85,245 below the previous week, 55,475 cars below the corresponding week of 1934, and 41,780 cars below the same 1933 period. It was laid in great part to the drop in coal loads during the week. In previous weeks anticipation of a bituminous coal strike had caused large increases in shipments of this mineral, causing the past week's unusual recession.

Loadings for 25 Weeks.

Following are the loadings for the past 25 weeks, compared with like weeks in the past two years, giving percentages of change in relation to the weekly average for the past 15 years:

Inflation an Ultimate Danger But a Slow Process, Says Ayres

Method Being Followed Here Proved Disastrous in Germany, France, Belgium and Italy, Cleveland Economist Tells Bankers.

New Brunswick, N. J., June 28.—Present prospects are not that inflation severe enough to cause further dollar devaluation will come soon in this country, but inflation as an "ultimate development seems to be a very real danger," Leonard P. Ayres, vice president, Cleveland Trust Co., said here tonight in an address before the Graduate School of Banking. He indicated that he believed his statement to be true, "unless the Government enters frankly upon a policy of issuing fiat money with which to meet its expenses." At present that does not seem to be in prospect, he said.

The graduate school is being operated jointly by the American Institute of Banking section of the American Bankers Association and Rutgers University to offer advanced studies for bank officers. Col. Ayres spoke on the subject of "The Prospects of Inflation."

"We have so enormously increased the capacity of our banking system for credit expansion that it is difficult to see how we could have a vigorous business revival without having it develop into a credit inflation," Col. Ayres declared.

If inflation does come it will be a slow process, he said, expressing disagreement with those who feel that such a development is likely to take place rapidly or that it may actively be under way within the next 12 months or so.

Five Years' Development.

"In Germany, France, Belgium and Italy the processes of inflation took about five years to develop from the time when the governments entered upon policies of financing large peace-time deficits by bank credit up to the time when the public generally began to spend more rapidly because of fear that it would still further depreciate in purchasing power," he pointed out. "In Germany that period of the incubation of inflation lasted from 1918 into 1922, and in other countries from 1921 to 1926.

"If we are to go through such a period here it would seem likely that it might last rather longer than the corresponding periods did abroad. Its beginning would date from the spring of 1933 when we left the old gold basis for our money and entered upon the policy of financing large governmental deficits by the sale of Federal securities mainly to banks rather than to private investors.

"The method that we are following is the one that proved disastrous in Europe, for in all those countries including Germany, the increasing issues of money that caused the inflations were not mere printing press issues of fiat currency, but were secured by government bonds and notes discounted at the banks. Nevertheless, the process is inherently a slow one."

Business Recovery First.

Col. Ayres expressed his belief that when and if inflation does develop it will be ushered in by a business recovery that will be welcomed by all. "It may well be doubted whether any national administration or any Federal Reserve Board would have the fortitude to check and restrict such a recovery in order to avoid an overexpansion of credit," he continued.

"The time to take active precautionary steps to safeguard property against such an inflation will be reached when short-time interest rates on commercial paper and call and time loans begin definitely to move upward, accompanied by real advances in the prices for non-agricultural commodities. The time to become alarmed about the situation will be when short-time interest rates have risen so far that they are above the yields of high-grade bonds."

The five requisites of inflation were listed by Col. Ayres as first, a period of sustained active business; second, a rising stock market; third, real credit expansion; fourth, greater outflow of gold "than we can tolerate which would force us to cut our currency entirely free from gold," and, fifth, continued large budget deficits in Government operation.

Steel Capacity Lower, But Pay Rolls Higher

New York, June 28 (AP).—The American Institute of Steel Construction reports that shops in the industry reporting to them operated at 35.5 per cent of capacity during May. Total bookings for the month were 42,811 tons, against 73,127 tons on April and a decrease of 25 per cent from the figure of May, 1934.

Pay rolls of the steel industry in May aggregated more than $600,000 above April. This was despite a drop in average rate of production, and slight decreases in average earnings per hour and average hours per week worked. Steel circles attributed the increase chiefly to the fact that there was one more work day in May than in April.

New York, June 28 (AP).—Connecticut Light & Power Co., it was announced today, has arranged for the private sale of $10,000,000 series E first and refunding mortgage 3¾ per cent 30-year bonds.

The proceeds will be used to redeem outstanding bonds, leaving about $1,000,000 for additions, betterments and improvements to property.

Reichsbank Extends Moratorium a Year

Berlin, June 28 (AP).—The Reichsbank, claiming that the foreign exchange situation has not improved during the past year, announced today the prolongation until June 30, 1936, of the moratorium on the transfer of middle and long-term dept payments.

Bank Clearings Up 44% Here; 14% in Nation

By R. Karl von Lewinski.

Rapid improvement in Washington business that is fast outstripping the progress made by leading cities of the Nation was disclosed yesterday when local bank clearings for the past week were reported to be 44 per cent ahead of the corresponding week a year ago.

Total debits of all banks up to Wednesday as reported by the Washington Clearing House were $19,121,828, against $13,258,398 for the same week of last year. Compared with the preceding week clearings here showed a slight loss, decreasing 5.4 per cent.

In the entire country, bank clearings showed an increase of 14.3 per cent, less than half the local gain. None of the 22 leading cities of the Nation which turned in a total of $4,997,480,000 during the week topped the local gain. Seattle, next highest, reported a 30 per cent gain.

New York Up 15 Per Cent.

At New York City clearings were $3,302,125,000, an increase of 15.4 per cent over the amount reported last year, while the aggregate for centers outside of New York of $1,695,355,000 was 12.2 per cent higher.

The rather unusual increase at New York City for the current month added materially to the larger total. Clearings at Boston and Philadelphia also were quite a little higher. Some cities in the West and South continued to report a considerably larger amount. For the past week the total was $902,022,000 below that of the preceding week, at which time bank settlements were swollen by heavy income tax payments due then, but for the same two weeks a year ago the reduction amounted to $1,211,088,000.

Figures at leading centers, showing increases and decreases as compared with those of last year, are printed herewith; also daily bank clearings for the year to date:

Trust Companies Fear Inheritance Levies Will Cut Earnings by Reducing Size of Trusts; Doubt Wider Use of Gifts to Set Up Living Trusts.

By a Special Correspondent.

New York, June 28.—A number of trust company officials, after careful analysis of the proposed new inheritance levies, have come to the conclusion that their business will be adversely affected if the program is put into effect.

The chief source of income of nearly all trust departments of banks and trust companies is the handling of estates and testamentary trusts. Their work as executors would not be materially affected, as the fee here is based upon the gross estate handled. However, the most profitable part of testamentary trust business is usually the administration of trusts set up by the testator for minor children and other beneficiaries, and these will tend to be greatly reduced in size if the new taxes are passed.

The proposed inheritance tax would sharply reduce in particular the quite large trusts which have been particularly profitable for trust companies. Thus, on an individual inheritance of $1,000,000 to $2,000,000, there would be a tax of 20 per cent, while on the portion of inheritances which exceed $10,000,000 the proposed tax of 75 per cent is virtually confiscatory in character. It must be kept in mind that these high inheritance taxes are imposed after steeply progresssive estate duties have been paid to the Federal Government, and, in most cases, to the State as well.

The sharp increases in surtax rates on incomes of $1,000,000 and more further tends to reduce the size of estates, and so the likely future income of trust companies from administering testamentary trusts.

Forced Sales Would Further Cut Trusts.

Another factor which trust officials feel will have an adverse effect is the added difficulty of settling estates in which closely held corporations, real estate and other assets not readily marketable constitute an important part. In order to pay the enormous estate and inheritances taxes that are to be imposed, it may be necessary to arrange forced sales of such non-marketable assets much more frequently than at present. Under such circumstances, the proceeds of sale would probably prove far smaller than the book value of the assets, or their value if retained and administered over a period of years by the trust company. Since the trust company is compensated as a rule by a stated percentage payment on the principal value of the trust at its incaption and termination, as well as on the annual income, such forced sales tend to shrink these fees quite sharply.

Incidentally, the new inheritance levy will constitute an added incentive to owners of closely held business enterprises to market stock publicly. This would help establish a public demand for the issue and so facilitate liquidation of wealthy owners' holdings where sales are necessary for the payment of the extremely heavy estate and inheritance taxes.

Doubt Wider Resort to Transfer Through Gift.

Some trust company officials have felt, especially when the new tax proposals were first announced, that they would lead to much wider resort to the practice of passing on large estates through gifts to heirs during the lifetime of the testator. The imposition of high estate taxes had already caused the making of such gifts in many cases. These gifts result in setting up living trusts, which have become a steadily more important branch of the personal trust business. The imposition of gift taxes in recent years has not discouraged the practice, as the rates have been relatively moderate.

However, after discussing the matter with a number of clients, trust men express considerable doubt that the inheritance tax proposals will stimulate more general resort to the practice of setting up living trusts through gifts, on the receipt of which the new tax rates are to be about 75 per cent as high as on inheritances. These new gift taxes would be subject to immediate levies by the Government large estates which otherwise would not have to pay such duty until the death of the owner.

In view of the possbility that the value of his estate might depreciate before his death, this immediate payment of a steeply graded gift tax is held to involve considerable risk. Furthermore, there is a strong feeling that very high taxes on large estates should be regarded as bearing the character of emergency levies, which are quite likely to be reduced at some future time when the Federal budget has been balanced and the popularity of "share the wealth" schemes has abated. In fact, even at this time the popular reaction to the confiscatory rates in the upper brackets has disappointed sponsors of the plan.

Creation of a living trust now involves the payment of a heavy gift tax immediately, in the case of wealthy persons. By waiting a few years, a materially lower schedule of inheritance and gift, if not of estate, duties may be substituted.

One likely result of the higher taxes may be that trust companies will make a more vigorous drive to obtain smaller trusts for administration. In the past, the relatively high expenses incurred in connection with the latter has made it difficult to handle them profitably.

North Western Lists Defaults

Railroad Owes the R. F. C. $498,465 Interest on a Loan.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, June 28.—Bowing to blows from drought and depression, the Chicago & North Western, which LaSalle Street termed the "aristocrat of railroads," today sought the shelter of the Federal bankruptcy law.

Its petition for reorganization under Section 77 of the national law said it had already been forced to default on interest of its 20-year convertible bonds amounting to $1,717,966.50; on $498,465 interest of an RFC loan, and on a $500,000 note to the Railroad Credit Corporation.

The petition, signed by President Fred W. Sargent, declared it had no possibility of borrowing further to meet interest charges and maturity obligations totaling $29,464,891.50 due this year.

The suit, assigned to Federal Judge John P. Barnes, promised a reorganization plan would be submitted after negotiations now under way with representatives of nearly half its creditors were concluded. The negotiations seek to adjust fixed charges to present income limits.

Officials said that if their plan for a five-year moratorium on approximately half the annual fixed charges is accepted, the North Western's subsidiary, the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Ohama, would probably be able to avoid the courts.

Foreign Exchange.

By the Associated Press.

International dollar rates were slightly mixed in most centers yesterday.

In London the dollar closed at 4.94⅞ to the pound sterling, against an overnight New York rate of 4.94⅞, and in later dealings in New York the trend was continued when sterling dipped ⅛ of a cent to 4.94⅝.

In Paris the dollar ended at an equivalent of 6.637 cents to the franc and in New York franc rose .00⅛ of a cent to 6.62⅛ cents, or a tiny fraction above its par of 6.6324 cents. Most of the other gold bloc currencies were a trifle higher.

U. S. Treasury Receipts.

Wheat Jumps 5 Cents in Fear Of Black Rust

July Contracts Close at 84⅝ in Tumultuous Buying Wave.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, June 28.—Excited widespread speculative buying of wheat that suddenly broke out today shot prices skyward 5 cents a bushel, the extreme limt allowed in one day.

Black rust, which in times past has brought ruin to millions of acres of otherwise perfect spring wheat, was reported as attacking the Nation's spring crop long in advance of the usual date. Moreover, the domestic winter wheat crop was reported also as likely to suffer extensive black rust injury, an unusual occurrence. Nebraska losses alone are estimated at 5,000,000 to 10,000,000 bushels.

With comment prevalent that the season promises to see a race between the harvester and the rust as to which will get the grain, wheat in Chicago closed buoyant at the day's top prices, 4½-5 cents above yesterday's finish, September, 85¾-⅞; corn, ½-2⅝ up; September, 78⅞-77¼; oats, 1¾-2⅛ advanced, and provisions varying from 17 cents decline to 22 cents again.

Special significance was attached to the fact that millers as well as speculators were active buyers of wheat today. After the day's stampede to purchase was ended, however, many traders predicted that tomorrow's market action would depend to a large extent on continued eager buying and on weather developments, as well as on rust news.

Corn, oats and rye markets took their cue from wheat. Provisions averaged higher responsive to grain strength and to the Government's pig survey.

Utility Bonds At Year's High

Rails Are Firm Despite North Western and St. Paul Plights.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 28.—The corporate bond market kept reaching for higher price levels today with utilities and low-yield issues providing the greatest strength. United States Governments were uneven.

Railroad issues were not greatly disturbed by bankruptcy discussions, even though it was generally taken for granted that the St. Paul will announce tomorrow its decision to follow the North Western through the courts. While the bonds of these two carriers were mostly lower, there were numerous firm spots scattered through the rail group.

The Associated Press average of 10 utilities got into new high ground for the year the third time this week at 95.8, up 0.1 of a point on balance, and the average of 10 low-yield bonds came within 0.1 of a point of duplicating the 1935 peak at 110.2, also up 0.1 of a point from Thursday. The averages for other domestics groups were 0.1 of a point lower to 0.2 of a point higher.

Transfers were nearly $1,000,000 less than on Thursday at $10,925,000, per vaule, and the turnover in United States Governments approximated $2,480,000, against $2,980,000.

Cotton Prices Gain $1 a Bale

Trade and Commission House Buying Puts July to 11.87.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 28.—Trade and commission house buying advanced cotton about $1 a bale today. Demand was prompted by talk of a firm old crop spot situation and unfavorable crop advices from the Southwest. Closing prices were within a point or two of the best with the market steady at net gains of 17 to 20 points.

With offerings light, prices responded readily to the increased demand which was supposed to include considerable covering by trade shorts.

Advertising Gains 2.1 Per Cent in Year

New York, June 28 (AP).—Advertising during May registered a gain of 2.1 per cent over the same period a year ago, according to the general index of advertising compiled by Printers Ink. The index figure for May stands at 81.2 as compared with 79.8 for April.

Corrected for seasonal and other variations, the compilation uses an index figure of 100 to represent the average of advertising activity during the five-year period, 1928-32.

Net for 52 Railroads Declines 20.5 Per Cent

New York, June 28 (AP).—The first 52 railroads to report for May had total net railway operating income of approximately $30,095,000, a decrease of 20.5 per cent as compared with the result of May, 1934.

For the first five months of the year the net of these carriers was about $151,777,000, a decrease of 10 per cent from a year ago.

Food Index is $2.56, Lowest This Year

New York, June 28 (AP).—With 15 of the 31 items quoted lower than a week ago and only seven advances, the Dun & Bradstreet weekly food index declined 2 cents during the period ended June 25 to stand at $2.56.

This marks the lowest for 1935, and shows a total drop of 20 cents from the February 12 high point of $2.76.

Dillon, Read & Co., The First Boston Corporation, Brown Harriman & Co., Inc., Spencer Trask & Co., Coffin & Burr, Inc., Blyth & Co., Inc., Stone & Webster and Blodget, Inc., and Goldman, Sachs & Co., all of New York City, and Hayden, Miller & Co., of Cleveland.

Curb Rally Is Led By Power Shares

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 28.—Utility shares led a late rise on the curb market today. Other divisions, particularly alcohols and metals, were responsive to the improvement. Activity quickened in the final hour following earlier dullness.

Pittsburgh Plate Glass and Aluminum Co. of America both got up around 2 points, while shares gaining fractions to around a point included American Gas & Electric, Electric Bond & Share, Hiram Walker, Distillers Corps.-Seagrams, Lake Shore, Newmont, Sunshine Mining, Swift & Co., American Cyanamid "B" and Humble Oil.

Jersey G.A.R. Fights Lee Memorial Plan

Atlantic City, N. J., June 28 (U.P.).—A reported proposal to have Congress appropriate $50,000 for a memorial to Gen. Robert E. Lee is opposed in a resolution adopted today at the final session of the sixty-eighth annual meeting of the New Jersey State Department of the Grand Army of the Republic.

The resolution also opposed a reported proposal to put Confederate veterans on the pension roll of the Federal Government.

AUCTION SALES

WEDNESDAY, JULY 10, 1935—
THOS. J. OWEN & SON, Auctioneers.
1431 Eye Street Northwest.

Trustee's Sale of the Valuable Eight-Story and Basement Brick and Stucco Apartment House Known as "Corcoran Courts Apartments," Located at the Northeast Corner of 23rd and D Streets Northwest.

Because of default in the terms and conditions of, and by virtue of a certain deed of trust to Corcoran Courts, Inc., a Corporation, a Delaware corporation, dated July 1, 1925, recorded among the land records of the District of Columbia in Liber 5572, folio 63 et seq., and by leave of court in Equity Causes Nos. 50,717 and 53,023 in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, the undersigned substituted Trustee, by appointment of said court in said Equity Cause No. 53,025, will offer for sale at public auction in front of the premises on WEDNESDAY, JULY 10, 1935, AT FOUR O'CLOCK P. M., the following described land and premises, situate in the District of Columbia: Lots numbered two (2) to ten (10), inclusive, in Emily Fuller's subdivision of lots in square numbered sixty (60), as per plat recorded in the office of the Surveyor for the District of Columbia in Liber H. D. C. at folio 40, being known as premises situate at the northeast corner of Twenty-third and D streets northwest, Washington, D. C. Together with all and singular the screens, curtains, fixtures, window shades, ice boxes, ranges, stoves, furnaces, boilers, engines, dynamos, machinery, elevators and electric equipment, vacuum cleaners, mail chutes, refrigerating, heating, ventilating, telephone, gas and electric fixtures and fittings, and other fittings, fixtures and personal property thereon which said trustee is authorized by said deed of trust to sell and convey.

TERMS OF SALE: One-third of the purchase price to be paid in cash on or before the 10th day of August, 1935, balance in two equal installments, payable one year before one and two years from date of sale, respectively, with interest thereon at the rate of six per centum per annum from day of sale, said interest payable semi-annually, and to be secured by first deed of trust on the property sold, or all cash at the option of the purchaser. The said trustee will receive no bid from anyone offering to bid who shall not at or before the hour of sale, or any adjournment thereof, deposit with said trustee, as a pledge that such bidder will make good his bid in case of its acceptance, a deposit of $15,000, either in cash or certified check on a local bank or trust company, made or indorsed payable to the undersigned trustee, or in lieu thereof bonds of the par value of $30,000, in form transferable by delivery, secured by said deed of trust, said bonds to have all unpaid coupons attached thereto. The deposit of any unsuccessful bidder will be returned to him immediately after the sale. In case any successful bidder shall fail to complete his purchase by August 10, 1935, in accordance with said terms of sale, said deposit may be forfeited at the option of the said trustee, or without forfeiting the deposit said trustee may avail itself of any legal or equitable rights against defaulting purchaser. The said trustee reserves the right to reject any and all bids and withdraw the property from sale. Adjustments with respect to taxes, assessments, insurance, rentals, income from operation of property, interest and all other adjustments shall be made as of the date of sale, the property is now in possession of and is being operated by Morris Cafritz, as receiver, appointed in said Equity Cause No. 50,717, but by order of court entered in said cause on or about June 10, 1935, said receiver has been directed to deliver possession of said property to the purchaser at said sale upon transfer of title from said trustee to said purchaser, and from date of sale to date of transfer, said receiver will manage and operate said property as agent of the purchaser. The trustee will not be responsible for any bills or expenses incurred in the management or operation of said property. All expense of conveyancing, recording, revenue stamps, etc., is to be at the cost of the purchaser. Terms of sale to be compiled with on or before August 10, 1935; otherwise the said trustee reserves the right to forfeit said deposit or to resell the property at the risk and cost of defaulting purchaser upon the foregoing terms, after seven days' advertisement of such resale in some newspaper published in Washington, D. C.

Once Overs

By H. I. Phillips

Elmer Twitchell Sees Too Much Security.

"What puzzles me," said Elmer Twitchell today, "is what's gonna become of the old-fashioned American worrier."

"Just what do you mean?" we asked.

"The future looks dark for him," explained Elmer. "He was a predominant type, the worrier, and it was one of his prerogatives to go on worrying as much as he liked. It's pretty sad."

"What's pretty sad?"

"The way he's going to be stymied by all this security legislation," said Elmer. "The Old-Fashioned American Worrier has been getting behind in his worrying even since Roosevelt went in. I'm afraid that inside of the next five or ten years it'll be pretty hard for him to find anything to worry over."

* * * *

Mr. Twitchell put aside his newspaper and shook his head sadly. "I'm afraid of the consequences," he resumed after a moment, "and I fear for its effect on American character. When a nation has been built up, developed and sustained by intensive worrying, it's a dangerous thing to try to take away its worries all at once.

* * * *

"But with the day at hand when the Government is going to take over all the worries of its people and fix it so there'll be pensions for everybody, good wages, short hours, uniform homes, Federal upkeep and easy mortgage payments, lower doctors' bills and all that sort of thing, I don't see much opportunity for future fretting.

* * * *

"America owes its greatness to the indisposition to stop worrying. Who discovered America? Columbus. Why? Because he was worrying about more land. Who settled America? The Pilgrim Fathers. Why? Because they were worried over human rights, religion and English legislation. What enabled them to conquer the savages and the natural hardships of early American life? Constant worrying!

* * * *

"Why did those men and women leave home and endure those trips across the plains in covered wagons? They were worried about how things were going in the East.

* * * *

"And now the New Deal is going to make it almost impossible for a man or woman to do any tall fretting about anything. The only comfort left for them will be to worry over the loss of their old-time worries. I fear the worst."

On the Air Today

Uncle Arthur Godfrey will wind up his 13-week series of amateur shows this morning. Thirteen bidders for $150, in cold cash of the republic, and a week's engagement at ye olde Foxe Theater will assemble at 9:30 at that flicker establishment and compete for the distinction of winning Uncle Arthur's National Capital Radio Amateur Show award.

Each of the 13 contestants has won a Saturday night competition, having been selected by the ringside judges.

* * * *

The Fox, for this one-hour occasion, will be open for the contest only. At least 3,600 mammas and papas, uncles and aunts, neighbors and friends of the contestants will be permitted to view the final contest. If you fail to qualify under any of the above categories and still wish to see the show, drop by the Columbia Broadcasting System offices, eighth floor, Earle Building, on your way to the theater and if seats are still available, a ticket will be given you.

Heroes of '76 Hold Annual Outing Today

The annual outing of the Heroes of '76, organization composed of officers of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, and Coast and Geodetic Survey, will be held this afternoon and evening at Fort Washington, Md. Members, their ladies and guests will sail for the Fort at 3 p. m. from the Army War College dock on the S. S. Rucker.

Following dinner served by the Fort Washington chefs the organization will initiate recruits into the Military Order of the Heroes. Col. A. H. Dondero is commander and Lieut Thomas W. Wagner is adjutant of the Heroes of '76.

Service and Civic Bands List Concerts for Week

C. Marshall Finnan, superintendent of National Capital Parks, announced the following schedule of band concerts for the week beginning Monday.

The Army and Navy bands will give a concert at the District of Columbia World War Memorial, West Potomac Park, on Monday and Tuesday in the order named. The Community Civic Band is giving a concert Friday at Judiciary Park, Fourth and E streets northwest.

All concerts will begin at 7:30 p. m.

Marine Reserves Close Rolls for Encampment

Enlistments in the Fifth Battalion, Fleet Marine Corps Reserve, ended last night although the Battalion does not leave for camp at Quantico until August 4.

The reason given for setting the enlistment deadline several weeks in advance of the camp date is to keep out of the battalion men who want to take advantage of the camp period without attendance at regular drills.

End-Play.

An end-play is one executed near the end of the hand in which a chosen opponent is thrown into the lead with his force of action so restricted that he must make a play which will assure declarer of an otherwise unmakable or at best a doubtful trick.

The term covers all situations where the opponent is forced to lead up to a tenace in declarer's or dummy's hand or make a lead which will give declarer a ruff in one hand and a discard in the other; also, when the hand thrown in (having been stripped of all other suits), is forced to lead up to an established high card that could not otherwise be cashed, and gives the declarer an otherwise inaccessible discard.

All great bridge players resort to this form of play whenever the occasion arises and it is truly remarkable how quickly an end-play can be sensed by an expert.

West, Dealer.

Neither side vulnerable.

	♠ 9 7 2 ♡ K 9 7 6 4 ◇ Q J ♣ 9 4 3
♠ K Q 3 ♡ J 10 8 5 3 2 ◇ 4 ♣ A 10 2	N W E S	♠ J 10 6 5 4 ♡ A ◇ 10 8 7 5 ♣ K Q 8
	♠ A 8 ♡ Q ◇ A K 9 6 3 2 ♣ J 7 6 5

West	North	East	South
1♡(1)	Pass	1♠	2◇(2)
2♠	Pass	3♠(3)	Pass
4♠(4)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—A slightly shaded opening but, in addition to a six-card suit, West holds some strength in spades.
2—South's overcall is quite sound.
3—After West's opening bid and raise, East must bid again.
4—The singleton diamond, which should be an added element of strength, was the justification for this bid.

The Play.

South opened the diamond King. He then shifted to the Ace and a small trump to reduce East's ability to ruff the diamonds. The second trump trick was won in the dummy and the closed hand entered by a lead of a heart to the Ace. A low diamond followed and was ruffed with dummy's last trump. A heart from dummy was ruffed in the closed hand and North's last trump picked up. Three rounds of clubs followed, the last being won in the dummy.

Then East threw North into the lead with the Jack of hearts and because North was forced to return the suit, the rest of the tricks were taken by declarer and the contract fulfilled.

The Federal Diary

Registered in U. S. Patent Office.

By Loren Hall,

Batting for Morgan Baker.

More than $700,000 in premiums is collected annually from Government employes, it was revealed yesterday in a hearing on the McCarran bill which provides for Government bonding of officials and employes either by establishing an official bonding system or by paying premiums for bonded Federal workers.

About 170,000 postal workers and 10,000 other Government employes are bonded, and the premium rates range from 25 cents to $2.60 a thousand, it was reported. At present, some Federal workers pay as much as $65 a year in premiums, out of their own pockets, and this bill would require the Government to pay these premiums.

Representatives of bonding companies present told the committee they came as observers. At the suggestion of Col. Charles I. Stengle, representing the American Federation of Government Employes, the committee asked the bonding company representatives to register, on the ground that it might be desirable later to know who the observers were.

"In addition to the manifest unfairness of imposing upon its workers the expense of bonds, the present situation is rendered still more indefensible as result of wide inconsistencies in rates and, also, through frequent and pyramiding duplication of bonds in a single office. In the latter regard, it is found that, for example, in post-offices the bonds often exceed by several times the value of the negotiable items in the offices."

Miss Hilda Nelson, secretary to the chief engineer, Soil Conservation Service, will sing over the Chase and Sanborn amateur hour Sunday between 7 and 8 p. m.

New Locals Organized.

Three new local unions of N. F. F. E. have been organized, Secretary-Treasurer Gertrude M. McNally has announced.

Employes of the air service of the War and Navy Department are members of Local 529 at East Hartford, Conn. The charter membership of the local includes approximately 30 Federal employes.

N. Y., and the membership is drawn from employes of the Veterans' Administration. There are more than 50 names on the charter application, Miss McNally pointed out.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., is the site of Local No. 531, which was formed by a large group of employes in the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine, Agriculture.

Miss McNally said:

"In addition to the formation of these new locals, membership in already established unions of the N. F. F. E. has shown a large and steady increase both in the field and in Washington. In the National Capital, the membership drive has been especially successful and each local union holding membership in the District of Columbia F. F. E. U. has registered gains ranging as high as 500 per cent."

W. G. H. Finch, assistant chief engineer, Federal Communications Commission, is smiling broader since the birth of a 7-pound daughter.

Postettes.

John H. Shellington, NRA, has been confined to his home because of illness.

Charles Downs and John Latham were among those appointed as agents of the Bureau of Internal Revenue. They will report Monday at the collector's office, Brooklyn, for trainin,.

Mrs. Edgar Coffman, of Indianapolis, and her two children will join Mr. Coffman in Washington next week. Mr. Coffman is an employe of the Federal Power Commission.

Frank Roberson will succeed Paul D. Spearman as active general counsel, Federal Communications Commission, July 1. Mr. Spearman is resigning to return to private business.

Say, you folks on Capitol Hill,
How about staying there until Someone ends this chronic peeve,
And gives us back our vanished leave,
Shattered nerves don't hit on eight,
Exhausted clerks can't hold their gait,
Economize in other ways,
But please restore our thirty days.
L. B. M. (C), Internal Revenue.

Miss Carol Piper, secretary to Administrator Chester C. Davis, AAA, has returned from a two weeks' vacation in Massachusetts.

John D. Howard, investment expert, of Hyattsville, Md., has been appointed assistant treasurer of the Smithsonian Institution.

To Give Program.
